Board Trims Health Funds

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A $5.2-million spending program for county health services was approved yesterday by Marin County supervisors as the board ended a third day of budget deliberations.

The approved spending program is about $60,000 lessthan recommended by County Administrator John F. Barrows, but is $375,00 more than approved a year ago.

The increase is due primarily to salary and fringe benefit increases for the department work force of about 190 employees.

The department — reorganized last year through consolidating administration of nine separate departments — consumed most of the supervisors' time yesterday on the proposed budget of $47.4 million for fiscal 1972-73.

Hardest hit by the board's cuts was the department's medical division, which provides health services, emergency care and examinations for the indigent.

Some $37.000 was sliced from the medical division's appropriation for emergency hospital care, lowering that figure from $375.000 to about $338,000.

Also cut was $10,000 from a recommended $20,000 figure for ambulance service for the needy and $9.000 from a recommended $90,000 account for medical care.

In urging the cuts from the medical division, Supervisor Louis H. Baar protested that the poor "are getting medical services that the guy whose working — and paying the taxes — can't afford."

"A lot of people are getting a lot of services I don't think they are entitled to," he continued, proposing further cuts.

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella shrugged his shoulders and offered to read a section of the state code ordering county's to provide certain medical services to the poor.

"Ah, but what level of services?" Baar responded, adding that many of the poor are getting a higher level of medical care than families with above-average incomes can afford.

"I agree," said Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni, "but there's not much the county can do" to cut the standards since the poor — under the law — can demand treatment.

Other areas of the health service department's spending program which were cut included the comprehensive health planning section. It was reduced from $62,000 to $56,000. The public health division, meanwhile, was reduced from $685,000 to $677,000.

The board approved unanimously, with only minor revisions, the remaining divisions of the department. Those included: community mental health (center and programs), $2,740,000; crippled children, $367.000; sanitation, $244,000; coroner, $181,000, and mental retardation, $227.000.

On personnel matters related to the health department, Chairman Arrigoni was outvoted 3-1 on two occasions in his attempts to block hiring of a male nurse for the county jail and a health educator in the public health division.

Other budgets considered yesterday included the county (veterans) service office, which won approval for its request of $123,000 but lost a half-time secretary (transferred to another department).

The board also approved a $9,000 allocation for county referrals of mentally retarded persons to state institutions.

The welfare department's Medi-Cal budget of $1,236,000 was approved as the county's portion of the program under state law.

Adding yesterday's reductions of about $60,000 to the $120,000 worth of cuts the first two days dropped the estimated property tax rate from $2.765 per $100 assessed valuation to a new estimate of $2.74.

Judge Won't Halt U.S. Pilots' Walkout

'No Jurisdiction'; Airline Appeal Hearing Is Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U. S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. refused today to prevent U. S. pilots from staging a 24-hour walkout Monday to reinforce demands to stop skyjacking.

"If I had the jurisdiction to stop you, I would," Hart told the Airline Pilots Associations.

The judge relied on the contracts between the pilots and the airlines in making his decision. "If there were a 'no strike' clause, I would have jurisdiction, but there isn't in your contract and under the Federal Railway Act, I see no jurisdiction," he said.

Attorneys for the Air Transport Association said they would take the case to the U.S. Court of Appealu where an emergency panel was summoned to hear it at 3:15 p.m. EDT. Adecision was expected immediately following.

Hart's ruling thus cleared the way for an unprecedented, worldwide halt in commercial airline service called by the international federation to protest world inaction in the face of hijacking terror.

The pilots' walkout is to begin at 2 a.m. EDT Monday around the world and is to end 24 hours later.

The Air Transport Association, representing all major U.S. scheduled airlines, had asked Hart for a restraining order against the pilots. "We come here not because we disagree with the airline pilots in calling a strike but because the means they seek are improper means. They are violative of the U.S. Railway Act under which we live," said attorney Herbert Prashker of New York for the airlines.

Hart said that he failed to see how a walkout would violate the law because this was not a labor dispute but a protest demonstration.

The pilots, represented by attorney Henry Weiss of New York, argued that a strike would focus world public attention on the skyjacking problem. The pilots' meetings at the United Nations earlier this week had produced "nothing," he said.

Pilots for United, American and Braniff International said they would not join the strike. Trans World Airways secured a court injunction against the walkout scheduled for 2 a.m. EDT Monday and said its flights would operate normally.

Pan American also said it planned to go ahead with normal operations, but there was no word from its pilots on what they planned to do. Western Air Lines pilots said they would strike and most other U.S. air carriers said that at the moment they just weren't certain what would happen.

Hawaiian Airlines and Aloha Airlines, both interisland carriers in Hawaii, obtained temporary restraining orders in U.S. District Court Friday to bar their pilots from striking.

Canada's 2,000 pilots said they would support the action because "scores of innocent victims, including pilots, have been killed and 20,000 lives have been endangered" by the airplane hijackings.

Reports fom Arab capitals said their pilots would not participate and in Cairo Secretary General Sabet Sefari of the Federation of Arab Transport Workers called the action "an Israeli maneuver."

Pilots Associations in France, the Philippines, Israel, Austria, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Kenya, Switzerland, India, Ireland and Holland said they would support the strike.

The strike grew out of a demand by the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations (IFALPA) that the United Nations take some action to stop the hijackings. The organization has 50,000 members in 64 countries.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim met with several officials of various pilots' organizations, but there appeared no chance the U.N. Security Council would meet before Monday.

Political Murder Verdict Affirmed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In a decision described as the "definitive statement...on the tragic crime of political assassination," the California Supreme Court Friday upheld the conviction of Sirhan B. Sirhan for the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The court unanimously rejected defense arguments that Sirhan, now 28, was mentally incapable of planning the assassination, that there was prejudicial pretrial publicity and that evidence was unlawfully seized.

"This decision is the definitive statement by any United States court on the tragic crime of political assassination," Los Angeles District Attorney Joseph P. Busch Jr. said, adding he was "deeply pleased" with the ruling.

Sirhan's attorney, Luke McKissack, said he would appeal, first by asking the state court for a rehearing and then, if it is denied, by taking the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The state court also reduced Sirhan's death sentence to life in prison under its own landmark decision of several months ago that held the death penalty unconstitutional because it was "cruel or unusual" punishment. However, the same justice who dissented in the death penalty case dissented on reducing Sirhan's sentence.

The state court rejected the contention that notebook diaries in which Sirhan scrawled "Robert F. Kennedy must be assassinated" were illegally seized because they were confiscated from his home without a search warrant.

It ruled that law officers must have the right to search without a warrant in a case of "enormous gravity" such as the assassination of Kennedy on June 6, 1968, after he won the state's Democratic presidential primary.

"Today when assassination of persons of prominence have been committed in this country, it is essential that law enforcement officers be allowed to take fast action in their endeavors to combat such crimes," the opinion said.

McKissick indicated the main point of his appeal probabty would be on the search and seizure issue, saying, "The emergency doctrine looks awfully tenuous."

On the defense contention there was insufficient evidence to support the murder conviction in view of Sirhan's "diminished mental capacity," or inability to premeditate (which is an extenuating circumstance under California law), the court said Sirhan had ample time to plan the killing and there was evidence that he was not a "paranoid schizophrenic, in a disassociate state or intoxicated" at the time of the killing.

It ruled also that the record showed "neither prejudice to defendant from the publicity nor a probability thereof."

The 78-page opinion written by Justice Louis H. Burke was based on the automatic appeal provision for all death cases in California.

Sirhan Will Be Eligible For Parole

Sirhan B. Sirhan, San Quentin Death Row inmate convicted of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will be eligible for parole as of May 23, 1976, a San Quentin spokesman reported today.

Sirhan probably also will be moved out of Death Row in a few days or weeks, and transferred to one of the state's three penal reception centers, probably the California Medical Facility at Vacaville.

"It's extremely unlikely" that Sirhan will be released in 1976, Associate Warden James W. L. Park said today. But because the California Supreme Court yesterday reduced his death sentence to a life term, parole will be possible at any time after he has served seven years, Park explained.

Park said that after the necessary documents are received from the supreme court, San Quentin officials will consult state Department of Corrections officials in Sacramento about transferring Sirhan out of Death Row. After Sirhan is

Redevelopment Agency Draws Chamber Support

By NELS JOHNSON

San Rafael's embryonic redevelopment agency — created with the aim of revitalizing the ailing downtown area — was supported yesterday by the city's chamber of commerce.

San Rafael redevelopment consultant Steven H. Goldfarb joined a delegation of city staff in urging the chamber backing after assuring the group that redevelopment "is the best way to go" in pumping new life into the sagging economy of the central city.

Businessman expressed general approval of the community redevelopment plan even though most admitted that they were unaware of the mechanics of the proposal.

The city council last April established itself as the city's redevelopment agency and ordered a study of a proposed redevelopment area including downtown San Rafael, the Francisco Boulevard shopping area and the eastern portion of the city.

Under state law, a redevelopment agency can freeze the current assessed valuation level in areas within redevelopment boundaries and use future increases for self-financing.

"This won't cost property owners anything;" Goldfarb said, adding that redevelopment is "nothing more than a redistribution of property tax money."

He said that the only initial investment would be one of staff time and consulting fees.

But Councilman John A. Miskimen told the group that "at least half of the money" taken by the redevelopment agency from other taxing agencies in terms of future assessed valuation increases "could realistically be expected to come back (to the other districts) in terms of a higher tax rate."

Miskimen said that the key issue the city is facing is "what to do with the money once we've got it."

His suggestion that the money could be used in part to finance a new central fire station concerned some chamber members, who urged that redevelopment funds be used to upgrade the downtown's economic standing.

"Are we talking about supporting a new fire station or are we talking about revitalizing the downtown area?" one businessman wondered.

Miskimen noted that council has taken no stand on redevelopment priorities or the boundaries of the redevelopment area, and added that the matter would be the subject of future public hearings.

Goldfarb told the group that the plan would have no effect on the city's parking assessment district but that "some investment would have to be made on additional parking."

Other buildings could be torn down for parking, and additional levels could be built on existing parking lots, he said.

At the end of the two-hour briefing, chamber president Jack E. Bucknum said the redevelopment plan had the chamber's "wholehearted support."

McGovern Opposes Nixon Defense Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern says he opposes the Nixon administration's proposal to build up U.S. defenses to be used to bargain more arms limitation agreements with the Soviet Union.

The national policy should be "to buy and build weapons according to military necessity, rather than on negotiating cheekiness," McGovern said Friday before the Joint Economic Committee.

Convicts Protected By Evidence Ruling

A Marin Superior Court judge ruled yesterday that — in at least one limited case — prison inmates are protected against unwarranted search and seizure just like anyone else.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ruled that San Quentin Prison officials should have obtained search warrants before taking blood samples and palm prints from inmates Earl Billy Justice and Lawrence Gibson, both 28.

He barred evidence in a case in which they are charged with stabbing another inmate and slaying a guard last July.

"The facts in this case squarely present the issue of whether the Fourth Amendment applies at all within prison walls. I have concluded that it does, except to the extent that its protections are subject to the board power of prison authorities to search . . .," the judge ruled.

Wilson said he believed it was the first time that a judge has granted prison inmates some measure of constitutional protection against unreasonable search, but he noted that prison officials are free to obtain a warrant and reobtain the evidence.

He said there is no question prison officials can search an inmate at any time for contraband and weapons. "In this case, however, no contraband or dangerous weapons were sought and no emergency situation existed which would render it impractical to obtain a warrant," he wrote in the decision.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said he will decide whether to appeal Wilson's ruling after reviewing the decision.

Although banning the evidence, the judge rejected a defense argument that it was inadmissable because excessive force was used. He said he was satisfied guards used no more force than necessary on Justice and Gibson.

The men are accused of stabbing inmate Herman Johnson, 25, in the prison exercise yard July 19, then killing guard Joe G. Davis as he guarded Johnson in the prison hospital two days later.

Johnson had been a witness against seven Soledad Prison inmates accused of murdering a prison guard.

Sato Resigns As Japan's Chief

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, saying he had accomplished most of what he set out to do, announced his resignation early Saturday after a record postwar tenure of almost eight years as head of Japan's government.

The announcement by the 71-year-old prime minister had been long anticipated, and four candidates already have lined up to succeed him.

Sato made the announcement of his retirement at a general meeting of his Liberal Democratic Party.

French Rail Tunnel Crash Kills 43

SOISSONS, France (UPI)—Two trains crowded with young holidaying weekenders crashed into a rockfall inside a nearly mile-long tunnel Friday night, killing and injuring scores of passengers and trapping others for hours.

Officials said at 2:30 p.m. today that the toll was 43 known dead and 70 injured, many seriously. The freak twin accidents occurred about 9 p.m. Friday.

An unknown number of dead and injured were still trapped in the twisted mass of steel and rubble inside the tunnel, according to officials at the scene of the disaster about 50 miles north of Paris.

One rescue official said screams of the injured and trapped passengers could be heard through the darkened tunnel.

"Get me out...get me out, for God's sake," a woman trapped under the weight of twisted steel pleaded with rescuers, the official said.

"The corpses are mainly young people — many, many students, shopgirls, army draftees heading home for their weekend," a railroad official said.

There were about 500 passengers on the two trains, according to officials.

Rescue workers said many of the injured still were conscious hours after the crash, screaming for help as 500 rescuers clawed at the wreckage with their bare hands, picks and shovels to try to free them.

"The horrible thing is to hear the women and children cry for help," a rescuer said. "We are only a few feet away, separated by a wall of steel and stone."

He said rescuers had to cut their way through a solid mass of wreckage about 30 feet high and 60 feet long to get to the dead and survivors.

Officials said it was too dangerous to use mechanical tools because of the danger of explosions or setting off new rockfalls in the 1,500 yard Verizy tunnel.

The first crash occurred about 9 p.m. A Paris-Laon train that officials said was packed with weekenders, mainly young people, slammed into what officials said was a wall of rock caused by a partial collapse of the ceiling. The train was traveling at 60 miles per hour.

A few minutes later, the Laon-Paris train heading in the opposite direction hit the rockfall and the wreck of the first train.

Officials said it was the worst rail disaster in 10 years when 39 persons died in the derailment of the Paris-Marseille express in 1962.

Transport Minister Jean Chamant flew to the scene and supervised rescue operations at the tunnel.

Chamant told newsmen after emerging from tne tunnel, "it is a dreadful spectacle. This is not the time for long statements," he added. He went off to morgues set up in neighboring hospitals.

The rescue work was made difficult because from time to time parts of the ceiling would peel off and fall onto the track.

The prospects of the first sunny weekend of the spring after weeks of rain and fog had crowded French weekend trains with holiday makers, a railroad spokesman said.

He said that as a result the two crashed trains hauled an extra coach each.

More than 500 men toiled inside the tunnel, strewn with debris of luggage, clothes, and other belongings around the wreckage.

The crash, rescuers said, occurred about 550 yards inside one of the entrances.

Two helicopters of the government Civil Emergency Service shuttled from rescue headquarters outside the tunnel to Paris or Soissons with blood serum supplies or oxygen bottles.

One of the engines was impaled into the ceiling of the tunnel while the coaches "literally welded one into another," an official said.

Preliminary investigation, according to rescuers, was that the double wreck was caused by the collapse of the tunnel ceiling.

Rescue teams worked from both ends of the tunnel. Operations were slowed by the necessity of shoring up the ceiling and walls in the tunnel, which had been undergoing repairs recently.

Kissinger Rests

HONOLULU (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger rested at an oceanside hotel today and worked with his aides before leaving Sunday for China.

Kissinger relaxed on the beach Friday at the Kahala Hilton Hotel, which has been a favorite stop for President Nixon during his visits.

"First of all, I want some rest and secondly, I don't want to talk to the press," Kissinger said on his arrival late last night.

Kissinger will leave Sunday in a military aircraft for Guam and then go on to Shanghai.

During his five-day trip to Peking, he is expected to discuss Vietnam and other international issues with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

Pub Is Bombed

BELFAST (UPI) — A 200-pound bomb demolished a Belfast pub, damaged shops for 100 yards and blew out windows 400 yards away today. The British Army said 14 persons suffered minor injuries despite a telephoned warning.

A spokesman said the bomb was touched off in an auto outside the Woodvale Arms pub on Belfast's Protestant Shankill Road. Most of the people were evacuated from surrounding buildings following a telephone call warning the blast was coming, a spokesman said.

In other developments, the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army IRA said it was considering a cease-fire appeal from the British government.

Helmet Is Found

PLEIKU, Vietnam (UPI) — Search parties today reported finding a helmet, apparently belonging to an American serviceman, amid the scattered wreckage of a Cathay Pacific jet which exploded in the air Thursday.

All 81 persons aboard perished when the jet tumbled into the South Vietnamese Central Highlands with 81 persons aboard.

But Airline and U.S. Air Force sources said no evidence has emerged of an air collision between the Convair 880 airliner and an allied war plane. The helmet with name attached, reported found by air line searchers, could belong to a long-fallen GI or a current air crew member.

Docks Stay Idle

LONDON (UPI) — Docks in major British ports remained idle for the second day today despite a surprise appeals court ruling averting the arrests of three longshoremen who boycotted the nation's new Industrial Relations Court.

The Court of Appeal yesterday quashed an order by the Industrial Relations Court for the trio's arrest, dealing the government's Industrial Relations Act its second major blow within a week.

But docks in London, Liverpool, Manchester and other cities remained idle. Spokesman for the 35,000 of the nation's 44,000 dockers who walked off the job yesterday to protest the arrest order said the men would decide Monday whether to return to work.

The ports normally operate during weekends.

Nixon's Weekend

GRAND CAY, Bahamas (UPI) — President Nixon, joined by two close friends, began a weekend of beachcombing and boating today at a secluded island estate in the British Bahamas.

Nixon flew here unexpectedly Friday afternoon after bidding farewell in Washington to visitng Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez and posthumously conferring the nation's highest civilian award to John Paul Vann, a prominent senior adviser killed in Vietnam.

Nixon has been scheduled to visit his vacation compound on Key Biscayne, Fla., about 130 miles to the south, but changed his plans because of the prospect for better weather in the Bahamas.

Arrest Follows Tip

HANOVER, Germany (UPI) — A telephoned tip by the teacher at whose apartment left-wing terrorist Ulrike Meinhof was staying led to the capture of the revolutionist and her bodyguard, police said yesterday.

Miss Meinhof, who became known in the 1960s as a writer of leftwing essays and television plays, answered the door when police came to the apartment Thursday.

Police said she appeared on the verge of mental and physical collapse and no longer resembled the photographs used on wanted posters and in newspapers.

The tenant at whose apartment Miss Meinhof was staying was not immediately indentified by police.

Police refused to say where they are keeping Miss Meinhof, a journalist who left her twin daughters to become mother of a lawless band that terrorized a nation.

Life At Hard Labor

TOKYO (UPI) — A South Korean who held 13 hostages four days at a resort inn after killing two Japanese policemen was sentenced today to life imprisonment at hard labor.

The district court in Shizuoka, 96 miles southwest of Tokyo, announced the verdict on Hiro Kim, 45, who had claimed that he shot the two policemen for pressing him too hard on debts he owned.

Kim fled to the Sumata Hotspring resort and holed up there holding 13 owners and guests of the inn as hostages.

Kim was armed with a rifle and several sticks of dynamite during his four-day siege in February, 1968. He said he was protesting racial discrimination in Japan.

Foster Parent Ruling 1st Under State Family Act

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)— Three children have been allowed by a Superior Court to stay with their foster parents of the past six years, rather than being returned to their natural mother.

In the first such decision under California's 1970 Family Act, Judge William J. McGuiness ruled it was in the "best interests" of the three children to remain with their foster family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Darnell, of nearby Concord.

The children, Scott, 11, Richard, 9, and Wendy, 8 were born during the marriage of Linda and Robert McKenzie.

After the divorce, neither Linda nor Robert McKenzie were able to care for the children, and they were cared for by the Darnells.

But Linda McKenzie later got a steady job as a secretary and last year married Paul Rosenberg. She removed her children from the Darnell home.

During the court hearing, Mrs. Darnell said her family was devoted to the children, who participated fully in camping and fishing trips, parties and regular church activities with their other two children.

The children testified they considered the Darnells their "real parents, and they wanted to stay with them.

The Darnells filed to get the youngsters back under the new family act, which provides for a court to award custody to a non-parent in whose home the child has found a "wholesome and stable environment."

Judge McGuiness found, after weighing evidence of the children, psychologists, psychiatrists, teachers and social workers, that "the entire record weighed heavily, if not exclusively, in favor of the foster parents."

Ploy By China Fails To Get U.S. Reaction

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The American delegation to the U.N. environment conference was credited today with a shrewd tactical move in refusing to answer renewed Chinese charges that the United States is a major polluter of the environment of Indochina.

The Chinese repeated accusations they made earlier in the 11-day gathering at the closing session Friday night, then sat in their section in black Mao tunics apparently waiting to see whether the United States would reply.

Had the Americans taken up the issue, it might have reopened the arguments in closing meetings that had preceded the adoption of a declaration on the human environment. In these arguments the Chinese had resisted a ban on nuclear tests and had demanded destruction of all weapons of mass destruction.

At its final business session Friday, the conference approved the declaration by acclamation and then incorporated into it a clause calling in effect for discussions on the banning of nuclear weapons but not specifically naming biological and chemical weapons, as the Chinese had urged.

Earlier in the conference approval was given to the establishment of a U.N. Environment Council with an initial fund of $100 million to supervise U.N. activities in the field of ecology and a plan calling for monitoring of the oceans and forests and a prediction and warning system for natural disasters.

Muskie, Humphrey Camps Optimistic

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Sen. George S. McGovern is far from clinching the Democratic presidential nomination, according to Republicans, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and campaign aides of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Muskie, the Democratic front-runner before primaries began in March, predicted there would be "surprises" next month at the national convention.

"The favorite going into a convention doesn't always win," Muskie said Friday in Los Angeles.

Mike Maloney, deputy campaign chairman for Humphrey's political operations, said the Humphrey camp calculated that McGovern would peak with 1,354 of the 1,509 delegate votes needed for nomination.

"They don't have a lock on it," Maloney said. "They don't have it and they know it."

Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole said Muskie refused to endorse McGovern and Democratic governors felt "threatened."

Campaigning in behalf of President Nixon in Zion, Ill., Dole said Friday that McGovern has more committed delegates than any Democrat, but that the label "favorite" to win the nomination "may be the wrong word to use."

McGovern strategists, however, were planning to pick up at least half of the 150 delegates to be selected today in six state conventions—Connecticut, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and Utah.

McGovern's camp said gains in these states plus some 200 of 278 delegates to be selected in New York's primary Tuesday would leave him 150 votes short of nomination.

Wallace Strong, To Have Spine Operation Tomorrow

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Encouraged by an overall gain in strength, doctors have decided to operate Sunday on Gov. George C. Wallace to remove a bullet that has been lodged near his spine since an assassination attempt May 15.

At Wallace's request, the operation will take place at Holy Cross Hospital where he has been recuperating since he was shot at a nearby Laurel, Md. shopping center while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

If no complications arise from the operation, Wallace's chances of attending the Democratic National Convention beginning July 10 will be much improved, Billy Joe Camp, the governor's press secretary, said Friday.

"If the recovery process is good and normal, we fully anticipate the governor to be able to make the trip to Miami for the convention," Camp said.

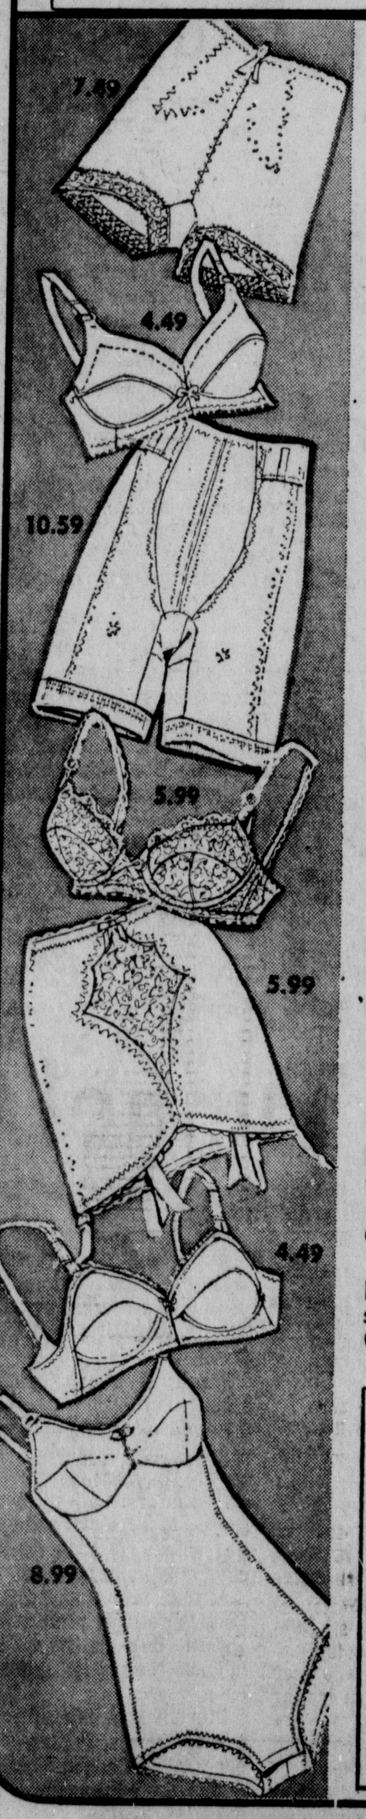

Camp would not speculate on prospects of Wallace recovering use of his legs.

Council Setback On Cotati Hub Closure

Members of the Cotati City Council, seeking to close the community's central hub to motor vehicles, have suffered a setback.

Petitions with 131 signatures opposing the project at La Plaza hub were presented to the city council Thursday night, according to City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen. The Cotati Fire Protection District also objected to the rerouting, citing possible dangers in the movement of emergency vehicles.

The council, which went on record by a 3-2 vote last month in favor of the project, decided Thursday to defer further action until July 6.

Salfen said the cost of the rerouting, which would leave the hub free to bicycle and pedestrian traffic, has been estimated at $2,594.

In other business, the council asked for a cost study of new tests of an old city well and of drilling a new well as part of a program to obtain more water for the town.

The council, on the advice of a geologist, has held up a plan approved by the former council to renovate the community's old well on East Sierra Avenue. Although bids have been received for the project, the council has asked they be held for an extended period while further review is made.

Hospital Chief's Son Sentenced

The 18-year-old son of Marin General Hospital's administrator was sentended yesterday to work 10 days for a park and recreation department and had his driver's license suspended for six months after pleading guilty to drunken driving and possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed Raymond K. Bolinger Jr. on one year of unsupervised probation as part of a plea bargain in Marin Municipal Court. A third misdemeanor count of possessing marijuana was dismissed.

The high school student, who lives with his parents in San Rafael, was stopped May 26 on Highway 37 by the Californai Highway Patrol because his car was weaving.

Patrolmen said he tried to discard a red box containing suspected hashish after he failed a roadside sobriety test and was handcuffed. A pipe was found during a search.

Innocent Plea To Armed Robbery

Mark Charles Jandura, 20, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday to an armed robbery that netted more than $9,000.

Jandura was arrested Thursday on suspicion of being one of a three-man holdup team that took $9,400 from two prospective car buyers who were lured to a Mill Valley location to inspect the vehicles.

At the end of Greenwood Way where Jandura and a second man said they had two Corvettes for sale, a third man greeted Ronald Perez, 25, of San Anselmo and William Graham, 27, of Indians, with a rifle.

The three then took the money, according to police. Jandura was arrested later at his home and police have a warrant for the arrest of Tony Luchessi on an armed robbery charge. The third robber has not been identified.

A June 27 preliminary hearing for Jandura was set.

Clark Criticizes Marijuana Laws

SEATTLE (UPI) —Retired Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark said Friday he sees no reason for laws against marijuana, prostitution, drunkeness and gambling.

He referred to prohibition as an example of an unrealistic law and then challenged contemporary laws of a similar nature.

"With experts telling us marijuana is no worse than whisky, I don't know why we don't have marijuana on the (same) control system," he said.

VD Clinic At College Approved

The Marin County Board of Supervisors agreed yesterday to cosponsor an evening venereal disease clinic at the College of Marin.

The student-backed proposal was endorsed earlier this month by the Marin Community College District board, which agreed to provide the facilities if the county provided the staff.

Approval of the free clinic came as supervisors began their third day of budget deliberations on a record county budget of $47.4 million.

County cost of the treatment clinic will be about $8,400. The facility will provide a doctor and nurse two evenings a week.

The clinic, which also will serve as a training aid for nursing students, will operate during the 35-week school year.

Drug Agents At Explo '72

DALLAS (UPI)—The police officer in charge of security at the 100,000-delegate Explo '72 says he will have undercover agents planted at today's free music festival because of possible drug activity.

"Not that we think the kids would be involved," Deputy Chief J. M. Souter said Friday. "This is the best bunch of kids I have ever seen. But we do think some outsiders might slip in and try to do some dealing."

The week-long Christian training conference ends today with a "Jesus Rock" music festival estimated to bring in as many as 150,000 persons. The gathering, featuring Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson and other music stars, was expected to cover several downtown city blocks.

San Rafael Man Hurt In Accident

Charles Tate, 35, of 814 Hacienda Way, San Rafael, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple bruises received in an accident yesterday, according to hospital reports.

Details of the accident were not available.

GRAUMAN'S COMES TO NORTH BEACH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Topless dancers, in their own version of a Hollywood tradition, left imprints of their naked selves on wet cement Friday. Women's liberationists charged it was an affront to "women's potential as human beings." The dancers were led by Carol Doda, whose measurements are 44-23-46.

Davy Rosenberg, the chief publicist for the girls, said San Francisco needed a Grauman Theater sidewalk.

The sidewalk in front of Grauman's in Hollywood has foot impressions of stars and starlets.

About 20 women's liberationists protested the cement ceremony in the city's North Beach section.

"It's sad to see beautiful women acting like boobs," said Margo St. James, leader of the protesters.

Conviction In Welfare Fraud Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday convicted a college student from Marin of welfare fraud after four hours of deliberation.

Herbert Cosme, 22, of Greenbrae, was found guilty of receiving $747 in welfare overpayment last year by reporting only his own income from a part-time job, but not his wife's income of $462 a month.

The overpayments were made between January and May. Meanwhile, Cosme faces charges in San Francisco for receiving unwarranted aid between April and October last year.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams said Cosme also had more than $3,000 in the bank at one point last year.

Cosme was a student at San Francisco State College studying to be a wrestling coach when the fraud occurred, Hyams said.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson set sentencing for July 19.

Bad Check Suspect To Superior Court

Accord On Novato Street Islands

The Novato City Council, taking a renewed look at a proposal that the city assume development and maintenance of landscaping in traffic islands, gave in somewhat yesterday.

The proposal, raised by San Marin and Marin Country Club Estates homeowners last month, arose during discussion of the proposed $32,515 street tree and parkway maintenance budget for 1971-72.

Councilmen, meanwhile, completed their fifth study session on the $2,831,530 preliminary city budget for next year, making relatively few changes. The spending program would require a one-cent increase in the city tax rate to 96 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

"I am willing to maintain all median islands in public streets," said Mayor F. Wayne Sartain. "If it is a public street, it should be maintained publicly."

Sartain is a resident of San Marin where residents are taxed for maintenance of the median islands along San Marin Drive.

The San Marin Improvement Association submitted a petition last month with about 700 signatures requesting the city take over maintenance of the islands.

Previously, residents of the Marin County Club Estates and Domingo Canyon had petitioned the council to provide landscaping, an irrigation system and maintenance of islands along Ignacio Boulevard in their area.

If the city assumed maintenance of the islands on San Marin Drive, it would cost about $13,400 a year, Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps estimated.

Councilman George C. Quesada said taking over landscaping in San Marin Drive medians would open the way for requests from other areas for city-maintained median strips.

It would create an inequity if the city took over the costs in San Marin and not along Sunset Parkway, where residents are assessed for maintenance, he said.

Discussing the proposed Ignacio Boulevard project, Sartain said the landscaping would benefit all residents who travel the street, not just nearby citizens.

Councilman Dorothy Young noted Ignacio Boulevard will provide the main access to Indian Valley Colleges.

Ultimately, councilmen tentatively placed $1,500 in the budget for the Ignacio Boulevard project, with the expectation that the residents would contribute matching funds.

During discussion of the $135,125 planning department budget, councilmen commented on, but didn't cut, $5,000 earmarked for a California Division of Mines and Geology study of earthquake hazards in city's "bay plains" area.

Quesada questioned the study's priority, and Planning Director Brian W. Mattson said: "I think the bay plain is where Novato has the greatest potential for growth."

Quesada said: "I think there are more pressing areas then the bay plains, we have a Burdell fault and Indian Valley fault."

Quesada also proposed that Marin County pay a share of the cost of hiring an environmental consultant, estimated at $13,000, to work on the Novato Area General Plan. He noted the plan includes unincorporated territory.

The council placed $1,500 in the planning department budget to cover overtime pay during the year after Mattson said all extra work couldn't be covered by compensatory time off because of the department's work load.

At the end of the day, budget additions were $1,500 in planning and $1,500 tentatively in street tree and parkway maintenance. The cuts were $400 in public works-engineering and $513 in parks maintenance.

During a session Thursday night, the council held to a $526,850 budget for the police department, including hiring of two additional police officers.

The council, meanwhile, held a closed session last night to instruct City Mgr. Charles A. Brown, its representative in salary negotiations with employees.

Councilmen were scheduled today to tour the areas of proposed street and park capital improvement projects.

Another budget session is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday at the community house, followed by a public hearing on the preliminary document at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The Novato City Employees Association is expected to appear before the council Wednesday on the salary issue.

Late Summer Postal Service Review Set

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Postal rates are up — and they're going to stay that way.

What's more — they may go even higher in a year or so. Chances are that for many mailers they will.

Those are the ramifications of the postal-rate ruling by the Postal Rate Commission, an adjunct of the year-old U.S. Postal Service. Fourteen months ago it began looking into the Postal Service's request for higher rates. The rate commission has ruled that the Postal Service could not have rates as high as it wanted in all cases — but that it could have much higher ones, by and large, than existed previously.

Most Americans won't notice the difference. Under provisions of present law they've been paying the higher rates for about a year now — 11 cents for airmail, eight cents for first class and so on.

Confirmation of these rate increases comes against a backdrop of continued public criticism of the Postal Service, and especially of postal delivery. As this public criticism continues Congress is beginning to become edgy about its decision of two years ago to replace the wholly government-run Post Office, over which Congress has some direct control, with this quasi-government Postal Service — over which it has little control.

Some congressional backers of the Postal Service, such as Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., warn the public against expecting relatively "instant" miracles. They hold that the Postal Service is making many of the right moves to improve its delivery, but that this will take time to permit the construction of numerous new postal processing buildings.

Nonetheless, these explanations do not always soothe Americans faced with rising mail rates, for, in their view, service that is no better.

The Postal Service has four options in the face of the rate commission ruling:

1. It can accept without qualification the commission's report and put its rates into effect.

2. Accept under protest and petition the courts for higher rates.

3. Begin a long process of trying to over-ride the rate commission rulings, which would require a unanimous vote on each rate increase by the Postal Service's board of directors.

4. Or do nothing for 30 days — in which case the rates would revert to their old, much lower levels.

Everyone knows the Postal Service won't do the latter.

Most knowledgeable sources here think it will do the first — accept the commission's rate rulings without protest. The reason is that the various categories into which mail is divided are going to be reviewed, beginning in August. It will be a sweeping review, conducted by the same Postal Rate Commission.

It would be a hollow victory for the Postal Service to create needless animosity by seeking yet-higher postal rates for classes of mail that are soon to be abolished.

As a result of this review some new types of mail surely will emerge — perhaps extra-cost mail with a guaranteed overnight delivery, for instance. Then the Postal Service will be able to say — Okay, we have several new classes of mail. We estimate that to make them self-supporting their rates will have to be...

The effect, it is acknowledged here, almost surely would be to boost rates for many users of the mails. But they would be receiving specific, and presumably better, types of mail service. Thus, the Postal Service could argue, mail users would be receiving better value for their postal dollar — and should pay more.

Such a thorough review of the rate structure will take months — possibly a year or more. Meanwhile, the Postal Service is trying desperately to hold down expenses so that it can, as Congress requires, live largely within its income.

For instance, on March 29 Elmer T. Klassen, postmaster general, ordered a freeze on hiring, and other economies. He said it was an effort to prevent a request for another rate increase next January.

When the Postal Rate Commission begins its August meetings, it will look hard at the welter of special categories within second-class mail (newspapers and magazines). Many have their own special rates; many were established by members of Congress who sought to help a specific paper or magazine.

The commission plans to simplify this complicated rate structure. In its ruling Monday it asked the Postal Service to be ready with some ideas in August when the reclassification investigation begins.

Second-class mail, and the effect rate hikes have on it, also will be scrutinized in a House Postal Subcommittee next week. Chaired by Representative Udall, the subcommittee will be resuming its hearings on operations of the rate commission — particularly with respect to the commission's rulings on second-class mail rates.

Several other new classes of mail will be considered at the August rate commission hearings, including:

1. Confidential service. For mail which must be delivered without fail — such as bills — but which does not require the speediest delivery. And which cannot be misdelivered (it should not be opened by anyone but the person to whom it's addressed).

2. Fast, personal service for that letter to Uncle Charlie telling him which train to meet day after tomorrow. You want to be certain it arrives quickly. Much business mail falls in this category, too.

3. News magazines and newspapers. Speed and consistency are important.

4. Magazines other than news magazines — hobby, gardening, and so on. Consistency is important — speed is not. A lower rate might be charged than for news magazines.

Stinson Beach First-Aid Class

The Stinson Beach Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a three-session first-aid course on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the community center.

Presented by the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the three classes will be held from 7 to 10 p.m., according to Otto Reutinger, a member of the Stinson Beach Fire Protection District board.

The course is designed to train persons in the community to serve with the Stinson Beach volunteer ambulance service, he said.

strike announcement Friday by Capt. Ola Forsberg, president of IFALPA, said in a statement that during the meetings "it was the understanding that action would be suspended pending the meeting of the Security Council and that the secretary general would meet again the representatives of IFALPA end ITWF (International Transport Workers Federation) following the Council meeting."

But, Waldheim said, "the oneday shutdown was announced without any further contact with the United Nations in spite of efforts by the secretary general's office to contact the representatives of IFALPA and ITWF..."

IFALPA wants the Security Council sanctions against nations that harbor sky pirates.

The request for an injunction stopping the strike was filed before Federal Judge George Hart in Washington by the Air Transport Association, (ATA) on behalf of all U.S. scheduled airlines. ATA President Stuart G. Tipton said that although "no antihijacking step is more important than eliminating safe havens to which a hijacker can flee" the organization felt the strike "will serve no purpose."

Novato Police Jail Oaklander

An Oakland man has been arrested by Novato police on a San Rafael warrant for suspicion of grand theft.

Floyd Everett Raley, 27, posted $5,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

He is charged with taking a $900 coating pump from the Frank Fullam Painting Co., 77 Larkspur Street, San Rafael, on March 24.

Oregon Man Held As Burglary Suspect

San Anselmo police booked an Oregon man into county jail at 7:35 a.m. today on suspicion of burglary and possession of marijuana.

Edward Van Kirk Hunt, 34, of Blue River, Ore., was held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court on Monday. Details of the arrest were not available from police.

Jewelry Taken From Sausalito Shop

Jewelry, including necklaces, bracelets and pins worth $540, were stolen Sunday from the Xanadu Gallery, 691 Bridgeway, Sausalito, police reported.

The building was entered through a window, officers said.

North Pounded By U.S. Planes

SAIGON (UPI)--U.S. Army troops virtually ended their ground combat role in Vietnam Saturday, but warplanes demonstrated America's still powerful presence by hitting the north in near-record numbers.

The U.S command—in a move that caught many military men by surprise—announced the deactivation of the 3rd Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division, the last Army ground brigade in the war zone and guardian of the vital Saigon area.

The announcement came a day after the deactivation of the 196th Infantry Brigade, which has protected the big American Da Nang air base, 370 miles north of Saigon.

"We didn't find out about this until today," one U.S. Army officer said. "It caught us by surprise. We still have a lot of details to work out."

A command spokesman said there were three Army combat battalions and two artillery batteries still in the war zone. The estimated 2,500 men are at Bien Hoa, 14 miles north of Saigon, Da Nang, and Phu Bai, 392 miles north of the capital, providing perimeter security for U.S. units.

Military sources said most, if not all, of the remaining units—formerly part of the 3rd and 196th Brigades—were expected to be deactivated soon. Usually, all units in a brigade "stand down" when the parent unit breaks up.

The latest moves left one major Army unit—the 1st Aviation Brigade, a helicopter outfit that supports South Vietnamese ground troops and services remaining U.S. war zone troops.

Some U.S. officers said the deactivations reflected American confidence in the South Vietnamese forces. Others noted that U.S. planes have struck in record numbers recently. There are still more than 150,000 American men involved in the war.

The deactivations marked the Army's diminishing role. The Air Force and Navy passed the Army two weeks ago in numbers.

The majority of the 65,000 Air Force men are based outside of Vietnam — in Thailand and Guam. Most of the 44,700 Navy men are aboard ships in the Gulf of Tonkin. Nearly all the 40,900 Army men have desk jobs in rear areas.

The U.S. command said last week total armed strength in Vietnam (excluding the forces at sea and in nearby countries) was 61,900, still well over the 49,000 figure President Nixon has ordered by the end of this month.

American Air Force, Navy, and Marine fighter-bombers flew 320 strikes over North Vietnam Friday, just under Tuesday's 340 record. They limited bombing mostly to the North Vietnamese southern panhandle, carefully avoiding Hanoi during the visit of Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny.

Seventh Fleet planes hit the Dong Phong Thuong railroad bridge, 75 miles north of Hanoi, in the closest raid to the capital. They dropped two spans and also destroyed or damaged 30 boxcars.

A Crusader reconnaissance plane from the carrier Midway was hit by antiaircraft Friday in the same general area. The pilot flew over the gulf, bailed out, and was rescued by a helicopter.

In the day's most important raids, Air Force Phantom fighter-bombers whisked up the panhandle and bombarded three MIG airfields, Bai Thuong, Khe Phat, and Quan Lang. American warplanes have made three major raids on North Vietnamese airfields in the last week.

A U.S. heavy cruiser and five destroyers Friday bombarded 15 North Vietnamese coastal defense outposts.

In South Vietnam, Saigon infantrymen jumped from whirling helicopters into Tan Canh, 280 miles north of Saigon, and rescued nine government soldiers from a makeshift North Vietnamese work camp.

North Vietnamese troops backed by tanks captured Tan Canh April 24 when the government defenders broke and ran. A small group of U.S. advisers in the town tried to hold off the tanks but eventually were forced to fly out on rescue choppers.

A spokesman said the troops in the Saturday rescue spent seven hours in the town, and brought out 49 civilian sympathizers as well as the soldiers, while killing 24 Communists. U.S. B52 bombers blasted the jungles around Tan Canh before the landing.

Government infantrymen reported killing 168 Communists in stiff fighting early Saturday near the Mekong Delta town of Tuyen Binh.

Chalice Found

BANGOR, Maine (UPI)—A $9,000 chalice studded with diamonds and rubies that had been stolen June 1 from St. John's Episcopal Church was found Friday on a road in the woods.

reevaluated at a reception center, the department's review board will decide where to confine him, Park said.

When first brought to San Quentin after his marathon trial in Los Angeles, Sirhan was kept isolated from other Death Row inmates because prison authorities feared the inmates might try to avenge the Kennedy slaying.

He was moved to a new Death Row unit early this year, and has mingled uneventfully with 15 other condemned men, Park said.

Woodacre Pool Swim Classes

Annual swimming classes for children at least 6 years of age will be held at the Woodacre Improvement Club pool June 26 through July 8, according to club member Barbara Simon.

Classes will be from 9 a.m. to noon under the direction of Jane Halterman, a Red Cross water safety instructor. Registration will be at the opening day class, Mrs. Simon said.

A class for housewives will be taught at 11:30 a.m. during the same period, and a class in junior life-saving will be held evenings. Mrs. Simon reported. Details can be obtained from Mrs. Simon, Redwood Drive, Woodacre.

Design Contest For Wall Mural

West Marin aritsts under age 30 are invited to submit designs for a mural for the wall of the new Lagoon Recreation Center in Stinson Beach.

A prize of $100 is being offered for the winning entry, which will be selected by the center's board of directors at 5 p.m. July 4. The designs, which may be on any theme, will be exhibited during the center's open house July 1-4.

Persons who wish to compete should get in touch with Mrs. Tadlock by June 25.

Assault, Molesting Charges Are Filed

Only misdemeanor charges of assault and battery and molesting a 15-year-old girl have been filed against Norbert Bruno Zancha, 40, of San Rafael.

Zancha was arrested Monday by San Rafael police on suspicion of assault to rape the girl.

TONEY INFANT

Funeral was held today at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael, for James C. Toney, infant son of Daniel and Kathleen Toney of 271 Clorinda Avenue, San Rafael.

The 5-month-old boy died Thursday in a local hospital after a brief illness. He was a native of Marin County.

MRS. NIXON

Agnes McKiernan Nixon of Belvedere died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Nixon, a widow, was born in San Jose and lived all her life in California, moving to Belvedere five years ago to live with her daughter, Alberta Pflueger of 30 Peninsula Avenue. She also is survived by three grandchildren.

Mass was held today in St. Patrick's Church, San Jose, followed by burial in Calvary Cemetery, San Jose.

Town Meeting In Stinson Beach

A proposed waste treatment and disposal system for Stinson Beach will be the subject of a town meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Stinson Beach community center.

Sponsored by the Stinson Beach County Water District, the discussion will focus on preliminary financing proposals, aspects of environmental impact, engineering plans, scope of the system and current status of grant applications.

District director John L. Jones said the meeting has been called to "answer the many questions which the community must have" about the proposed $3.5 million project.

CONGRATULATIONS — Chicago Mayor Richard Daley (right) is congratulated by his son and fellow delegate, John, after the mayor again was elected chairman of the Illinois delegation of the Democratic National Convention. The election was yesterday.

(UPI Telephoto)

Stevenson Gives In —Daley Wins Again

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—The forces of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley flexed their political muscles, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III gave up and Daley swept to his fifth chairmanship of the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

The pattern emerged Friday as the delegation met to pick its officers. Stevenson, who is an "at-large" delegate, was at the front of a challenge to Daley's leadership.

However, before the meeting formally got underway, Stevenson capitulated, charging Daley's minions had resorted to "recrimination" and "reprisals" in their efforts to win the mayor's election.

"A majority of the delegates, seeking unity and fairness, offered me their support for the chairmanship..." Stevenson said. "I mean no disrespect for Mayor Daley when I say that tactics used on his behalf disrupt the party and frustrate the rising expectations of many for a voice in the conduct of their own affairs."

He then withdrew from consideration as chairman and later cast his half vote for Daley.

All that remained was for Daley to sweep aside the light opposition of Chicago delegate Mrs. Natalie Forman. That proved no tough assignment and the final vote was 133 1-2 for Daley, 25 1-2 for Mrs. Forman. Eleven delegates did not vote.

Daley then denied that there is division within the delegation.

"There's no division in Illinois. It's only the media and self-seeking people who want to talk about division," he said.

The delegates, the mayor said, "agree on many more areas than we disagree and our agreements are more important than our disagreements."

He did not mention the storm of protest which nearly drowned out his nominating speech, delivered by House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate of Anna.

Nor did he mention Stevenson's abortive challenge to his leadership.

Nor did he mention the ruling of the national party that his move last week to add 10 extra "at-large" delegates to Illinois' slate was in violation of party rules.

After the voting was over, the delegation elected Choate vice chairman without opposition. They then compromised, electing a Daley supporter and a delegate who refrained from voting for Daley as cosecretaries. Both are black women.

Prosecution Rests In Alioto Trial

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The government Friday rested its case against San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, former state Attorney General John J. O'Connell and his former assistant, George Faler.

The defense will move for a judgment of acquittal Monday. Alioto, Faler and O'Connell will ask U.S. District Court Judge Ray McNichols to throw out nine counts of bribery, conspiracy and mail fraud against them on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Reagan Will Trim Raises For Faculty

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday one of the cuts he would be making in the $7.9 billion state budget was a paring of a 12.5 per cent pay raise for faculty.

The raise for professors at the University of California and in the California State University and Colleges system had been included in the 1972-73 budget which was approved by the legislature this week.

Reagan did not say how much he would trim the salary increase, the first in two years for professors, but he originally proposed a 7.5 per cent raise.

The governor made the comment when he arrived here for a meeting of the UC Board of Regents.

UC President Charles Hitch made no mention of Reagan's remarks but saved his criticism for the $360.6 million UC operating budget approved by the legislature which he called "a little worse" than this year's budget.

The regents ended their meeting here by electing Dean A. Watkins, 49, as chairman of the board, succeeding William French Smith.

Pat Is Honored

HOUSTON (UPI)—Pat Nixon, who taught high school business education courses, Friday was awarded an honorary lifetime membership in the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA).

Hamilton's Old T-93 Burned In Exercise

Building T-93 at Hamilton Air Force Base, alternately saved and sacrificed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, was partially burned last night as a training exercise.

The southern third of the building burned for more than two hours, starting at 7 p.m., during a joint fire-fighting exercise by the Novato and base fire departments.

Although the Air Force said it had permission for the blaze from the Bay Area Air Pollution Control Board, many nearby residents called the base objecting to smoke from the fire, and questioning the need to burn the building.

Built as a temporary structure in 1945, it was slated for demolition 24 years ago, according to the Air Force.

It has been considered for use as a passenger terminal if the base handles joint military-civilian traffic.

The county board of supervisors won a halt in demolition of the building early this month after the Air Force had begun razing operations. Following word that the building would be unsuitable for passenger use, the supervisors yesterday agreed that a portion could be destroyed without wrecking plans for a civilian airlines terminal.

3 Brothers Plead Their Innocence

Three Novato brothers — arrested during a drug investigation that began when a bag full of water and two goldfish were hurled at two Novato policemen — have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

A preliminary hearing and a hearing on a motion to suppress evidence in the case are set for July 11 for Pat, Michael D. and Kevin J. Gingher.

Pat is charged with having marijuana, Michael with having it for sale and Kevin with a misdemeanor, having narcotics paraphernalia.

They were arrested May 28 following the water-throwing incident at the Western Country Fair carnival grounds.

In a related case, Donald Paul Seaman, 37, and Judith Elaine Neil, 28, are charged with having marijuana for sale at the fair. Seaman also had a list of clients in his pocket, police said.

The Ginghers were arrested at their home after police searched Seaman's home and found more marijuana.

Poole Convicted As Police Killer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 20-year-old handyman has been convicted on charges of killing a police sergeant and wounding a patrolman in a street gunfight.

Junious Poole was convicted Friday night by a Superior Court jury of 10 men and two women who deliberated four hours before returning the verdict.

Sgt. Code Beverly was killed Jan. 14 while on street patrol. His partner, patrolman James Bailey, was wounded.

Grand Jury Bill Goes To Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill allowing a city or county to select a second grand jury is now before the Assembly after gaining approval in the Senate.

The measure by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was passed Friday on a 24-2 vote. Sens. Clark L. Bradley, R-San Jose, and H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, cast the only "no" votes.

Car Wreck Dims Parts Of Petaluma

A one-car accident south of Petaluma at 12:30 a.m. today blacked out part of the city for 15 minutes and slightly injured three Petaluma youths, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The blackout affected Hillcrest Hospital, where the youths were taken by ambulance. The hospital switched to auxiliary power without any complications.

The patrol said the car driven by Larry Wayne Potter, 17, of 104 Eighth Street, failed to make a curve on Sunnyslope Road, struck a utility pole guy wire, then overturned in an adjoining field.

Potter was treated for a head cut and released. Passengers Randy Brucker, 19, of 40 Jess Avenue, and Michael J. Valente, 16, of 103 East Court, also were treated for minor injuries.

Reagan Appointees

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Clarence H. Eisenbeisz of San Diego and Maurice F. Smith of Sacramento were appointed Friday to the state Board of Barber Examiners by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Rapid City Continues Its Search

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI)—It has been a week since torrential rains crumbled the Canyon Lake Dam, sending tons of water rampaging through the Rapid City area. But the search for the dead continues.

Pennington County Sheriff Glen Best said he was hoping for volunteers to come in and help patrol rural areas of the county. Best's men worked throughout last weekend and have been working a 5 a.m. to 8 p.m. shift all week.

The official death toll stood at 209 today and about 500 persons were still listed as missing.

The total damage figure from the flash flood that ripped the area June 9 remained at about $100 million dollars.

The Florida White House announced Friday that some 300 workers from more than 30 federal agencies were assisting in relief operations in the flood-ravaged area.

President Nixon sent a telegram to the Red Cross Chairman E. Roland Harriman in New York commending Red Cross efforts to aid down-and-out survivors of the Rapid City flood.

"On behalf of a grateful nation I want to commend you and every Red Cross worker and volunteer for the manner in which you have responded so quickly and fully to the tragic floods in Rapid City," the President said.

Nixon pledged his support to a Red Cross drive to raise $5 million for the Red Cross to replace funds depleted by relief operations.

So far, $178,000 has been raised for relief operations in Rapid City, ranging from a $60,000 donation from Boeing Aircraft to $5 and $10 donations from individuals.

Overcast skies forced postponement of a massive spraying program to prevent the spread of diseases carried by flies breeding in sewage-filled pools left by the receding flood waters.

A 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew that has been in effect in the city since last Saturday was extended through Sunday morning.

Mrs. Richard Nixon was to attend memorial services for the dead and the missing Sunday at the Stevens High School gymnasium.

Open-Sky Policy On Satellite Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has approved an "open skies" policy that would permit almost anyone with the money and technical skill to launch satellites for domestic use.

A FCC spokesman predicted a usable satellite system would be in operation by late next year or early 1974.

The system would transmit signals for television, telephone, telegraph and computer data.

Although the FCC policy approved on a 4-3 vote Friday opened the possibility of satellite launching by almost anyone, in reality it will involve less than a dozen major corporations.

The "open skies" policy was recommended by the White House in 1970, but three of President Nixon's appointees—Chairman Dean Burch and Commissioners Charlotte T. Reid and Richard Wiley—cast the dissenting votes.

A statement from the three dissenters was not expected until next week, but a spokesman said they had disagreed on grounds the order was too restrictive against American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT&T) and the Communications Satellite Corp. (Comsat).

AT&T said in reaction, "It is competitively and economically unsound to prevent the Bell System or any other carrier from using all available technology to furnish services to the public."

The FCC majority ruled that AT&T may use satellites initially only for telephone services under normal conditions. AT&XT and Comsat had filed for permission to be the exclusive joint operators of the only system.

Comsat also opposed the decision, saying "a freely competitive approach without restrictions...would have permitted Comsat to give the American people the full benefits of satellite technology to which they are entitled."

There are eight pending applications for a satellite service.

The applicants were Western Union Telegraph Co.; Hughes Aircraft and GTE Service Corp.; Western Tele-Communications Inc.; RCA Global Communications Inc. and RCA Alaska Communications Inc.; Comsat and AT&T; Comsat alone; MCI Lockheed Satellite Corp., and Fairchild Industries Inc.

(If you're not too good at math, that works out to a deferred payment price of $2889.12 which includes a finance charge at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 14.35%.)

Along the way, you get a little financial help from the car.

It uses about 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts.

It doesn't need antifreeze because the engine's air-cooled.

And although it does need gas, it doesn't need very much of it (usually a gallon every 25 miles or so.)

Of course, you might be the kind that likes to pay cash for everything.

In that case, the cash price is $2,188.70.

Long-Hair Barbers Move Ahead On Plan

Marin's long-haired barbers, dissatisfied with restrictions and rules of the more conservative Barbers Union Local 582, decided last night to continue with formation of their own organization. They met in a San Rafael shop.

Joseph S. Tozzi, owner of the Hair Care Hut in Novato and dissident president of Local 582, was elected interim chairman while the group prepares by-laws and other formalities.

The dissident barber shop owners do not want to renew their contract with Local 582, which will expire July 15, because they disagree with the 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. shop hours rule and other policies, Tozzi said.

Asked whether changing styles might not revert to short hair for men and put the long-haired faction out of business, Tozzi declared, "The pendulum will swing both ways, but long hair's here to stay."

He said another organizational meeting will be held next week, with time and place yet to be decided.

Laundry Man Free On Bond

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)— LaSaunders Hudson, a dry cleaner who protested the state sales tax by holding a revenue agent hostage for eight hours, walked out of city jail Friday afternoon free on bond.,

Hudson, 29, was bound over to the Shelby County grand jury on charges of assault to commit murder and carrying a pistol after a two-hour preliminary hearing. City Court Judge Ray Churchill dismissed a charge of kidnaping.

Day Camp To Start Monday

Day camp in the City of Fairfax summer recreation program is to be run by weeks instead of sessions this year.

Starting Monday, children may sign up every Monday for a program that includes excursions to Marine World, Sonoma Gaslight and Western Railroad and to cheese and ice cream factories.

Recreation Director Susan Quinn Woodall said other programs include arts and crafts, and tennis for both juniors and adults.

Knifepoint Robbery On Sausalito Street

A jewelry salesman was robbed of $50 cash, his watch and tie bar Thursday in Sausalito by a man who accosted him as he walked along a boardwalk near the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Police said Martin N. Rotke was robbed about 9:30 p.m. by a white male, 24 to 26 years old, with dark brown hair who threatened him with a pocket knife.

Extortion Suspect Has Court Date

A 21-year-old Tiburon man, charged with trying to extort $1,000 from a Corte Madera man offering information about his missing daughter, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court to appear Monday.

Corte Madera police on May 29 arrested Charles Michael Dobson after he told Jack W. Forster, partner in a landscape maintenance firm, that he would give him information about his missing daughter.

The two men worked out a written agreement before Forster's daughter returned home and said she had never heard of Dobson, according to the district attorney's office.

Dobson already is awaiting sentencing on two counts of obtaining money under false pretenses from families in the Hilarita housing project by posing as a representative of the Marin County Housing Authority.

Woman Hurt In Cycle Accident

Mary Juanita Toler, 23, of San Francisco, was treated Thursday at Novato General Hospital for a cut lip and abrasions received in a freak motorcycle accident, according to hospital reports.

Mrs. Toler was riding behind her husband on the Highway 37 overpass of Highway 101 when their motorcycle was slowed by a flagman because of a low wire dropped during highway construction, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The wire hit her husband, Michael Wesley Toler, 21, across the chest, but he was uninjured, patrolmen reported. His wife was thrown off the motorcycle.

Man Jailed In Lovers' Quarrel

A lovers' quarrel last night in San Rafael ended with one man making a citizens arrest on another man after he allegedly was threatened by a knife and hammer, San Rafael police reported.

Otis Lee Battle, 31, of Apt. 5, 1323 Lincoln Avenue, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault and battery, assault with a deadly weapon, exhibiting a weapon in a threatening manner and vandalism. He was held in lieu of $3,500 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported they were called to the apartment of Jody Laural Miller at Apt. 6, 1323 Lincoln Avenue, at 2:12 a.m. by Eddie Louis Lytle, 37, of 830 B Street, Apt. 203, San Rafael. Lytle asked police to arrest Battle.

According to police, Lytle, staying with Miss Miller, said Battle threatened him with a butcher knife and hammer. Battle also ordered him out of the apartment, Lytle told police.

Miss Miller told police that after Lytle left, Battle broke two wodden chairs and several ash trays in the living room with the hammer. He then threatened her with the hammer, but she made him drop it by pointing Battle's knife at him.

Battle then beat her up, she told police.

Battle was treated at Marin General Hospital for a back puncture wound he said Lytle inflicted with a comb.

Petrofsky Quits Sanitary Board

Alfred M. Petrofsky, a member of the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary Ditrict board submitted his resignation at Thursday night's board meeting.

Petrofsky, of 35 De Ford Drive, San Rafael, is moving to Melbourne, Australia, with his family. He has been on the board five years.

The board invited applications for the post. They should be mailed to the district at 300 Smith Ranch Road, San Rafael, before July 27.

Agnes Builds Strength Off Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—Gusting winds from tropical storm Agnes intensified to 90 mph today and forecasters said the storm likely would reach full hurricane status tonight or Sunday.

A storm is considered a hurricane when sustained winds reach 75 mph. The Miami Hurricane Center said Agnes now has sustained winds of 65 mph, with gusts peaking at 90 mph.

The Weather Bureau said at 9 a.m. EDT Agnes was stalled near latitude 20.7 north, Longitude 85.2 west. This is about 100 miles east of Cozumel Island and 475 miles southwest of Miami.

Forecasters said the storm was expected to begin a slow northward movement by tonight, and that conditions favored an increase in strength.

The storm grew out of a tropical depression which has been dousing Western Cuba and parts of South Florida with rain for days.

Forecasters said rain was still falling over Western Cuba, where 1,200 persons have been evacuated, and was expected to continue throughout the day and tonight. Intermittent rain also was reported over the Cayman Islands.

"Small craft around Western Cuba and the Cayman Islands should remain in port and those along the Florida coast from Vero Beach southward to Key West should remain in protected waters," the Weather Bureau warned.

Forecasters also urged residents along the eastern shores of the Gulf of Mexico to check on future advisories.

"Conditions favor slow strengthening and it may acquire minimal hurricane intensity by tonight or Sunday," said Forecaster John Hope.

The storm system dropped 11 inches of rain on Grand Cayman Friday and 12 inches in western Cuba.

Hong Kong Flood

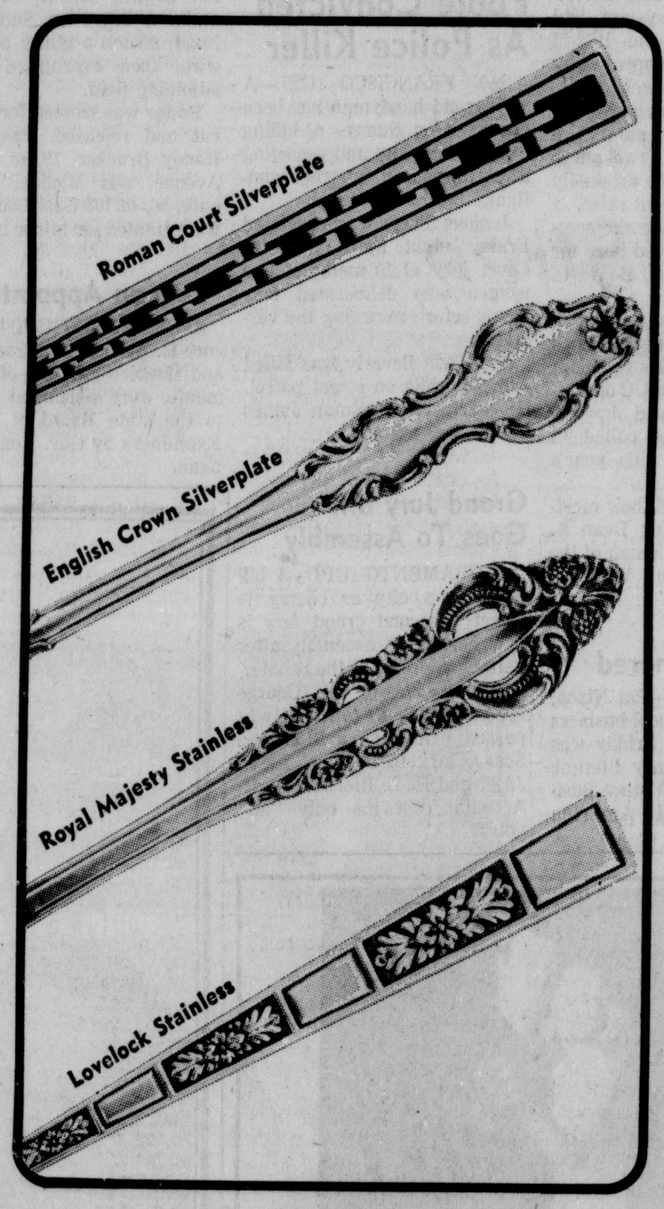

HONG KONG (UPI)—More than 12 inches of rain hit Hong Kong today, closing schools, flooding much of the crown colony and resulting in at least five deaths.

Busy Mother Guides Bel Aire School Club

MRS. NORMAN TALAL
Parent-Teacher Club

Mrs. Norman Talal of Tiburon has been elected president of Bel Aire School Parent-Teacher Club.

A graduate of Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y., she received a master's degree from Columbia University in New York. Mrs. Talal has lived in Paris and traveled throughout Europe, Latin America, the Near East and the United States.

She won second prize in "a small but nationwide" poetry contest in 1970. In 1971 she was chairman of the ladies' program of the First International Immunology Congress in Washington, D.C.

Her husband is associate professor of medicine and microbiology at the University of California at San Francisco. Their children are Andrew, 8 and Melissa, 5. The Talals came to Marin last year after spending nine years in Bethesda, Md.

Mrs. Talal taught English in Arlington, Va.

She enjoys travel, reading, tennis, horseback riding and needlepoint. She is also active in Common Cause, Tiburon Peninsula Club, Marin Jewish Community Center and taught sixth grade Sunday School at Temple Rodef Sholom.

The new president, who was Bel Aire School's representative to the board of trustees last year, said the P-TC's purpose is to provide auxiliary education programs for students and encourage communication between school and parents.

She plans a craftsmen's breakfast, a boutique, volunteer programs in art and music, library and teachers' aides programs, a film festival, after-school activities, a performing arts program and a hot-dog program. Parents of Bel Aire School children and any interested citizen may join the P-TC, she said.

She will be assisted by Mmes. Benjamin Okulski, room mothers; James Martin, fund raising; J. David Crockett, children and adult activities; Henry Goldberg, secretary; and Donald Hoff, treasurer.

Nancy Keast Will Wed In September

NANCY KEAST
Late summer wedding

Nancy Diane Keast and Ronald A. Nelson have set a Sept. 16 wedding in Santa Cruz. The couple's engagement has been announced by her parents, Mrs. Doris M. Keast of Mill Valley and Dr. Robert Keast of Long Beach.

Nancy is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the University of California at Santa Cruz. She also studied for a year at the University of Bordeaux through the University of California Education Abroad program.

Nancy is employed by the Social Security Administration in Santa Cruz.

Ron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen L. Nelson of Sunnyvale. He is a graduate of Fremont High School and the University of California at Los Angeles and the Don Martin School of Radio and Television Arts and Sciences in Los Angeles. Afterward he toured Europe, singing with the USO. He is employed with Teleprompter Television, a cable corporation, as program director for the Santa Cruz system. He has two discussion shows on television there.

Woman FBI Aide Wary Of Washington's Dark Streets

By ISABELLE HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Barbara Lynn Herwig, the first woman special assistant to the new chief of the traditionally all-male FBI, is afraid to walk the streets of the nation's capital alone at night but the thought of working with an army of men doesn't bother her at all.

She has no ambition, however, to become the FBI's first female agent.

Shortly after L. Patrick Gray III took over as acting FBI director following the death of J. Edgar Hoover, he ordered that women and more members of minority groups be hired as agents.

Some fiends immediately urged Miss Herwig to apply for an appointment as a historical first, if nothing else.

"I've thought a little about it," she told UPI in an interview. "But I like being a lawyer."

MISS HERWIG has never fired a gun or practiced karate— "more through laziness than anything else." But she thinks "It's a good idea for women to be able to defend themselves."

As for her job as Gray's assistant, she said, "My law school class was mostly men, the Justice Department is mostly men. I really don't anticipate any problem.

"I try to act first like a professional and then like a woman. I think they respect you after you work with people a while and show them that women aren't powder puffs."

Gray thought so highly of Miss Herwig's ability as an appellate attorney that he named her a special assistant when he was in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Dvision. She was one of three personal aides he took with him to the FBI.

Gray, who is given e good chance of becoming permanent director if President Nixon is re-elected, was asked why he chose a young woman who entered government fresh from law school for such a high post.

"WHEN I was assistant attorney general, I told Gray Lewis (his deputy) that I wanted the brightest young woman lawyer he could find in the civil division," he replied. "That was Miss Herwig."

Her appointment in March, 1971, came at the time Nixon was calling for the promotion of more women to middle and high-level government jobs.

Miss Herwig actually is outranked by seven women in the FBI but her close proximity to the boss makes her probably the most influential.

Hoover had promoted two of his secretaries to be administrative assistants so their salaries could be raised. His personal secretary, Miss Helen Gandy, 74, was named executive assistant and promoted to the second highest grade in government-a GS17 with a $36,000—year salary.

Miss Herwig continues as a GS12 with a salary of $15,800 in her new job and she also is topped in classification by four female administrative assistants and two female "classification specialists," who devise job descriptions.

GRAY SAID he wants all three assistants who went with him to the FBI to form "sort of a 'murder board' to get the answers to all the real, hard questions that will be asked of me and that should be asked of me."

Miss Herwig and Gray's two male aides—David D. Kinley, his executive assistant, and Daniel M. Armstrong III, a special assistant, both 30—are the first FBI officials in the agency's 64-year history who were not trained as special agents.

Applicants accepted as special agents must qualify at a 14-week training course at nearby Quantico, Va., which includes rigorous physical training coupled with firearms instruction, police sciences and legal study.

Before they even get that far, however, they must be able to do 15 pushups, 25 situps, 4 pullups, and be able to run two miles in 17 minutes. They must be at least five-feet, seven inches tall and trimly built.

THE FBI uses the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., "desirable weight ranges" which call for a five-foot-seven male medium frame to weigh from 134 to 148 pounds end a six-footer of large frame to weigh no more than 185 pounds.

Miss Herwig—at five feet, eight and a half inches-more than meets the height requirements but admits she is no athlete. Her favorite relaxation is sewing and reading, particularly science fiction and political novels.

"I make some of my own clothes," she said. "It's a lot of work but somehow more relaxing than working with papers."

Although she wears her long hair tightly back from her oval face, Miss Herwig seems completely feminine. She is quiet, reserved and shy.

She lives alone in Harbour Square, a medium expensive apartment building in the southwest area of Washington, D.C., where the slums of the 1950's have been redeveloped into highrise apartments and townhouses. Her boss and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., are among her better-known neighbors.

"When I have to walk a block or two after dark I'm uneasy," she said. "But I wanted to live in the city because of the long commute from the suburbs,"

She took exception, however, to a suggestion that the first women to be named FBI agents might not be able to handle themselves alone at night. One male agent, who desn't think much of the idea of women colleagues, commented: "I'd be interested to see what happens when the first woman agent gets herself raped in an alley."

"IF THEIR training is as good as it's supposed to be, the women agents could take care of themselves," snapped Miss Herwig, who was among those urging Gray to accept women agents.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Her Problem With Smallness Isn't A Very Small Problem

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Please do not cast this letter aside, though it may seem like a small problem to you. That's the trouble: I'm so small-bosomed that boys in my grade call me "flat top," and even some of the girls tease me.

I fought with Mom to wear a padded bra. She said it would look stupid, and when I finally won, she was right. The first day, boys noticed it immediately and was I teased. So that cuts out that solution.

I can't afford those fancy exercisers and gadgets and anyway Mom would find out and say, "What do you need this for —why when I was a kid we just grew naturally." She doesn't understand. I'm 13!

I tried looking up in books about the breasts, but the exercise directions didn't tell if they were for increasing or reducing.

If you have a solution to my problem I will be so grateful. — FLAT TOP

DEAR F.T.:

Be thankful you're a flat top and not a blubber bust. And remember: kidding from girls is only to build their ego.

Kidding from guys? Well, it makes them feel like men. Keep your sense of humor — tell 'em it isn't your hopeless chest yet, and hope Mother Nature does her thing this summer. — SUE

DEAR FLAT TOP:

If Mother Nature doesn't come through, experiment with very slightly padded bras this summer, so that you can start school in the fall with a "next to natural" look. If the guys still kid you, tell 'em to go grow a beard. — HELEN

P.S. Exercises won't help Time probably will.

DEAR RAP:

There's an ex-friend of mine who is always bugging me. She calls anonymously at all hours of the day, saying mean things, tells lies to others about me and otherwise tries to get me in trouble.

I told my Mom, cause she found me crying one day. Mom started to swear and call her bad names. I told Mom it was wrong to do this. (I was always taught not to swear.) She answered, "When are you going to be put up for sainthood?" real sarcastic like.

My point: Why do parents teach us not to swear when they do themselves? — 12-YEAR-OLD

DEAR 12:

You got your points crossed somewhere. Look, chum, your mother swore out of loyalty to you. Couldn't you let it go this time and get on with solving the problem of the jealous ex-girlfriend? — HELEN

DEAR 12:

Sometimes it's hard for parents to live up to their own rules — when so many things come down on them. On the other hand, if your mother punishes you for swearing, she shouldn't be so high and mighty that she can't take correction too. — SUE

P.S. How abuout a long talk with this girlfriend? (no swearing) You might even become friends again, when you find out what's really bugging her. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

I know you aren't cat experts but I have some questions. The other day my kitten (9 months old) started whining like a sick wolf and acting strangely. I called the vet and he said she was probably looking for a husband and to keep her indoors, as she was in heat.

If she gets out, will she run away and find a husband, and bring him home? And how soon will she be pregnant if she finds a husband? — RICK

DEAR RICK:

Your cat may not bring her husband home with her, but if she gets out while she is in heat, expect a brood of kittens this summer — which isn't the greatest way to please your parents. So. . .keep her indoors, and talk up a trip to the vet for a spay-job. — RAP

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions tc either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

'Pure Sure' Look

Bill Blass describes his fall collection as "pure sure." A part of that look is the filling in of open necklines with two or three strand bibs of cultured pearls, using them in place of scarves. Blass says he's "tired of scarves."

Why Not Single Pattern For All?

By EUNICE FARMER
Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

There are so many patterns shown in the books that seem identical except for variations such as skirts with gathers, skirts with and without waistbands and skirts with elastic at the waist. I am wondering why we can't find one pattern with all these variations so that we can save money and not have so many patterns piled up?

Mrs. C.L.M.

DEAR MRS. C.L.M.,

Because I have received so many letters concerning the finishing at the waistline for slacks, shorts and skirts, and since you can use the same methods for all types of garments, I shall devote today's column to the details of each type of waistline treatment.

You may begin with a basic pattern for pants or a skirt that has the conventional darts for a smooth fitting at the waistline. This is type "A."

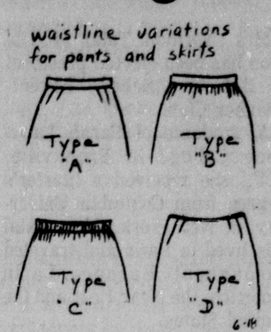

I always recommend fitting the skirt separately from the waistband, keeping the skirt slightly larger than your waist. Ease this extra fabric to your prefitted waistband and your skirt will not push up under the waistband causing unattractive wrinkles. Be sure the darts aren't too deep, causing a pucker at the end of the darts, they must also be stitched out to nothing at the point, not angled off abruptly.

WAISTBANDS ARE usually 5/8 inch to one inch wide. Cut on the straight grain of the fabric to prevent stretching. If you use a bias strip for the waistband, you must stay-stitch the garment before applying the narrow bias band, which is usually more of a binding than an actual waistband.

Type "B" garment is one with gathers at the waistline instead of darts. Using your basic pattern with the darts, simply eliminate the darts when marking your pattern. Instead, stitch two rows of machine stitching, slightly longer machine stitch than normal. Place first row on the seamline, second row one fourth inch closer to cut edge. Pull the two bobbin threads together pulling up the excess to fit your prefitted waistband.

This is a perfect answer to those of you who have a larger tummy or rounded hips. It isn't exactly a gathered garment, because you are only using the amount of ease that would have been in the darts. It gives you the extra fabric you need right below the waistline instead of taking it away in darts.

Type "C" is a garment without a separate waistband. Instead, it has a casing which will be inserted with non-roll elastic. In order to form the casing, you must extend the top of your skirt about one and a half inches. This will be folded over, machine stitched in place. This type of waistline finish is especially successful for knits that will be covered over with an overblouse. Because you can take advantage of the stretch of the fabric, you will eliminate too much bulk. This type of waistline finish is not recommended for non-stretch fabrics, it would cause too much bulk at the waistline.

TYPE "D" garment finish is one that has no visible waistband. This can be achieved by two methods. First, let's talk about the waistline finish with a separate facing. You will use your garment pattern for this facing, but you must fold out any darts in your pattern. You wouldn't want the darts in the facing. This would cause too much thickness and bulk.

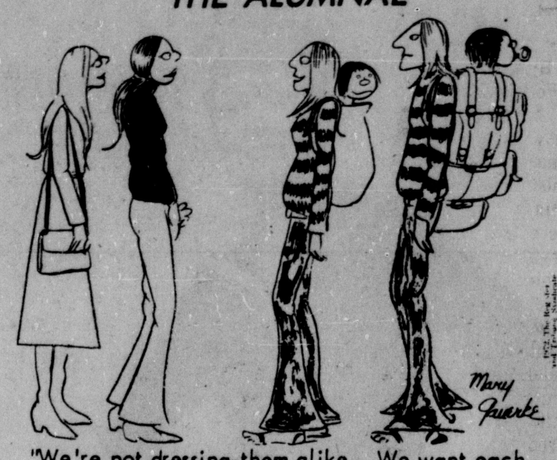

Use the waistline as your guide and cut the facing about two and a half inches wide. It's a good idea to fit the skirt before cutting the fabric. Any changes you make would also have to be made on the facing. Apply as you would any neckline or armhole facing, clipping the curved areas, understitching, and tacking the cut edge of the facing to any darts or seams. This is especially nice if you have a bulge at the waistline.

The second method of finishing the waistline of your garment when you have no waistband, is to extend the garment at the top for a continuous waistline facing instead of a separate one. Extend your garment about two inches, continuing the darts. However, they must be tapered out at the end of your self-facing to fit the larger area of your garment.

To stay the waistline of your garment, pin seam binding to self-facing, placing one edge along the foldline. This tape may need to be eased in slightly, according to the curve of your body. The fuller you are, the more you must ease. When it has been fitted perfectly, machine stitch tape 1/8 inch from the foldline. Finish raw edge of facing extension, turn to inside along foldline. Press and tack at the seams and darts.

Just a final review of what we have said. You may begin with a basic type pattern for slacks, shorts, and a skirt with darts at the waistline for a smooth fitting. This pattern can be changed to one with an elastic waistline, one with gathers and a waistband, or one without a waistband. No need to buy more than one pattern. Work out your own variations.

THE ALUMNAE

"We're not dressing them alike. We want each twin to develop individuality and a sense-of-self."

MRS. JOHN Davis of Hickory, N.C., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

Do those little hook and loop fastenings at the back collar openings drive you almost to distraction when there's nobody around to help you and you're overdue at a meeting? Save your disposition and try my method.

Quit using the hooks. Instead, cut a strip of the same fabric as the garment, about one-half by one inch in length. Zig-zag around it, since you'll be using single layer of fabric to avoid extra bulk. Apply it across the neck opening on the wrong side, whipping it securely to one end and sewing a snap to the other. It isn't bulky, lies flat and no one will know the difference. If fabric is too heavy, substitute another fabric of the same color.

Artist Society's Plus One' A Plus

By LAURA DEVENDORF

For years, the Marin Society of Artists' "Black and White Show" has been about the best thing on its exhibition calendar. This year, under the title of "Black and White Plus One," the exhibit at the society's gallery in the Ross Art and Garden Center is a good but much different show.

The "plus one," refers to the addition of a single color to the usual limitation of black, white and their shades of gray. And with that addition, the uncluttered drama and sophistication of former black and white shows has been mellowed to a soft brown look.

The "plus one" does make this interesting viewing for another reason. Remembering the rule of one color only, it should seem remarkable to many people just how broadly expressive one color can be.

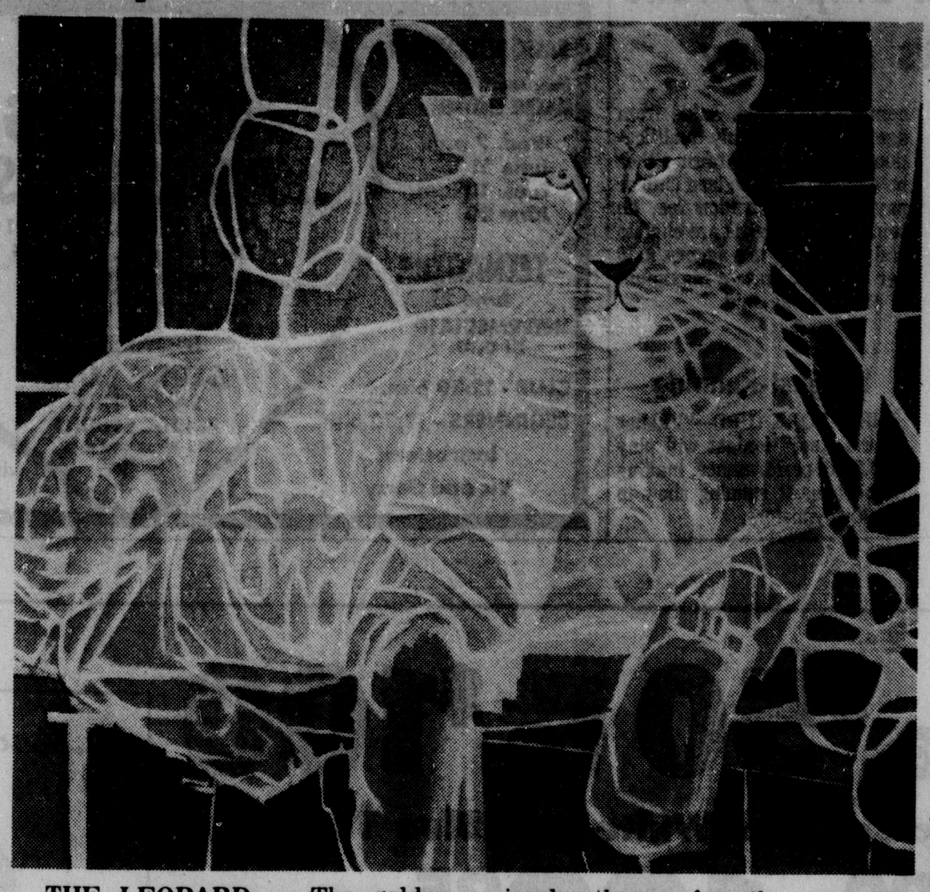

Yellow, for example, which is the most popular choice in this exhibit, is not just for sunshine and flowers. When mixed with black it can become a forest full of leafy olives. And when grayed further by the addition of white, it assumes an assortment of warm earth tones.

Bettyjo Norton's patterned forest is as softly green as any landscape, never suggesting its origins of only black, white and cadmium yellow. The source of the mustards and golds in Pat Andrew's award winning "Leopard," meanwhile, also would be hard to guess.

Some artists add yellow to their black and whites as more of a crisp intrusion. In Robert Elsocht's "Rock Festival," which received a merit award, the jigsaw puzzle pattern of figures are harsh contrasts of white on black outlined with almost angry emphasis in thin lines of hot yellow.

Some yellows come on even stronger as in Nelcy Taric's etching where black, white and gray designs are placed in opposition to a large clear yellow mass.

Most of the greens come, as mentioned, from yellow-black mixtures. But in true greens, Elizabeth Kavaler's almost postage stamp-sized landscape is worth trying to find, as is Jean Victor's "Mini Park," caught in strips of monotonous gray that suggest streets.

THE LEOPARD — The golden tones of this sleek cat in no way suggest it was painted with only black and white and yellow — the simple theme for the current Marin Society of Artists show. This painting won an award for artist Pat Andrew.

Rusty burnt sienna is a relatively popular choice and a few artists use the red-pink range for everything from abstracts to flowers to nudes. Still fewer paintings and prints are done in a moody, quiet range of blues.

The stunning simplicity of former black and white exhibits used to showcase a healthy amount of crafts and sculpture. This year, with the exception of a few pieces such as Gayle Luchessa's softly printed cloth wall quilt which won a merit award, there is almost none.

The whole thing is a totally different experience from past black and white shows. But it still proves one thing: that limitations can make artists plumb their resources and bring forth their gifts. And while the "Black and White Plus One" may not be the same show as before, it will probably keep up the tradition of being the best.

It continues through June 25 with gallery hours from 1 to 4 p.m. daily.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Sierra Club has gone to court in an attempt to block any development of the last 40 million acres of wilderness areas located in national forests.

'Poetry In Song' Is Class Entertainment

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Soprano Carolyn Caton's lecture-recital on "Poetry in Song" last night at the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in Greenbrae was not only high-class musical entertainment but a revelation of what an art song is.

It was, therefore, probably most appealing to those in the audience whose enjoyment of a performance is enhanced by intellectual appreciation of material presented. For those satisfied with the sensuous beauty of the music itself there was probably a bit too much to the program, since it ran 90 minutes, without intermission.

Miss Caton has a bright, clear and supple soprano that is warmer in the low and middle range than in the highest register. She is very skillful in conveying words meanings in good diction and emotional nuances and has an attractive manner and appearance. Taken together, the ingredients make for successful communication with her audience.

By far the most outstanding number of the evening was the finale, Schubert's "Shepherd on the Rock," sung in German, with clarinet obbligato provided by Wayne Ellerman. This tested the young singer's technical resources, especially in negotiating wide intervals. She did this beautifully because she had the vocal dexterity to match the fluency of the clarinet, played very well by Ellerman.

The rest of her program consisted of groups of art songs from 1600 to the present day — one each by Carissimi and Monteverdi sung in Italian, two by Hugo Wolf and one by Brahms in German and three by Debussy in French. She also sang a Purcell work, representing the English art song, and four works by Samuel Barber as the American contribution.

In these I thought Miss Caton's bright ringing voice was especially effective in the gay, light-hearted ones like Debussy's "Mandoline" and Barber's "Daisies."

The singer's only encore was the favorite, "I Love Thee," by Grieg. She was fortunate to have as her piano accompanist for the evening, Phyllis Murphy, who is one of Marin's best in that special art.

This concert was the last in a season series sponsored by the College of Marin Concert-Lecture Series and coordinated by Gordon Pomfrey.

Concerts were free this year but because of the college's tighter budget next year, there will be a small charge next season. Programs will be offered from October through May.

Relief Recipients Shun Jobs, Face Funds Loss

OXNARD, Calif. (UPI) — Welfare officials began sending "letters of sanction" Friday to 23 aid recipients who failed to appear for possible training or non-paying jobs in Gov. Ronald Reagan's "work or else" program.

The 23, all classified as able bodied men with children, were among 40 recipients notified to appear for interviews Thursday at Ventura County welfare offices in the first day of the program.

Called the Community Work Experience Program, it can be used to require employable welfare recipients to spend up to 80 hours a month at non-paying work or job training.

A state welfare department spokesman said the "letters of sanction" instruct the 23 men to explain why they failed to appear. Unless their reasons are valid, he said, steps will begin to cut or eliminate their welfare payments.

Of the 17 who did report the first day, two were assigned to non-paying jobs, one to a regular job and five to regular job interviews. The others continued to be processed or found work on their own. Another 31 men were scheduled for interviews throughout Friday.

Welfare rights groups have filed legal action in an attempt to stop the program, calling it "slave labor," but officials believe the experiment can provide an initiative to find regular employment.

"It is in no way punitive," said Wilbur D. Rudy, state welfare operations manager in the county. "The program is rewarding. It gives the recipient an opportunity to do some work and associate with the working world. And no one is placed in a position where the work is degrading."

Of the two given jobs, one, a young man, was assigned to a trash collection crew. The other, a former $400-a-week aerospace technical writer, was given a parttime office job with a schedule allowing him time to develop his own horseshoeing business. The jobs are without pay.

State and local officials were perplexed at the scant response as the program kicked off.

One report speculated that the low first day turnout was the result of welfare rights lawyers counseling the men not to report.

However, David Schwartz, a Legal Services Center attorney who has handled the most prominent welfare rights cases, said that he, for one, had been approached by none of the men. If he had been, Schwartz said, he would have advised them to report.

A total of 483 men with children were notified to report for interviews in the next few weeks. Unemployed mothers with children over 6 years of age will be summoned next for an estimated county total of about 1,000.

Plans call for the program, which is partially financed by federal funds, to be expanded later into 34 other counties.

Novato Youth Employment Program Starts Monday

The Novato Youth Employment Agency, cosponsored by the Novato Rotary Club and the Novato Teen Club, will start its fifth summer of operation Monday, according to director Ronald Pugh.

Last year more than 75 youths, 15 to 18 years of age, received jobs through the agency and earned about $5,000, Pugh reported.

The agency, housed at the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission building, 917 Sherman Avenue, will be open from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"We need both jobs and applicants," Pugh said. Aside from age 15 to 18, the only qualification is that youths must either be a member of the teen club or pay a $1 registration fee, he said. Boys and girls are eligible and must pay the agency a 10 per cent fee, up to a maximum of $5 a job, he said.

Marijuana Initiative Signup Goal Claimed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Marijuana Initiative has collected enough signatures to qualify the pot issue for the November ballot, the statewide coordinator said Friday.

Robert Ashford, 28, said signature gathering will continue in 11 counties during the weekend and should produce a "comfortable safety margin."

The San Francisco attorney said 150,000 signatures had been gathered during the supplemental filing period — just enough to produce the needed 95,000 valid signatures. A total of 231,000 signatures were gathered earlier of the 337,000 needed to qualify the initiative.

Ashford cited the defeat of a recent Senate bill as "clear proof" that the measure to "decriminalize" pot should be put to the people.

The measure, by Sen. Alan Gregorio, would have eliminated prison sentences for first time offenders.

"The defeat of that bill indicates our legislators are still years away from a realistic and humane approach to marijuana uses and that only the initiative can bring real reform," said Ashford.

The initiative would remove criminal sanctions for the private cultivation and use of pot.

Rec Panel $10,000 Plea Due

The Sausalito Recreation Commission will ask the city council to restore a $10,000 expenditure for resurfacing of the city's tennis courts to its proposed $1,776,646 budget for 1972-73.

The commission made the recommendation Thursday after the council axed the repaving at a budget session earlier in the week.

"We believe very strongly that this is a capital expenditure of the highest priority in our current recreational needs," said H. Thomas Rogers, commission chairman. "The tennis courts' surface is deteriorating to the point they will soon be unusable."

Rogers said representatives of the commission will appear before the council at 7:30 p.m. Monday when it holds its final budget review session.

New Teacher Salary Sked Due Study

A new salary schedule for teachers will be recommended for adoption at Monday's meeting of the Tamalpais High School District Board.

With an across-the-board increase of 3.25 per cent, plus a .97 per cent increase in medical and dental plans, the proposal calls for a total settlement of 4.2 per cent.

A 7:15 p.m. reception in the new student center at Tamalpais High School will precede the board meeting at the school at 8 p.m. In honor of Tamalpais's new educational leader, Dr. Lawrence Sheppard, the reception is for visitors to view the new building.

Also on the agenda for discussion is proposed state legislation which would let school boards enforce regulations on smoking on campus. The district's management council has supported the legislation.

The state education code now prohibits possession and smoking of tobacco on campus.

A rare find. Hilltop home on a lovely level lot with level street and no parking problems. Plenty of room for wheel toys. Almost no maintenance landscaping with elegant aggregate concrete patios architecturally designed. This immaculate home is sharper than a model and the interiors were professionally decorated with stunning walls coverings, parquet floors and custom draperies. Gorgeous wall units remain in the family room. A view of the green hills will probably be permanently protected since the residents of this area are forming a special district to try to purchase the hills as green belt space. Four bedrooms, formal dining room and family room. Ours exclusively at $54,-500.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Ability To See And Experience Makes Man A Superior Animal

It has been said that 85 per cent of what we learn comes in through the eyes. Man's ability to see clearly and to build up experiences is the reason for his superiority over animals. Visual acuity allows us to exercise greater powers of recognition, logic, habit, evaluation, and judgment. But this is only a part of the story. We develop manual skills because our visual apparatus is capable of converging on objects; our binocular vision with depth perception allows us to judge distances.

THE EYES frequently are compared with a camera, but film in the camera cannot be compared with the retina. The retina of the eye does not see the image nor does it relay a picture to the brain for interpretation. Vision is a more complex process. Light rays strike the photoreceptors in the retina and are converted by chemical reaction into electrical impulses that are transmitted to the brain via the optic nerve. These impulses travel to the visual cortex of the brain at a speed of 330 feet per second. They are decoded immediately as in a data processing machine. It is here that comprehension takes place.

THE VISUAL information also may stimulate other responses that are useful for other purposes, such as survival or instinctive reactions. A man's reaction to a pretty girl is entirely different than it would be if he was set upon by a tiger or elephant. In this regard, sight is more critical to man than to animals which tend to rely on their sense of smell.

Vision also is impaired if anything happens to these centers in the brain. In such instances, the victim blames his eyes when, in reality, it is not a matter of seeing, but of comprehending what is seen.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

K. R. writes: Can athlete's foot spread to the inside of the body through the bloodstream?

REPLY

No, but other infections in the cracks and crevices of the foot can reach the bloodstream. Occasionally the body becomes sensitized to the fungi on the feet and produces an "id" or allergic reaction on the hands. Conversely, there are many different types of fungi and some gain entrance to the body via the lungs. These are systemic in contrast to superficial fungi.

BACKACHE AND EXERCISE

Mrs. A. O. writes: My husband suffers from backache that seems to be due to muscle spasms. The pain is worse after he sits for a while. The doctor has him on muscle relaxant pills and they seem to be helping him. Would any type of exercise alleviate or eradicate the pain?

REPLY

Yes, provided the exercises do not aggravate the basic condition responsible for the muscle spasms. This disorder is associated with arthritis, ruptured disk, muscle strain, or fatigue. The spasm is the result, not the cause.

Firms Fined $131,000 In Trade Ban

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two corporations and three men have been fined a total of $131,750 for violating sanctions against trading with Rhodesia.

The cases were the first such prosecutions since the United Nations and the Department of Commerce imposed sanctions in 1968, U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour said.

The defendants, Margas Shipping Co. of Panama City, Panama; IDI Management Inc. of Cincinnati; Herbert Hamilton, president of IDI; Conrad E. Wysocki, an IDI engineer, and David J. Patterson, a Coral Gables, Fla., businessman, all pleaded guilty Friday.

They were charged with planning to build a $50 million chemical fertilizer plant in Rhodesia and to entering into a secret agreement with the Rhodesian government to ship $5 billion worth of ammonia there.

The sanctions were imposed because of Rhodesia's policy of racial separation.

Phoenix Collecting Antiwar Petitions

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The 50-foot ketch Phoenix is sailing along the West Coast on what its owner calls a domestic peace mission—collecting letters from antiwar groups to be taken to the Republican National Convention in Miami in August.

Earle Reynolds sailed the Phoenix from here for California, where he said he will make several stops to pick up letters from Society of Friends groups.

Thief Must Repair Car He Stole

A mechanic, who said he became so tired of fixing a car that he stole and stripped it, has been ordered by a Marin Superior Court judge to repair the car and pay $80 for its contents.

John Michael Biggs, 29, of San Anselmo, told a probation officer that he sold a 1966 Corvette to Kevin Fisher, but the buyer demanded so many free repairs that he stole it Aug. 18 to end the problem and obtain some parts at the same time.

Biggs was subsequently charged with auto theft and pleaded guilty in a plea bargain calling for up to 90 days in jail. However, after reviewing a probation report, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner placed Biggs on probation for three years and ordered him to fix or pay for the car.

Biggs, who ran his own repair business when arrested, now works for a tire company in San Rafael.

Passes Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly sent to the Senate on a 41-17 vote Friday a bill by Assemblyman John L. Burton requiring public agencies contracting for janitorial or similar work to make sure prevailing wages were paid.

New Chairman For Ross Group

Robert A. Braghetta has been appointed chairman of the new Ross Recreation Advisory Board. Secretary will be L.G. Maclise.

The board will meet twice a month during the summer for members to become acquainted with recreation matters, according to Mrs. Richard Scott Smith, board member.

Regular monthly meetings will commence Sept. 27.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF SALE
$7,000,000 Marin Municipal Water District 1971 Water Bonds, Series B (Marin County, State of California)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Directors (the "board") of Marin Municipal Water District (the "district"), Marin County, State of California, at the office of the district, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, Marin County, California 94925, on at the hour of 2:00 P.M. for the purchase of $7,000,000 principal amount of bonds more particularly described below:

ISSUE: $7,000,000 consisting of 1400 bonds of the denomination of $5,000 each, numbered B1 to B1400, both inclusive (the "Series B bonds"). The Series B bonds are the balance of an authorized issue of $11,500,000 principal amount of 1971 Water Bonds (the "bonds"), of which $4,500,000 principal amount designated Series A have heretofore been sold and are now outstanding.

DATE: The Series B bonds are dated July 1, 1972.

INTEREST RATE: Maximum seven percent (7%) per annum, payable annually the first year on July 1, 1973, and thereafter semiannually on January 1 and July 1 in each year. Bidders must specify the rate of interest which the bonds hereby offered for sale shall bear. Bidders may specify any number of separate interest rates, and the same rate or rates may be repeated as often as desired; provided, however, that (i) the difference between the highest and lowest coupon rates specified in any bid shall not exceed two percent (2%); (ii) each interest rate specified must be in a multiple of 1/20 of one percent and a zero rate of interest cannot be specified; (iii) no bond shall bear more than one rate of interest, no interest payment shall be evidenced by more than one coupon and supplemental coupons will not be permitted; (iv) each bond shall bear interest from its date to its stated maturity date at the interest rate specified in the bid; (v) all bonds of the same maturity shall bear the same rate of interest; and (vi) any premium must be paid in immediately available bank funds as part of the purchase price, and no bid will be accepted which provides for the cancellation and surrender of any interest coupon or for the waiver of interest or other concession by the bidder as a substitute for bank funds. Bids which do not conform to the terms of this paragraph will be rejected.

MATURITIES: The Series B bonds mature serially in consecutive numerical order, from lower to higher as follows:

Principal Amount	Maturity Date (July 1) (All years inclusive)
$100,000	1973
150,000	1974-1978
200,000	1979-1982
250,000	1983-1986
350,000	1990-1991
400,000	1992-1993
450,000	1994-1995

REDEMPTION: Series B bonds maturing by their terms on or prior to July 1, 1989 are not subject to call or redemption prior to their fixed maturity dates. Series B bonds maturing by their terms on and after July 1, 1990 are subject to call and redemption, at the option of the district on July 1, 1985 (but not prior thereto) and on any interest payment date thereafter prior to their fixed maturity date or dates, as a whole, or in part in inverse numerical order, at the principal amount thereof and accrued interest to date of redemption, together with a premium of one-quarter of one percent (¼ of 1%) of such principal amount for each whole year and for any fraction of a year remaining between the date of redemption and the maturity date of the bonds so redeemed.

PAYMENT: Both principal and interest are payable in lawful money of the United States of America, at the principal office of Wells Fargo Bank, National Association, the paying agent of the district in San Francisco, California, or, in the case of coupon bonds, at the option of the holder at the office of the paying agent of the district in Los Angeles, California, or in New York, New York, or in Chicago, Illinois.

EXECUTION AND REGISTRATION: The Series B bonds will be executed by the manual signature of at least one official authorized to execute the bonds. The Series B bonds will be issued in coupon form or in fully registered form, and will be interchangeable.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The bonds are authorized by vote of ⅔ of the qualified electors of the district voting at a special district bond election for the purpose of raising money for improvements of the waterworks and waterworks system of the district.

SECURITY: Unless funds for the payment of the bonds are otherwise provided from revenues of the district, the board has power and is obligated to cause annual ad valorem taxes for the payment of both the principal of and interest on the bonds to be levied upon all property within the district subject to taxation by the district, without limitation of rate or amount.

TAX EXEMPT STATUS: In the event that prior to the delivery of the Series B bonds (a) the income received by any private holder from bonds of the same type and character shall be declared to be taxable (either at the time of such declaration or at any future date) under any federal income tax laws, either by the terms of such laws or by ruling of a federal income tax authority or official which is followed by the Internal Revenue Service, or by decision of any federal court, or (b) any federal income tax law is adopted which will have a substantial adverse tax effect on holders of the Series B bonds as such, the successful bidder may, at his option, prior to the tender of the Series B bonds by the district, be relieved of his obligation under the contract to purchase the Series B bonds and in such case the deposit accompanying his bid will be returned.

LEGAL OPINION: The legal opinion of Messrs. Orrick, Herrington, Rowley & Sutcliffe, of San Francisco, California, approving the validity of the Series B bonds, will be furnished to the successful bidder without charge. A copy of the legal opinion, certified by the official in whose office the original is filed, will be printed on each Series B bond without charge to the successful bidder.

TERMS OF SALE

HIGHEST BID: The Series B bonds will be awarded to the highest bidder considering the interest rate or rates specified and the premium offered, if any. The highest bid will be determined by deducting the amount of the premium bid (if any) from the total amount of interest which the district would be required to pay from the date of the Series B bonds to their respective maturity dates at the coupon rate or rates specified in the bid, and the award will be made on the basis of the lowest net interest cost to the district. The purchaser must pay accrued interest from the date of the Series B bonds to the date of delivery. All interest shall be computed on a 360-day year basis. The cost of printing the Series B bonds will be borne by the district.

RIGHT OF REJECTION: The district reserves the right, in its discretion, to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid.

PROMPT AWARD: The board will take action awarding the Series B bonds or rejecting all bids not later than 26 hours after the expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of proposals, unless such time of award is waived by the successful bidder.

PROMPT DELIVERY: Delivery of the Series B bonds will be made to the successful bidder at the office of the paying agent of the district, in San Francisco, California, as soon as the bonds can be prepared, but not prior to the date of the Series B bonds. Payment of the purchase price of the Series B bonds must be made in funds immediately available to the district in San Francisco, California.

RIGHT OF CANCELLATION: The successful bidder shall have the right, at his option, to cancel the contract of purchase if the district shall fail to execute the Series B bonds and tender the same for delivery within 60 days from the date of sale thereof, and in such event the successful bidder shall be entitled to the return of the deposit accompanying his bid.

FORM OF BID: All bids must be for not less than all the Series B bonds and for not less than the par value thereof and accrued interest to date of delivery. Each bid, together with bidder's check, must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Board of Directors of Marin Municipal Water District and endorsed "Proposal for Marin Municipal Water District 1971 Water Bonds, Series B".

BID CHECK: With each bid must be submitted a certified check or cashier's check for $75,000 drawn on a bank or trust company transacting business in the State of California, payable to the order of the treasurer of the district to secure the district from any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. Checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned by the secretary of the district by mail promptly upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be paid upon the deposit made by any bidder.

ESTIMATE OF NET INTEREST COST: Bidders are requested, but not required to supply an estimate of the total net interest cost to the district on the basis of their respective bids, which shall be considered as informative only and not binding on either the bidder or the district.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT: The district has prepared an official statement, a copy of which will be furnished upon request addressed to Stone & Youngberg Municipal Financing Consultants Inc., 1 California Street, San Francisco, California 94111, the District's Financing Consultants.

There is no litigation pending concerning the validity of the Series B bonds, the corporate existence of the district or the title of the officers thereof to their respective offices, and the district will furnish to the successful bidder a no-litigation certificate certifying to the foregoing as of and at the time of the delivery of the bonds.

DATED: May 24, 1972

Munich: High Prices And Hitler Memories

MUNICH — When the Olympic Games open here about two months from now, visitors will find Munich wearing a new face.

Subway trains are finally in operation after nearly a decade of construction.

About a mile of streets in the ancient heart of this 800-year-old city have been closed to vehicular traffic and converted to attractive pedestrian malls.

GERMANY'S post-war miracle of recovery flooded her narrow city streets with automobiles. Nowhere was the congestion worse than in Munich. Visitors have longbeen advised not to come by private auto. If you must bring your car, visitors are advised, don't try to drive into the city yourself; stop at one of the tourist information centers on the outskirts and hire a driver.

Munich has a multitude of new parking garages and has opened through streets around the heart of the ancient town center.

Despite all preparations, Munich at Olympic Games time probably will have the greatest traffic jams of all time. Only those who depend on the new subways and can go and come from the new mall areas will escape.

A SWING around this city of nearly 1.5 million leaves the impression that every third or fourth building front is covered by scaffolding where workers are busy scrubbing the face of the city. The sounds of saw, hammer and jackhammer are everywhere.

Olympic visitors will find no bargains in Munich. Germany's post-war prosperity has brought price increases for everything. At the same time, the German mark has been revalued upward, while the American dollar has been "floated" downward.

On top of all this, Munich merchants apparently have raised prices in anticipation of the Olympic "boom." As a result, your dollar will buy more at the better stores in San Rafael than in Munich.

(Did you ever put $15 worth of gasoline in your car in one visit to a service station? It's easy to do in Munich now.)

AS RECENTLY as two years ago, you were not likely to hear the name of Adolph Hitler mentioned publicly here.

Hitler's former existence is now acknowledged openly.

Extending official welcome to members of the International Press Institute at their opening session here June 5, a German host newspaperman referred to "the evils of the 12 dark years of the Hitler era."

At Karolinenplatz, a German sightseeing guide acknowledged that the "Brown House" on the corner was a Nazi house. The guide didn't go so far as to explain that the Brown House was the first headquarters of Hitler and his Nazi party.

At the Feldherrnhalle overlooking Odeonplatz, the guide acknowledged that it is the site of Hitler's unsuccessful 1923 effort to seize power in Bavaria.

At the site of the Olympics, the guide will acknowledge the area once was an airport — the one where British Prime Minister Chamberlain landed when he came to sign the Munich pact with Hitler and Mussolini in 1938 — to assure "peace in our time" and dismember Czechoslovakia.

In nearby Dachau, there are directional signs to the infamous concentration camp (KZ) where more than 30,000 were subjected to the "final solution."

The former KZ is now a memorial to Europe's millions of victims of the Hitler era.

The guide pamphlets do not tell you that the bodies of Hermann Goering and those condemned at the Nuremburg war crimes trials were also cremated in the ovens of Dachau.

BACK IN MUNICH, as you ride along Turkenstrasse, your guide tells you how that street got its name; but as you pass No. 23 there is no mention of its being the first office for Nazi secret police records — the birthplace of the Gestapo.

At Isartor, the guide will tell you about this historic gateway to ancient Munich. Almost in the shadow of the medieval gate, you see the Torbrau beer house; the guide does not explain that in 1925 eight misfits met here to organize a bodyguard for Hitler — and the infamous SS stormtrooper organization was born.

Munich is the Baverian fun capital.

But it also was the cradle of Naziism and it isn't possible to have much fun here when you keep stumbling across historic reminders of "the 12 dark years of the Hitler era."

Our 'Bird-Loving' County

Marin prides itself on preserving nature — or a lot of Marinites do, anyhow. And among the forms of nature most loved by Marinites are our birds.

This concern for the birds does not, apparently, extend to the county government and its employees.

Last week the Independent-Journal ran two photos that tell a story of callous disregard for bird life by the county government. The first showed a row of swallows building mud nests under the eaves of the Veterans Memorial Building. The second showed a county worker directing a high-pressure stream of water at the nests to wash them down.

Barn swallows are persistent. They often will try several times to make a mud nest stick to a surface after it is blown down. But if they fail repeatedly, or if the nest is knocked down after the eggs are laid, that means no little barn swallows.

The excuse in this case was that the mud nests defaced the surface of tha Veterans Memorial Building.

Quite a few of us think such decoration on that building would be an improvement.

"When any of them acted up, we sent the fleet. Now it's Kissinger or Connally."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

There never was a person who did anything worth doing that did not receive more than he gave. — Henry Ward Beecher.

Social reform is not to be secured by noise and shouting, by compalints and denunciations, by the formation of parties or the making of revolutions; but by the awakening of thought and the progress of ideas. — Henry George.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Letters for "What Our Readers Say" are welcomed. To be published, they must bear the writer's signature and address (only the city will be printed, but street or post office box address must be included.) Try to limit letters to 200 words. The editors reserve the right to cut long letters, or to reject any that may be libelous or in bad taste.

'Governor's Private Life Insurance Scheme'

Governor Reagan has offered state employees a life insurance plan as a "fringe benefit." It is stated that the plan will cost 70 cents per $1,000 of insurance. The current plan sponsored by the California State Employees Association costs 50 cents per $1,000 of insurance.

The question in my mind is who will benefit by the governor's plan? It appears to me that the only beneficiary of the plan will be the insurance companies.

If Governor Reagan is sincere about fringe benefits for state employees why has he continually vetoed increased medical contributions and increased wages? The plan should be labeled "Governor Reagan's Private Life Insurance Scheme."

Adult Education Cutoff Protested

I attended a class last semester at Drake High School — adult education, Tamalpais Union School District. The class was told on its last night that the adult education at Drake High School would not be continued in September. I asked for an explanation as to the reasons for discontinuing and was told that it was because of low enrollment. Due to the fact that there are no mailers available to the public and the local papers do not publish a list of classes scheduled, a low enrollment should be expected. I do not accept this as a legitimate excuse because if the class enrollment is low, the choice is up to the students to pay more and keep the class going, which is what the class I took has done the past two semesters.

I am taking this very personal since I was not given a satisfactory explanation. I feel that I was being told that even though I'm a taxpayer willing to pay more to be able to take a class and want to learn I'm not important. I feel it is the right of every taxpayer to have the opportunity to use the facilities their taxes support.

I feel there is a great injustice being done to the Marin County taxpayers and I would like to know where the funds that are allocated to adult education will be going.

Those Bright Little Messages That Add Glow To Father's Day

Dear Dad,

Just wanted to wish you a happy Father's Day. Been thinking a lot about you lately. Did you send the money order in care of American Express in Madrid or in care of American Express in Barcelona? American Express here in Madrid says they never received it, so you better raise hell with them because they're being very loose with your money.

I'm pulling out from Madrid for the Costa del Sol, and then will probably go over to Morocco. There's an American Express in Casablanca and a friend told me they're really good on receiving money orders. Hope you're not working too hard. I'll wait here two more days, just in case the money order comes through. I'm real sorry I can't be with you on Father's Day, but I didn't want to let it pass without saying hello.

Love,
George

DEAR DAD,

I'm taking the opportunity of Father's Day to tell you something important. I've decided you were right — there's more to life than having a good time bumming around and not caring about the world.

I've decided my attitude has been selfish and unrealistic, and hasn't helped me or you. I know you warned me that I would come to this realization, but I had to find it out myself. And so, Dad, next week, on my 47th birthday, I'm going to go out and look for a job.

Sincerely,
Eward

DEAR POP,

With Father's Day coming up on Sunday, I thought I ought to get a short note off to you and tell you I think you're the best daddy in the whole world. Also, I think I'm pregnant.

But don't get excited. Tommy said he'd marry me when he gets out of law school which should be in three years.

I hope you have a wonderful and relaxed Father's Day.

Love,
Inger

DEAR DAD,

I don't know how to say this to you. It's probably the hardest letter I've ever had to write and coming just before Father's Day doesn't make it any easier.

You always taught me to think for myself and make my own decisions. I remember when I visited you at the factory last year you said, "Son, in business you have to live your own life. Don't let personal things influence your decisions."

Well, Dad, I've been thinking a lot since then about what you say, and this is what I have to tell you. My conglomerate bought out your company last week and you're fired.

Love,
Fred.

DEAR FATHER,

Your son Gerald bought a red and blue tie from us for Father's Day, and we'd like to inform you that we have several suits on sale that go with it. Why not visit our fitting rooms and get the right suit to go with the tie? A lot of thought went into your son's gift, and you owe it to him to buy a suit to complement the tie he gave you.

Yours Truly,

McGovern Reform Program Wins Voters, But How About Congress?

WASHINGTON — In my six weeks' absence, the political landscape has been completely transformed and the populist from South Dakota now seems certain to be the Democratic presidential nominee if his primary victories count.

It is a great achievement by the senator himself, by the organizers of his campaign, and by the thousands of young across the country who worked to bring about this result. But it says even more about the shift in opinion in the acceptance of a candidate so radical by American standards. The nearest parallel is William Jennings Bryan, who also came from the prairies to defy the money barons of the eastern establishment.

In his primary campaign across the country, McGovern promised a bold assault on privilege and power. He would redistribute income, end the Vietnam war, and cut defense spending by $30 billion. Those of us who failed so persistently to recognize the McGovern potential cannot now say that he is sure to be defeated by the center and the right embodied in President Nixon. When the votes of George Wallace and McGovern are combined, the score adds up to a deep disaffection with things as they are.

BUT A LARGER consideration than win or lose is whether the rigidities of the system, the barriers to change built into the American structure, are such that his proposed reforms would have a ghost of a chance of adoption. President McGovern could find his promises mired down in Congress and blocked by the courts.

In Western Europe — and this may well be an object lesson — the democratic process in country after country is blocked in stalemate. Elections, as in Italy, make little or no difference. Authority to take fundamental steps is all but nonexistent.

The fires of inflation threaten to rage out of control. In Britain, where Prime Minister Edward Heath turns a stony face to his opponents, the confederation of British industry has just warned that a new and dangerous round of inflation is at hand unless drastic measures are taken. House and land speculation are at fantastic levels. Nor does the opposition seem to offer any alternative.

West Germany will have an election in November with the hope of ending the knife-edge division between the two principal parties that makes government all but impossible. Due in large part to Chancellor Willy Brandt's skill and persistence, the treaties with Poland and the Soviet Union were ratified. But with the Bundestag divided 248 to 248, not even a budget can be passed.

THE BUILT-IN BARRIERS in the American system of divided powers are more formidable than those that hobble the governments of Western Europe. McGovern's first task is to convince the electorate that his program is within the scope of American politics and that he can put it over should he be elected. That will be even more difficult than winning in the series of primaries which advanced him to the front.

At the turn of this century the time was not ripe for William Jennings Bryan. With only regional support in the Midwest and the South, he was three times nominated and three times defeated. Senator McGovern has a constituency that is nationwide. The depth of that constituency is another matter.

Mild South Dakotan Puts New Face On Radicalism

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern wants tax changes that would redistribute wealth in the United States.

His sudden emergence as front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination has the business and banking world gulping down the statements he has been making for the past couple of years, to which, up till now, nobody paid much attention.

IN THEIR ORIGINAL, undiluted form, McGovern's economic proposals are perhaps as radical as any made by a leading contender for the presidency since William Jennings Bryan.

The statistics by which McGovern balances out his proposed wealth redistribution programs and his tax programs are fuzzy and, in many cases, do not appear to add up.

A tendency has begun among corporate spokesmen to pooh-pooh McGovern's economic radicalism, and to minimize it as just another example of high-blown preconvention campaigning that will be modified as the candidate seeks out the "vital center." Indeed, something of this tendency is appearing.

On the other hand it is the judgment of those who have followed the former minister's son, who became a bomber pilot and won the Distinguished Flying Cross, that he is emotionally, and probably passionately, committed to the general idea of what he considers to be a fairer distribution to the masses of the good things of life.

HIS APPROACH to this goal leads inavitably to these general proposals: closing tax loopholes, high taxes on the affluent, a reversal of the trend to reduce corporate taxes, slashing the defense budget, reduction of U.S. troops in Europe.

It also means immediate end of the Vietnam war, which Defense Sec. Melvin R. Laird said would cost the country $3 billion to $5 billion more annually because of stepped-up bombing.

Before long, if McGovern's march to nomination continues, everybody should be talking about what he calls the "Minimum Income Grant," in capital letters.

The McGovern plan is a form of national wealth redistribution by taxation that is a combination of the ideas of Prof. James Tobin of Yale, Joseph Pechman and others of the Brookings Institution, and the so-called negative income tax of conservative-radical Milton Friedman of Chicago.

Described in starkest terms, it involves giving everybody in the nation $1,000 from the Treasury, including Nelson A. Rockefeller, and then taxing it back again from the rich in higher income taxes.

"I propose that every man, woman, and child receive from the federal government an annual payment," he said in the Congressional Record April 7. "This payment would not vary in accordance with the wealth of the recipient. For those on public assistance, this income grant would replace the welfare system."

He added that it might also "replace certain Social Security benefits."

McGOVERN SHOWS signs of organizing and collating his far-reaching economic proposals as he moves toward possible nomination in a sweep that possibly surprises him as much as the astonished bankers and businessmen.

In an open one-page political advertisement in the Wall Street Journal, May 22, McGovern appears to draw back, partially, from views that began to give him the scary title of a wild man in financial circles.

In a series of "I have not" paragraphs, he denies advocating imposition of a $50,000 income ceiling, raising corporate taxation from the present 48 per cent to its previous 52 per cent, elimination of capital-gains taxes, elimination of tax-exempt bonds, elimination of tax benefits for charitable gifts, or a ceiling on inheritances at $500,000 or above.

Even when these modifications, or seeming modifications, are accepted, and when McGovern's hazy calculations are ultimately disciplined into precise terms, one fact still remains if he is nominated.

THE DIFFERENCE between McGovern and President Nixon on economic matters will be one of the sharpest in American history. It will rival that between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, or Bryan and McKinley in 1896.

A key difference between now and then is that McGovern does not look like a radical. His simple, cool and almost dull delivery makes proposals that are essentially startling seem almost commonplace.

He does not evangelize like Bryan nor emotionalize like Roosevelt. It is as though he were talking to Ma, there by the kitchen sink beside the potted geranium.

"Let me say I come from the state of South Dakota," he said in his debate March 30, "where there are 2-to-1 Republican odds against me. I have been elected four times in that state.

"Ordinarily we don't send wild-eyed radicals to the U.S. Senate from South Dakota."

It makes the McGovern Minimum Income Grant seem as natural as apple pie.

The South's Busing Troubles: Kids Blame Parents

By WENDY WATRISS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Communities across the U.S. are being torn by the politics of school integration. In many cities, the emotionalism of the busing issue has been carried into the classroom itself, and politicians condemn court-ordered busing for the racial unrest in schools.

In Savannah, where busing for racial integration was a nine-month reality in the 1971-72 school year, junior and senior high schools were disturbed by racial disorders. For many of Savannah's 18,000 secondary-school students, security guards and federal marshals have become a familiar sight.

Parents say busing has created a situation in which education is impossible. Many students, however, say it is the parents who have helped make the situation what it is. They charge that much of the responsibility for violence in schools must be borne by the parents and politicians outside the schools (in Savannah and elsewhere, North and South), because they hvve not allowed busing or integration to operate in a climate of calm and reason.

"How can you say busing is the issue when busing has been going on for so many years? It's not busing. It's integration," says Pat Washington, a black senior-class president. "And everyone worries whether the kids are ready for integration. It's the parents andadministrators who aren't ready."

"I don't think busing will work. We've been thrown together too fast," says Eric Williams, a white football player at one of the city's most troubled high schools. "But I'll tell you one thing: If we didn't have the parents bugging us, it wouldn't be so bad."

"Parents are the problem. They should leave the kids alone and let us go to school together in peace," says Sandra Mitchell, a black sophomore.

But for some Savannah citizens — those who have been most vocal — there can be no peace until busing for racial integration is stopped.

"You want to know what's happening in Savannah?" asked one of a group of mothers picketing a recent conference of federal judges in the city. "Busing. We had to integrate schools on a 60-40 ralio, white-black, last September. Since then, high schools have been closed and any number of children hospitalized. Racial unrest! My kid is not even graduating this year, and she's a senior. I've got nothing against the black race. I just don't want them touching my child."

RAP SESSION — At one Savannah high school, many students believe the parents and administrators really cause all the furor over busing.
(Christian Science Monitor photo)

In this old cotton-port town of less than 200,000 people, where economic power is concentrated in the hands of a few, change comes slowly.

"How can you change, or improve, a city which excludes almost half its people — the 45 per cent that's black? asked a black high school student.

"Savannah is a city which likes to hide its head in the sand. If there's a problem, we try to ignore it. We think if we don't talk about it, it will go away," said Holly Deal, a graduating senior and one of the city's outstanding white students.

"For the first 11 years I was in public schools, I never heard a word from the community about quality education — until busing. Now that white parents see the conditions of black schools, they scream about quality education."

When schools opened last fall, most were ill-prepared to meet the needs of a new student body where white, blacks, suburbs and slums were coming together for the first time.

The school year began amid the noise of marches, motorcades and mass meetings to protest busing. Mothers burned the school board president in effigy, shouted at city officials and blocked elementary-school entrances. A 10-day boycott kept thousands of students home.

Before the last major boycott in February this year, widespread publicity was given the local school superintendent's statement attributing the district's poor showing in statewide scholastic tests to the "transfer of 5,000 upper-income white students to private schools in the past two years." Less notice was given a school board statement that boycotts were helping an already struggling school system lose nearly $1.9 million in state funds. (The funds are budgeted according to daily attendance records.)

The anti-busing boycott on Feb. 28 kept 17,500 students out of class. Five days later, fighting broke out between white and black students at a prestigious local high school. Racial strife caused the temporary closing of two junior high schools the following week. Minutes after President Nixon's call for a moratorium on busing, Savannah Mayor John P. Rousakis made a televised plea for peace in the city's public school system.

When Nixon blamed busing for the "anger, fear and turmoil" in many local communities, many Savannah students questioned his understanding of the situation.

"What the President said really bothered me. If we go back the other way now, it will upset things more," said Kim Paddison, a white student in her junior year at one of the city's troubled high schools.

"Nixon listens to the older people. They're the prejudiced ones. They don't want blacks in their schools," said Eric Odum, a black student being bused to a formerly "lily-white" high school.

Unable to get federal or state funds for the extra busing in 1971-72, the school board had to take funds from music, art, and physical-education programs to pay regular transporation costs.

Students also complain about the loss of senior positions in former school clubs and councils, the failure of principals to discipline troublemakers, and the racial prejudices of many classroom teachers. The most common complaint of all, however, relates to parents. Of 297 secondary-school students recently interviewed in Savannah, almost all —white, black, militant and moderate — say parental attitudes are behind much of the trouble in school this year.

"A lot of rumors start with parents. They tell us the blacks are going to gang the whites. One father told his kid the blacks were out to get him with knives," said a blonde girl who is going to private school next year.

"Parents get all worked up when there's a little trouble, and they egg a lot of kids on. They get pretty nasty sometimes," said Debra Schneider, a soft-spoken senior who in 1971-72 met black students for the first time. "I had to stay home during the boycotts."

"The minute there's a fight, the parents are lined up in front of school with their popcorn and Coke to watch the fun. One father came over with a pistol in his belt," laughed a white boy who said his parents told him the courts were putting "integration ahead of education."

"How do you think it feels to come to school, a long way from home, and listen to people shouting: 'Nigger go home,'" asked Darrell Ancrum, a black high-school student who said he had done some fighting himself. "We didn't come to fight. We came to go to school. But we already had a chip on our shoulder, and we didn't want to be taken advantage of. We've had to grow up scuffling. All we need is a little more pushing around. We aren't going to leave. If we go back, it'll be a moral victory for the whites."

"Parents want a boycott, and they keep their kids at home. But they aren't going to school, and they don't see what effects the boycotts have. They hurt. They hurt more than anything else. Black kids resent it when white kids don't show up," said a white girl who is being bused to a formerly black high school. "I went to school during the last boycott, and I know how I felt. Vindictive. Like those kids didn't care. A lot of them just used it as an excuse for a holiday. How would I have felt if I had been black?"

"I know how I felt. Angry. A deep, deep anger," snapped a tall black girl on one of the high school biracial committees. "The same kids that sit and smile at you in class, the next day aren't there. Then they come back and want to be buddy-buddy, as if nothing happened. They've got a lot to learn, and the older heads too. Life is too easy for a lot of white kids, and they're spoiled. They've got to start thinking for themselves."

Many students say it's too late to go back, that integration will work if the community will let it work.

"Community attitudes have really hurt us this year. We have looked to the older generation for leadership, and have been disappointed. But there has been progress. I have seen students grow and their minds broaden. I have seen parents change because of change in their children," said Thom Thigpen, a white student-council president who earned top scholastic honors in the city this year. "Busing has been a positive thing for me. I am a deeper person for this experience. Going back to a sheltered way of life is not a gain for education."

"It is up to us now to develop the people who can take the pressure and make others see it will work," said Archie Glassby, a black senior-class president. "You can't close your eyes to the fact we can't lie down anymore."

Tank-Killers: The Heroes Of Saigon

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

SAIGON — If the Saigon government is proud of anything since the current Communist offensive began, it is the tank "kills" scored by its infantrymen and Air Force.

The city is plastered with posters showing photographs of burning and wrecked North Vietnamese tanks.

The man whom the government is proclaiming as the biggest hero of the current fighting is Capt. Tran The Vinh, a fighter-bomber pilot credited with destroying 21 tanks before being shot down and apparently killed. The government has erected huge portraits of the captain at key points in the South Vietnamese capital.

A few of the South Vietnamese who have destroyed tanks have made appearances on television to describe their exploits.

And South Vietnamese commanders are handing out 20,000 piaster ($50) rewards to infantrymen for every tank they knock out. Pilots get 10,000 piaster.

The most popular weapon among the South Vietnamese infantrymen these days is the M-72 LAW light anti-tank weapon; a deceptively toy-like disposable plastic tube about three feet long.

A handle drops down and a rudimentary sighting device pops up. The soldier doesn't have to load the weapon. He merely unscrews a protective device, and it's ready for use — against the biggest tanks the North Vietnamese have to offer.

One man can fire it by slipping it onto his shoulder. After firing, he throws the tube away.

Toward the end of the Laos invasion last year, after the Communists showed a willingness to commit large numbers of tanks to the fighting, the LAW was issued to some South Vietnamese troops. But few had had much training with the weapon.

For the current offensive, the South Vietnamese were better prepared.

The Marines fighting in Quang Tri have had plenty of training with the LAW, and they have been credited with numerous kills.

But despite the fact that the South Vietnamese were prepared to encounter tanks, both American and South Vietnamese generals admit to being amazed at their extensive use by the Communists. With the latest attacks on Kontum Province, Hanoi now has thrown tanks into the battle in three of the country's four military regions.

The appearance of Soviet-built T-54 tanks in Binh Long province to the north of Saigon came as a complete surprise.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, had been assured by the Air Force prior to the offensive that there were no T-54s in the area. But South Vietnamese Air Force pilots recently reported destroying ree tanks in an area only 35 miles north of Saigon.

Abram's early specialty was tank warfare. He gained fame in World War II as the tank commander who led the U.S. breakthrough at Bastogne.

The American general has the greatest respect for Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese commander, but he is reported to feel that tanks are largely useless when one's adversary dominates the air.

Nevertheless, Giap has deployed his tanks in fairly large numbers, and continues to do so.

At Quang Tri and at An Loc, South Vietnamese tanks and infantrymen and U.S. and South Vietnamese planes so far have handled the tank threat effectively. Even U.S. Navy destroyers have picked off a few.

The North Vietnamese have made the mistake in some cases of feeding the tanks in piecemeal, apparently because of a fear that if they massed their tanks they would become extremely vulnerable to air strikes.

They have also made the mistake of sending in their tanks "blind," without infantrymen to guide them and prepare the way. This has happened at An Loc.

In one battle in Quang Tri, several T-54s operating at night took a wrong turn off a road and lost their way. They ended up at dawn at the bottom of a hill dominated by a platoon of South Vietnamese M-48 tanks that had just completed training.

The North Vietnamese tanks didn't stand a chance. The South Vietnamese tankers lowered their guns and destroyed the T-54s one by one.

The Institute of Strategic Studies estimated early last year that Hanoi had only about 175 tanks available. But official U.S. sources estimate that 145 tanks have already been destroyed in Quang Tri and at An Loc.

It is difficult, however, to get an accurate estimate on the number of tank kills because some of the tanks have probably been hit, and counted, two or three different times.

Moreover, the North Vietnamese have had some success in disguising turned-over sampans as tanks. And they have used captured South Vietnamese armored personnel carriers at An Loc which have sometimes been reported as tanks.

But if the South Vietnamese had only tanks to contend with, they would have the situation well in hand. The problem is that the North Vietnamese, while committing innumerable errors with their tanks, have at the same time made highly effective use of their heavy artillery and antiaircraft guns.

Some South Vietnamese sources feel that almost too much emphasis is being placed on knocking out the tanks. Not enough emphasis, they say, is being placed on finding effective methods for coping with the artillery and antiaircraft fire.

"At one time, it was the M-16 rifle that everybody wanted," said an American observer with several years of experience in Vietnam.

"Then it was the M-79 grenade launcher that made everybody feel 10 feet tall," he said. "Every unit had to have one."

"Now it's the LAW that everyone wants.

"But the problem with this army all along has been that they've tried to substitute the latest weapons for good leadership and judgment."

The Gun In Your Home —Is It Really Needed?

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — One recent night a Rhode Islander was finally going through some possessions of his late father. He was shocked to come across two pistols and a box of bullets.

He'd never seen the pistols . . . never knew his dad had any.

And he didn't want them himself — it could be dangerous to have pistols lying around, he'd heard police say. So he toted them off to his local police station and turned them in.

The National Council for a Responsible Firearms Policy wishes other Americans would follow the Rohde Island man's lead. The council, a long-time advocate of effective gun control, has begun a campaign to urge all gun owners to look around their homes, check their guns — and decide whether they really need them. And to see, while they're at it, whether they really can keep guns that lie around their homes out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them — persons who might break into the home, for instance.

The council's position is that "guns that are just 'around' and not considered essential are not worth having and ought to be turned over to appropriate agencies for destruction."

The council suggests that churches take an effective role in a gun "turn-in" movement. Specifically it suggests that guns be turned in to churches; indirectly there is the possibility that they could lead a "turn-in" movement.

"Large numbers of guns — maybe millions — lie around in attics, closets, and drawers," says the council's president James V. Bennett, a former director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons. They "are not kept carefully and safely, and are never used or intended to be used. If these guns are turned in to the police for destruction, they will not be lost or stolen or otherwise fall into irresponsible hands."

For a number of years the council has lobbied in Congress on behalf of effective gun control. During the 1968 congressional fight for improved gun control —which resulted in passage of a bill outlawing mail-order sale of guns —the council collected more than one million signatures to petitions calling for strengthened gun-control measures.

The Charge-Card Ranks Diminish

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor

Close to 20 per cent of the people who had BankAmericard or Master Charge cards last year no longer have them. The bank that issued the plastic money substitute took it back.

At the same time banks were reducing the number of people holding their credit cards — usually not by reissuing cards to inactive accounts — individuals who still had bank credit cards used them to make annual purchases worth at least 20 per cent more than last year.

Interbank Card Association, the group of major banks which manages the Master Charge system, recently reported that nationwide first-quarter sales and cash advances charged on their card were $1.193 billion, up 21.9 per cent over the same quarter in 1971.

Simultaneously, Master Charge reported that 21.1 per cent fewer people held their cards in first quarter '72 than did at the same time the previous year. This was a result of "our effective list-cleaning effort," said Master Charge president Harold B. Hassinger.

National BankAmericard Inc. (NBI) put its first-quarter nationwide sales and cash advances at $904 million, a 29 per cent improvement over first quarter 1971.

However, there were 18.7 per cent fewer BankAmericards in circulation at the end of the first quarter 1972 than a year earlier. NBI now has about 21.95 million cards outstanding. According to BankAmericard, the cardholder drop reflects "a member bank policy of canceling accounts inactive for an extended period of time."

The two major bank-card interchange systems — National BankAmericard Inc. (NBI) and Interbank Card Association (Master Charge) have dominated the bank credit-card field for about two years.

Prior to that time some major regional banks maintained interchange facilities to process their bank card sales drafts and licensed other banks to issue cards. Most banks that formerly offered independent plans have now joined the two major systems in order to gain national acceptance for their cards.

One of the last independents to relent was New York's Chase Manhattan Bank which decided in 1971 to add its two million UniCards to the NBI system.

The two bank credit-card associations do not provide information on the overall profitability of their operations. Industry sources do acknowledge that the concerted effort by members of both credit-card associations to reduce the number of cards outstanding was designed to lower direct costs and improve profitability.

NBI admits that revenues from BankAmericard operations exceed direct and indirect costs at only 41 per cent of their member banks.

The unprofitable experience of some NBI members is not uncommon. Until 1971, losses were more common than profits industrywide, according to the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank. These losses were caused by heavy start-up costs for banks' credit-card operations. These costs included computer software, advertising, manpower training, and fraud and credit write-offs.

In 1970 credit card charge-off losses for federal Reserve Bank members were $116 million, or 3.4 per cent of outstandings.

Some banks had losses early in their credit card operations because they underestimated the number of customers who would pay their bills immediately thus avoiding interest charges which the banks find profitable.

According to Federal Reserve Bank statistics just under one-third of all bank credit-card holders avoid interest by paying the total amount of their bank-card balance.

Many customers utilize the grace period built into the bank's billing cycle. Payment on the bank-card balance isn't due for 25 days after the close of the billing period. If an item is charged at the very end of the billing cycle, it will not appear on that month's statement. This strategy gives the customer a grace period of about 55 days between receipt of merchandise and initial payment-due date.

While cutting the number of cardholders does not reduce the expense of having to provide what amount to interest-free loans, if the banks develop a credit-card population which uses the card frequently, their chances are better of having individuals spread payments over several months and thus incur interest charges.

And people do maintain sizable balances on which they pay interest. With the average credit-card purchase being only $17.34, Master Charge's accounts had an average outstanding balance during the first quarter of $234.13. This was a 17.7 per cent increase over the previous year's average balance. BankAmericard reported that at the end of 1971 its average account balance was $243.

Bank credit card and large account balances tend to be accumulated by those with college educations who make more than $10,000 a year.

The Federal Reserve Bank found that only 12.7 per cent of the households they surveyed which had incomes under $5,000 had a bank credit card, whereas 44.2 per cent of the families with incomes of more than $10,000 had bank cards.

Only 17.9 per cent of the families with some high-school education had bank cards, but 44.0 per cent of the families with some college education held cards.

While cards are popular, especially among the educated and better off, they do not yet dominate the consumer credit market. The plastic money substitutes currently account for only 3 per cent of total consumer credit and 23 per cent revolving credit.

THIS WEEK In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A former four-star general in charge of all U. S. Air Force units in South Vietnam told a House subcommittee this week he had ordered bombing raids over North Vietnam last winter even though President Nixon had not authorized them at that time.

Gen. John D. Lavelle said he ordered "in the neighborhood of 20 unauthorized strikes" but had reported to higher headquarters that they were "protective reaction."

The Air Force recalled Lavelle from Vietnam earlier this year, it was learned, and he was retired on a monthly $2,250 pension. The Air Force recommended he be retired at three-star rank — a loss of one star.

Toward the end of the week, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., urged the Air Force to court martial the general. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he was concerned that Lavell's air strikes may have caused disruption of the Paris peace talks.

Around The World, Around The Clock

SAIGON — A suspension of U.S. bombing strikes around Hanoi was reported because of the visit of Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny. Before the halt, American warplanes destroyed a hydroelectric plant supplying electricity to Hanoi and Haiphong, the U.S. command said.

WASHINGTON — The White House announced that presidential adviser Henry A. Kisinger would make his fourth trip to China, for talks with Premier Chou En-Lai. The agenda was not announced.

PLEIKU, South Vietnam — A Cathay Pacific jet exploded in flight and crashed above the Central Highlands. All 81 persons aboard, including 16 Americans, were believed killed.

JAIPUR, India — A Japan Air Lines DC8, approaching New Delhi to land, crashed into a dry river bed killing 87 persons. Sixteen Americans were among the victims.

RAPID CITY, S.D. — The official death toll in a flood disaster rose to 207, making it the worst U.S. flood since the 1930s. The number of missing was put at nearly 700.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon sent Congress a document outlining 18 accords reached with the Russians in connection with the two strategic arms limitation agreements he signed in Moscow. He asked Congress to pass both pacts.

WASHINGTON — Richard G. Kleindienst was sworn in as attorney general.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled that states may grant liquor licenses to private clubs that practice discrimination on racial grounds. It also held that a poor person may not be jailed for a petty offense unless he is provided counsel or waives his right to a lawyer.

WASHINGTON — The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, William D. Ruckelshaus, banned virtually all uses of DDT as an unacceptable risk.

NEW DRIER — Father Paul Coquereau, a missioner on the island of Fiji since 1933, has devised a method of making flour and cereal out of rotted crops. He's shown with a new drier he has been developing.

Missionary Comes Up With A Crop-Preserver

I-J Special Report

NAILILILI, Fiji — Did you ever try tapioca cake — or hot yam cereal for breakfast?

You could if you lived in this Fijian village, reports Columban Mission Magazine, thanks to the inventive mind of Father Paul Coquereau.

Nailili lies in a beautiful setting, but it has one major disadvantage — it is subject to frequent flooding that often leaves precious crops rotting under brackish water.

Sometimes the faculty and 300 students at Coquereau's mission school rush to save the crops of cassava (tapioca) and yams before the flood waters come. But then there's too much food, and with no means of preserving it, it spoils in a few days.

The crops can't be sold either, because the local markets are glutted since farmers in the valley rush to save their produce, too. Thus, huge mounds of food are left to rot. . .and later the people go hungry.

At least, that's the way it happened until Coquereau put his mind to work.

He had a stake in the task. His boarding pupils pay only $4 a term for tuition, and the crops play a major role in sustaining the school's operation.

After much experimenting, he hit on the idea of drying the cassava, yams and breadfruit, then pounding them into flour.

He got the Marist mission Sisters in his school to experiment with the flour, and soon they were turning out doughnuts, cakes, biscuits and hot cereal.

The idea was good — but hand-processing was slow, and so the missionary designed and built his own dryer and obtained a hammer mill from friends overseas.

Next, he turned his attention to a mechanical peeler, which he designed and built. To speed up the drying process, he conceived and made a mechanical grater.

Now he's erecting his own cement block factory to house his equipment, and plans to be in full production soon.

Farmers in the area are happy because Coquereau's plant will be able to handle their produce too, especially when he develops marketing facilities in Suva, Fiji's capital.

But Coquereau, here since 1933, isn't worried about that. It'u enough for him that the 300 children in his care are now well-fed, no matter how torrential the rains.

There are some 30 Columban missionaries serving in Fiji. In addition to parishes and schools, they operate a high school and a teachers' training college.

Some Denominations Stagnate, Others Show Signs Of Vitality

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

While many so-called "mainline" Protestant denominations are stagnating from lack of growth, other Protestant groups are fairly exploding with vitality.

The stagnating churches, by and large, are those that take a liberal stand on social issues, are broadly tolerant of differing theological views, and permissive about personal behavior.

The growing churches are conservative on social issues. They are authoritarian in proclaiming their doctrines, and intolerant of any deviation from them. They make strict demands on their members regarding personal behavior and religious practice, and are quick to rebuke or expel those who fail to conform.

This analysis is the result of a long study by the Rev. Dean M. Kelley, a liberal Methodist minister who holds high office in the National Council of Churches. Kelley's conclusions in a new book, "Why Conservative Churches Are Growing" (Harper & Row), are all the more persuasive because, as he points out, they are exactly opposite of what he would prefer.

While liberal, ecumenical denominations such as the United Methodists, Episcopalians, United Presbyterians, American Baptists, and Lutheran Church in America "are trying to survive what they hope will be a temporary adversity," Kelley notes, others such as the Southern Baptist Convention, the Assemblies of God, the Churches of God, various Pentecostal groups, the Mormons, the Seventh Day Adventists and many smaller evangelical groups are growing at a substantially faster rate than the U.S. population.

All of the robustly growing churches sharply contradict the Protestant liberal's views of what a church should be like, Kelley says.

"They are not 'reasonable,' ttey are not 'tolerant,' they are not ecumenical, they are not 'relevant.' Quite the contrary. They often refuse to recognize the validitz of other churches' teachings. They observe unusual rituals and peculiar dietary customs. They try to impose uniformity of belief and practice among their members by censorship, heresy trials and the like."

Kelley lists six traits which seem to be related to vitality and robust growth in a church.

First is commitment — a willingness to sacrifice social status, possessions, even life itself for the good of the church and its faith.

Second is discipline — willingness to obey the commands of the authorized leadership without question, and a readiness to accept punishment for infraction of the rules rather than leave the fellowship of the group.

Third is missionary zeal — an eagerness to tell the good news of one's personal experience of salvation to as many other people as possible.

Fourth is absolutism in doctrine — the belief that "we have the Truth and all others are in error."

Fifth is conformity — intolerance of deviant beliefs or dissent, and a tendency to shun contacts with "outsiders" of different convictions.

The sixth trait Kelley calls "fanaticism." People filled with missionary zeal, he says, are strong on telling others their view, but not much on listening.

By contrast, Kelley found in stagnant or non-growing denominations such traits as:

Relativism —the belief that no one has a monopoly on truth and all insights are partial.

Diversity —an attitude of leniency toward individual differences in belief and behavior, and a prevailing idea that everyone should be free to "do his own thing."

Dialogue —readiness to exchange views with other religious groups, and an appreciative rather than judgmental attitude toward them.

Individualism —refusal to give unquestioning obedience to any church authority, and readiness to quit the group rather than submit to any rebuke or demand.

Reserve —a reluctance to expose one's convictions or try to impose them on others, with consequent decay of missionary enterprise.

GOD AND MAN

Grace: What Does It Mean?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"Grace" is one of the jargon words of the Christian religion.

Preachers bandy it about in sermons and prayers, and rarely bother to explain what it means. Evidently, they assume their hearers already know.

Unfortunately, many of them don't. It would be hard to find any other word commonly used in Christian worship that is so little understood by the average layman.

The layman's confusion is understandable, for Christian preachers and writers from the time of St. Paul until now have used the word "grace" in two quite different ways.

First, in traditional Christian usage, grace is one of the attributes of God. It is God's nature to be "gracious" —that is, to be favorably disposed toward man even when man least deserves God's approval.

St. Paul, whose letters make grace a key word in the Christian vocabulary, spelled out this particular meaning:

"God's mercy is so rich, and his love for us is so great that while we were spiritually dead in our disobedience He brought us to life with Christ. It is by God's grace that you have been saved ... It is not your own doing, but God's gift."

In The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible, a modern theologian, Dr. C.L. Mitton, defines grace as "God's unmerited, free, spontaneous love for sinful man, revealed and made effective in Jesus Christ."

This concept of grace, Mitton says, "lies at the very heart of the Christian gospel and is one of its most distinctive features."

But grace also is used in the Bible and in contemporary Christian teaching in another sense, not contradictory to the first, but decidedly different in its personal meaning to an individual.

Grace is a kind of inner power which God bestows on men and women to enable them to be better, stronger, braver, kinder and more loving than they can manage on their own.

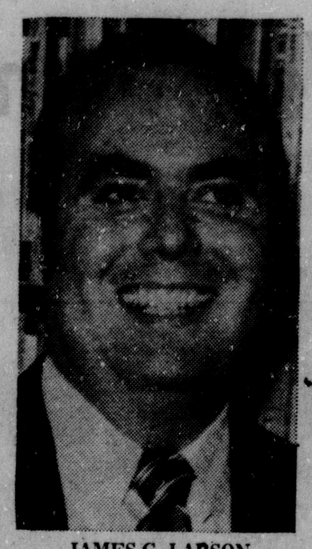

The Maryknoll Catholic Dictionary defines grace in this sense as a "supernatural gift freely given by God" which "enlightens the intellect and strengthens the will."

In his Encyclopedia of Religion and Religions," Dr. E. Royston Pike, a Protestant theologian, offers a strikingly similar definition. Grace, he says, is "supernatural aid by which God enlightens the human kind and enables the human will to perform what the Divine Will requires."

St. Paul in his letter to the Colossians listed some of the specific spiritual benefits that are conferred by the grace of God when faith enables it to become operative in a person's inner life. It leads, the apostle said, to wisdom and understanding, to a loving heard and a forgiving spirit, to joy and peace. Because of it, "you will be able to live as the Lord wants, and always do what pleases him. Your lives will be fruitful in all kinds of good works, and you will grow in your knowledge of God."

The concept of grace as inner power, bestowed on men through prayer, scripture reading and especially through the sacrament of the Eucharist, seems to have grown up in Christianity not as a result of theological speculation, but simply as an attempt to describe an actual experience widely shared in the Christian community.

Millions of practicing Christians are prepared to testify that the experience is still available, today, to anyone who sincerely seeks it.

JAMES G. LARSON
Guest speaker

Larson To Speak In Marinwood

James G. Larson, minister of education at Peninsula Covenant Church in Redwood City, will speak at tomorrow's 9:30 a.m. worship service of the Marin Covenant Church.

The church meets at Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

"I'm O.K., You're O.K." will be the theme of Larson's message.

Prior to his coming to Redwood City, Larson served as pastor of Lakeview Covenant Church in Duluth, Minn. Presently, he is responsible for all phases of education for the Redwood City Church.

He has written study materials for Gospel Light Press and edited children's materials for the Evangelical Covenant Church of America.

Assembly Of God Groups To Gather

A week of music and the spoken word will bring together in Novato, beginning tomorrow at 11 a.m., six North Bay church groups of the Assembly of God.

The event will continue through Friday, for choirs from Cloverdale, Santa Rosa, Sebastopol, Petaluma and San Rafael joining the Novato group. There will be soloists from the six congregations.

Featured speaker for the week will be Rev. Melvin A. Grams, former dean of the International Bible Correspondence Institute and for 16 years a missionary in Africa.

The event will be titled "Impact '72," and a group of teenagers includingvisitors from Bethany College, Santa Cruz, will visit Novato homes.

The Novato church is located at 1370 South Novato Boulevard. A similar event will be held during the same period at Southern Marin Church of God at E. Blithedale and Sycamore avenues in Mill Valley.

Special speakers will be Leroy Cloud, pastor of the First Assembly of God church in Fremont, speaking to the Southern Marin group.

Mel Grams, former Assembly of God missionary to Africa and academic dean of the Assemblies of God International Correspondence institute, will be speaking in Novato.

Witnesses To Meet In Santa Rosa

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York has completed plans for 59 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses for 1972.

One convention is scheduled for Santa Rosa from June 29 to July 2.

Convention officials also revealed in New York that the Oakland Coliseum Arena will be the site from July 13 to 16.

Francis Paulson, supervisor of the San Rafael congregation, said the four-day conventions will stress the importance of spirituality in an age of materialism.

"The world is under great stress," he said. "Daily the news media report on revolution, anarchy, pollution, war, crime, disease and death.

"Jehovah's Witnesses feel there is a definite drift away from the Bible. The conventions will place the Bible in its proper place . . ."

He said the convention theme is "Divine Rulership" and the program's composition of lectures, symposiums, dramas and discussions will center on the need for divine intervention for man to have peace and life.

Paulson said 110 delegates will represent San Rafael.

CHURCH EVENTS

Seminary Will Host Students

International students from colleges and universities in California, Washington and Oregon are expected to arrive tomorrow on the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary campus for a Christian international student conference, to begin Monday.

Overall theme for the event at the Mill Valley campus, expected to draw about 40 students from 10 nations, will be "Sharing Christ." Wendell Foss, director of student work for the Southern Baptist General Convention of California, Fresno, said the conference participants, all of whom are "professing Christians," will be given instruction in seminars on how to "share their faith in Jesus Christ on the campus to both American students and students from their own country."

The conference will feature music, testimonials from the students related to "their faith in Jesus Christ," Bible study, discussion groups, and an opportunity to see Marin County and the Bay Area, Foss said.

Speakers for the event will be: Dr. Joyce Fan, chairman of the division of science and mathematics for Houston Baptist College; Doyle Baird, of the Southern Baptist National Student Ministries, Nashville, Tenn.; Benton Williams, consultant on international student work for the National Student Ministries, and Sam Fort, director of student work for Southern Baptists in Oregon and Washington.

Dr. Don Kim, pastor of Berendo Street Baptist Church in Los Angeles and a native of Korea, will be Bible study leader.

The students will arrive in the Bay Area today and will be guests of Calvary Baptist Church, Redwood City, and Central Baptist Church, Alameda. They will arrive on the Golden Gate campus tomorrow night.

Poetry Liturgy

Marin poet Margaret Albanese will read tomorrow at Community Congregational Church in Tiburon. The liturgy of the service will be her poetry, the poetry of the Old Testament, and the musical setting of the Chichester Psalms by Leonard Bernstein.

Her work is entitled, "Omnia Opera" —a celebration of worship. The services are at 8 a.m. and 10 a.m.

Touring Choir

A youth choir from Escondido on Tuesday will present a "young world" musical titled, "Life," at First Baptist Church, 1411 Lincoln Ave., San Rafael.

The presentation by the touring Youth Choir of Bethel Baptist Church, Escondido, will begin at 8 p.m. and is free, according to Rev. Barrett M. Lampp, pastor of First Baptist Church.

"Life" was written by Otis Skillings.

Reverend Monsignor

A Cotati pastor is among four priests in the Santa Rosa Catholic Diocese who have been given the title of reverend monsignor by Pope Paul VI.

The new prelate from Sonoma County is Msgr. Hugh Donohue, who has been pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Cotati since 1957. He was ordained in 1939 and is an Oakland native.

Petaluma Breakfast

Congregation B'nai Israel in Petaluma will hold a Father's Day breakfast from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. tomorrow at the Petaluma Jewish Community Center.

The meal, for which tickets will be sold, includes bagels and lox. Sid Lipton is chairman.

They Eat Lunch Over The Bible

MINNEAPOLIS — Those who know Charlie's Cafe Exceptionale would, at first blush, regard it as an unlikely place for a Bible class.

A gourmet restaurant since the late 1920s, Charlie's is better known for serving good food than religion.

But now, from 20 to 30 business men and women meet in one of the rooms for lunch and to read the Bible.

"It will probably take us 25 years to go through it," said Rabbi Max Shapiro, recruited to lead the lunch study-hour. Lawyer Marvin Borman conceived the idea and was elected to head the downtown class. He is president of the temple congregation.

The class, which began last fall, is still no farther than the Book of Genesis.

JOHN KRAUS

TRUDY KRAUS
Soprano soloist

Pianist, Wife To Bring Hymn Variation Concert

John Kraus, a concert pianist, and his wife, Trudy, a soprano soloist, will present a concert of hymn variations at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Valley Baptist Church.

The church is located at 3 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

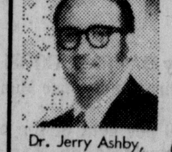

Kraus has recently returned from a tour of the southeastern United States, the Panama Canal Zone, Costa Rica and Mexico City.

He is a former member of the faculty which taught piano at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Mrs. Kraus in the past has been soprano soloist for several oratorio groups krom throughout California.

The Krauses make their home in San Jose.

Nicklaus, 5 Others Lead Palmer By 1 In Open

PEBBLE BEACH, (UPI)—It's been eight long years since Arnold Palmer has won a major golf championship, but one of his famous "charges" had him breathing down the necks of the leaders today in the third round of the U.S. Open Golf Championship.

"It was my best competitive round of the year," said Palmer with that famous grin after blasting four strokes off par in the second round for a 68 that gave him a two-round total of 145 at the Open halfway mark.

That's only one stroke behind Jack Nicklaus and the five others tied with him for the lead at dead-even-par 144— young Lanny Wadkins, erratic Homero Blancas, Australian Bruce Crampton, and Texans Kermit Zarley and Cesar Sanudo—the biggest first-place traffic jam at the halfway mark in Open history.

And with two rounds to go over the pretty but tricky seaside links of the Pebble Beach Golf Course, the question was whether the 42-year-old general of "Arnie's Army" really has recaptured for one dazzling weekend the brilliance of yesteryear.

Palmer, who admits that he "worked as hard as I have in recent years" in practicing 27 holes per day for a week on this course in preparation for the Open, says plainly that he thinks he's got a good chance to win a title for the first time since he won the Masters in 1964. And, what's more, he thought so even after shooting a 77 in Thursday's first round.

"When you can shoot a 77 and you are only six strokes out of the lead, sure, you've got a chance," said Palmer. "That's just like shooting a 72 when somebody else has a 66 in the first round. You've got a chance."

Arnie, followed as usual by his legion of admirers who whoop and holler every chance they get, made the most of that chance in yesterday's second round with six birdies and only two bogeys. Most significantly, his 35 on the first nine was followed by a 33 on the back nine—the best anyone has played the toughest group of holes in this tournament.

Palmer's 68, and a similar score by Wadkins, the former U.S. Amateur champion that many observers call the "new Palmer," were the best single rounds so far in the Open.

The field, originally 150, was cut to 70 for the third round today and the fourth Sunday, both to be televised nationally, Channel 7-13 at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Included among the survivors were only three amateurs — Tom Kite of Austin, Tex., at 148, Jim Simons of Butler, Pa., at 150, and Daniel O'Neill, of Jamestown, N.Y., 154.

One other big question was whether Nicklaus muffed his big chance to blow the tournament apart on Friday. The "Golden Bear" started the day tied with five other players for the lead and all of them except Zarley dropped away. But, although he was as much as three strokes under par at one point, Nicklaus bogeyed three straight holes on the back side and went one over par for the round with a 73.

"I missed a lot of short putts," Nicklaus confessed. "With sharp putting I could have had an awful good round, although I didn't hit it all that well. Also, I threw the ball into the rough too many times."

Nicklaus, who has led or been tied for the lead in every round this year of both the Masters and the Open, also mentioned a gust of wind that caught his putter just as he was stroking the ball on the 14th. The ball wound up six feet wide of the cup and he two-putted from there for a bogey that started his bogey barrage.

Defending champion Lee Trevino put on an amazing show in the second round when he fired an even-par 72 despite his weakened condition in his battle with pneumonia. He stood at 146—only two strokes out of the lead—after closing his round with a flourish, a birdie on the long 18th, and announced, "I'm going home to bed." He slept 20 hours after the opening round.

Tied with Trevino at 146 were Gary Player, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Elder, Rod Funseth, and Ralph Johnston of Garden

Holtzman In 10th Victory

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's snapped a four-game losing streak Friday night as Ken Holtzman shut out the Cleveland Indians 5-0 on seven scattered singles and became the American League's fourth 10-game winner.

One of the other three is Cleveland's Gaylord Perry, scheduled to be on the mound this afternoon when the Athletics and Indians clash again. The A's sent rookie left-hander Dave Hamilton (3-0) against the former San Francisco Giant, who is 10-5.

The other 10-game winners are Mickey Lolich of Detroit and Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox.

League-leading home run hitter Reggie Jackson collected his 13th in a big four-run first inning that knocked out loser Dick Tidrow.

Holtzman, obtained in a midwinter trade from the Chicago Cubs for outfielder Rick Monday, was relaxed after the win, and said he hasn't found the American League any easier. "I just have a better mental attitude this year and am concentrating more," he said.

Holtzman had expressed occasional displeasure over his handling last season by Cub Manager Leo Durocher and he said it is easier for a pitcher to win in a big ballpark like the A's' plush Oakland Colisieum rather than the "hitter's paradise" in Wrigley Field.

He was also quick to give much of the credit for his AL successes to catcher Dave Duncan. Duncan, who was rested earlier this week during a batting slump, drove in two first inning runs with a single of Tidrow.

Holtzman himself collected two singles and an RBI double enroute to his third shutout of the year.

OUCH — St. Louis shortstop Dwain Anderson (19) grimaced as San Francisco catcher Dave Rader (14) smashed into him, in breaking up a second inning double play attempt at second base last night in St. Louis. Anderson's teamamte, second baseman Ted Sizemore, watched after he fielded a ground ball and tossed it to Anderson covering second base. Anderson never got off the throw. San Francisco won, 6-1.

Giants Whip Cards, Climb Out Of Cellar

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pitching was center stage for the San Francisco Giants on four acts yesterday as the Giants escaped the cellar.

First, right-hander Don Carrithers earned a spot in the Giants rotation by pitching a seven-hitter against St. Louis in winning 6-1.

Second, the Giants announced Carrithers will be the fifth starter, giving ailing Juan Marichal an extra day of rest, according to San Francisco manager Charley Fox.

Third, the Giants waived left-handed pitcher John Cumberland to the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and received third baseman Jeff Mason in return.

Fourth, the Giants recalled right-hander Frank Reberger from Phoenix. Reberger, 6-4, this year, lives in Novato in the off-season.

Carrithers also singled home the winning run for San Francisco.

The win lifted the National League West Division Giants into fifth place, .001 ahead of the last-place San Diego Padres.

Carrithers, pitching for the first time since June 4th and making his first start since May 2nd, allowed five singles and raised his record to 2-3 in his first complete game of the season. He allowed the only St. Louis run in the first when Lou Brock singled, stole second, advanced on Ted Sizemore's single and scored on a forceout.

Carrithers singled in the second inning —his second hit of the season — to drive home Garry Maddox, who doubled and advanced on a groundout by Tito Fuentes. Al Gallagher singles before Maddox's double and scored on Fuentes' grounder.

The Giants knocked St. Louis starter Rick Wise out of the game in the third. Chris Speier singled, Dave Kingman doubles and Speier scored when Brock fumbled the ball in left field. Kingman scored on Dave Rader's single. The other two San Francisco runs came on Bobby Bonds' homer off Al Santorini after Fuentes' singled in the sixth.

Finley Takes Over ABA Pros

CHICAGO (UPI) — After Charles O. Finley left the room, John "Buddy" Leake and Aaron Fogelman gave each other a handshake and a smile.

There was no need to ask how they felt.

Finley had just signed a contract giving him possession of the Memphis Pros, the American Basketball Association team, of which Leake was board chairman and Fogelman president.

FINLEY

Finley may make it or break it in Memphis, but the Pros were no longer Leake's and Fogelman's concern. If there was any more money to be lost, Finley would lose it. The Pros, a losing proposition, were off their hands.

But Finley may make out, too. He owns the Oakland A's in American League baseball action, and the California Golden Seals, whose hockey skates flash for Finley in Oakland.

Before Leake and Fogelman came to his insurance office Friday, Finley rumbled on about the concerns of a sports team owner.

He said the Pros would stay in Memphis (though under another name), He expected to do well there because there would be only one major sports team in town, and the National Basketball Association and the ABA should merge to solve their mutual problems.

'ANYONE'

"If anyone would have told me one month ago that I'd have owned a basketball team in either league I'd have said, 'Man, you're crazy'."

However, he said, a person with the Miami Floridians called him and asked if he wanted to buy that team. Finley said he turned down the offer but "he was such an interesting person on the phone, I guess I talked to him too long."

Finley said later he received a call from the ABA owners meeting, asking if he happened to be in the market for a basketball team—the Pros. He was.

'DEFINITELY'

Finley said he was "definitely" going to keep the team in Memphis.

3rd Title In Row For USC Nine

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Southern California Trojans are the kings of college baseball for the third straight year after defeating the Arizona State Sun Devils 1-0 Friday night in the championship game of the 26th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association World Series.

The Trojans had defeated Arizona State 3-1 Thursday night in a contest they had to win to stay alive in the double elimination tournament.

The title game featured an outstanding pitching performance by Southern California reliever Russ McQueen, who faced a bases-loaded no-out situation when called in by Coach Rod Dedeaux in the bottom of the fifth.

Five pitches later the Sun Devils were out on two ground balls and a short fly.

So exceptional was his overall performance he was named the tournament's outstanding player.

The shutout by Sogge and McQueen was the first suffered by Arizona State this year, during which the Sun Devils compiled a glittering 64-6 record. Left-hander Jeff Crawford went the distance for Arizona State and lost only his second decision in 15 games.

Except for the third inning when he wild-pitched in the only run of the contest, Crawford also pitched very well.

Scoring the run was Tim Steele, who opened the inning with a single, moved to third on a walk and ground out, and then came home on the wild pitch.

Chris Evert Wins

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Tennis phenom Chris Evert, a 17-year-old from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. defeated Great Britain's top seed Virginia Wade, 6-4, 6-4 in the Wightman Cup women's tennis tourney between the United States and Great Britain yesterday.

UNAUTHORIZED GAME

NBA Owners Fine Dissident All-Stars

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI)—National Basketball Association owners, apparently piqued because their Players' Association tried to embarrass them with an all-star game against the ABA, have levied $3,000 fines against nine players.

But the NBA Players' Association, reacting swiftly and angrily, threatened to take whatever action it needed—including a strike—to prevent the league from ever getting the money.

UNANIMOUS

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, closing a two-day meeting of owners Friday, said the vote was unanimous to fine the players who participated in the May 25 game without permission.

Paul Silau and Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns, who had permission from owner Richard L. Bloch to play in the game, escaped the fines. The ABA took no action against its players, having given them blanket approval in advance.

CONTACT

The fines were the strongest action the NBA has ever taken under a clause in the standard contract which bars such games without approval of a player's team.

The action hardly was calculated to reconcile the differences between the owners and the association, whose objections have been the biggest stumbling block to congressional approval of the NBA-ABA merger.

RECOURSE

"The players will take every legal recourse to prevent it (the fines) from happening," Larry Fleisher, executive director of the NBA Players' Association, announced in New York.

Kennedy declined comment on Fleisher's reaction.

Fleisher and the association began the NBA-ABA all-star game last spring in an effort to persuade Congress that the two leagues could play each other without a formally approved merger, which the players oppose because it would weaken their bargaining power.

FINES

Players facing the fines are Oscar Robertson of Milwaukee, president of the Association, playoff MVP Wilt Chamberlain and Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, Archie Clark of Baltimore, Bob Love of Chicago, John Havlicek of Boston, Nate Archibald of Kansas City, Bob Lanier of Detroit and Dave DeBusschere of New York.

Owners never previously acted against non-sanctioned games like the Maurice Stokes benefit at Monticello, N. Y., or the Rucker tournament in New York City because they did not feel the pinch. But sources said they decided to take a stand this time because of the delicate status of the merger legislation.

16 Tabbed By North All-Stars

Sixteen players, not including Tamalpais High School's Clifford Hall, have been chosen to play on the North team in the fourth annual North-South All-Star Classic baseball game next Saturday afternoon at Candlestick Park in San Francisco.

Hall, a certain choice for the game according to sources close to the selection committee, Wednesday excluded himself by signing professional contract with the Chicago Cubs and Thursday departed for the Cubs' rookie league team in Bradenton, Fla.

Two other Marinites — pitcher Mike Lamb of Novato High and outfielder-pitcher John Billings of Drake — were among the 66 nominees submitted by Northern California sportswriters. Neither was selected.

North coaches will be George Powles of Skyline High School in Oakland and Bill Dodge of Santa Cruz High.

The 16 players are:

Pitchers — Mitch Bobinger, Chico High School; Bob Knepper, Calistoga; John Rancanelli, Terra Nova (Pacifica); Mike Williamson, Hillsdale (San Mateo).

Infielders — Mike Bartel, Alameda; Doug Cleary, Homestead (Los Altos); Bob Dallas, Merced; Don Lyons, Riordan (San Francisco); Cleo Smith, Harry Ells (Richmond); Ron Thompson, Ygnacio Valley.

Outfielders — Steve Falchetta, Pinole Valley; Niles Nyman, Rancho Cordova; Steve Plut, St. Francis (Mountain View); Bill Zisk, Roseville.

Catchers — Gregory Kane, Arcata; Gary Stoller, Westmore (Daly City).

Softball Results

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league play last night at Albert Park, Bourbon Shop edged Alpine Tree, 4-3; Les Elites blanked Gallagher, 3-0; and MacArthur's trampled Isi Wisnes, 14-3.

Two Marinites In Wimbledon

Marin County will have two representatives in the prestigeous All-England tennis championships beginning June 26 at Wimbledon — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael and Mike Machette of Belvedere.

Each will play singles, and they will team up in mixed doubles competition. Machette also may play men's doubles with Jeff Austin from UCLA.

Machette left for England last nightfrom Athens, Ga., where he participated in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. He played for the University of Southern California.

Miss Walsh has been touring Europe and Africa for several months, and Monday scored a pair of impressive victories as the United States Junior Wightman Cup team defeated Great Britain, 4-2.

Miss Walsh won a singles

MARIN-SONOMA PREP BASEBALL TONIGHT

The second annual Marin-Sonoma All-Star Baseball Game will be played tonight at 8 o'clock at Albert Park in San Rafael.

The game pits a team of graduating high-school seniors from the North Bay and Sonoma County Leagues against a similar team from the Marin County Athletic League.

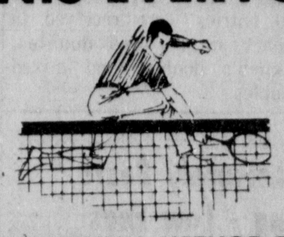

Proceeds benefit the scholarship fund of the sponsoring Italian Athletic Club of Marin.

Sonoma head coach Jim Dougherty of Rancho Cotate High School in Rohert Park yesterday confirmed that Sam Solis of Petaluma High would be his starting pitcher, and announced the remainder of his lineup.

Lou Goring of Rancho will play catcher, Larry Christiani of Petaluma first base, Ron Meyers of Montgomery of Santa Rosa second, Kevin Gillmore of Petaluma shortstop and Kevin Destruel of Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa third.

Les Crandall of Analy of Sebastopol will be in left field, Mark Libby of Sonoma or Rick Lawson of Santa Rosa in center, and Al Highstreet of Petaluma or Bob Murray of Rancho in right.

Two Marks Set In AAU Track

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

SEATTLE, Wash. — The Amateur Athletic Union national track and field championships moved into the last day today with finals scheduled in 13 events following records in the shot put and 10,000 meters yesterday.

Penn State's Greg Fredericks raced like a sprinter through the last of the 24 laps in the 10,000 meters yesterday as he sped past the leaders to an American record of 28:08.8. The old mark was 28:17.6 set by Billy Mills in 1965.

Yesterday's finals before 3,800 fans saw world record holder Rancy Matson set an AAU record in the shot put with a toss of 69-6½, his best mark of the year.

Basketball

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Charlie Scott, former scoring champion of the American Basketball Association, will play for the Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association next season, Suns general manager Jerry Colangelo said yesterday.

The announcement was made following an agreement with the Virginia Squires, Scott's former team. Virginia agreed to drop all pending litigation in the case, Colangelo said.

Auto Racing

RIVERSIDE — Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., earned the pole for tomorrow's $70,000 Golden State 400 yesterday by piloting his 1972 STP Plymouth around Riverside's 2.62-mile course in 108.688 miles per hour.

Boxing

PARIS — Argentine world middleweight champion Carlos Monzon today laid his world title on the line for the fourth time when he met European champion Jean Claude Bouttier of France.

Tennis

MEXICO CITY — The U.S. Davis Cup team was expected to cinch a trip to Chile today with a doubles victory after two singles victories yesterday.

Stan Smith sailed to an easy 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Vicente Zarazua in singles play yesterday.

Mexican No. 1 player Joaquin Loyo Mayo was beaten by Tom Gorman in the first match yesterday morning, 8-6, 6-3, 7-5.

BRISTOL, England — Billie Jean King of Long Beach outclassed Australian Kerry Melville, 6-3, 6-2, today in a mere 40 minutes to take the women's singles title at the Wills Lawn Tennis tournament.

WIMBLEDON, England — Wimbledon champion, John Newcombe of Australia has finally said he will not be able to defend his title at the June 26-July 8 All-England championsips, club secretary Major David Mills said today.

BOWLING

Coffey's 881 Tops Bowlers

For some people, recognition comes late, if at all.

And San Rafael bowler John Coffey, 63, is a case in point.

Although bowling since his Air Force days in 1942, Coffey has done so with little fanfare — until recently.

First, he bowled a 300 game in March at San Rafael's Country Club Bowl, and, secondly, he rolled an 881 series at the San Rafael lanes this week to top Marin keg activities.

In his latest venture, Coffey, a 1929 Tamalpais High School graduate, rolled games of 244, 226, 188 and 223.

In addition to his Country Club Bowl exploits, Coffey, who has worked at Nave Lanes in Ignacio, Country Club Bowl and Greenbrae Lanes, does some traveling; this weekend he is bowling in Fresno.

COUNTRY CLUB BOWL

GREENBRAE LANES

Men — Dave Houston, 853 (4); Bud Kimmell, 835 (4); Bob Crowhurst, 806 (4); Bob Sharp, 612. Women — Bea Hoffmann, 731 (4); Mitzi Brown, 690 (4); Roberta Kenyon, 516; Kathy Cerar, 502. Junior — Mike Blum, 610.

NAVE LANES

Men — David Plowman, 607; Tom Jensen, 599; Ron Johnson, 597; Ron Reagan, 583; Jim Madsen, 566. Women — Marilyn Epidendio, 531; Alice Kirschnar, 525; Joyce Jensen 513.

14 Marinites In Laguna Seca Racing Field

Some 14 Marin County drivers and a Petaluman have entered the June 23-25 Olympic Spring National Championship Road Races at Monterey's Laguna Seca Raceway.

The list of Marinites in the 10 races planned for the national point meet includes: Race I Formula Vee drivers Dick Zibert of Tiburon, Stuart Fisher of San Rafael and Carl Von Doymi of Greenbrae; Race III Formula Ford contestants Tom Crowther of Kentfield, Pat Walter and Harry Hersh of Mill Valley, and Dr. John Korn of Novato; Race V F Production drivers Sed Conklin and Jon Woodner of San Rafael; Race VI G Production driver Bud Harrington of Mill Valley.

Other Marin drivers are: Race IX, A Sedan rider Buzz Dyer of Corte Madera; a Sports/Race driver Pat Semple of San Rafael; and B Sports/Race participant Harold Kirberg of Mill Valley.

Petaluma's Angus Macdonald will drive in the Race 10 Formula A competition.

Points earned will help determine western drivers to compete in the All-American runoffs scheduled for Saturday and five Sunday, June 25. Proceeds will benefit some 50 Northern California charities.

MacKay Ranks Third In Windsor Standings

Barry MacKay of Ross currently ranks third with 235 points in the Windsor Canadian Player of the Year tennis standings.

Rich Anderson of Redwood City leads with 390, followed by Henry Kamakana of Los Altos with 250. Other Marinites in the standings are John Zwieg of Greenbrae, eighth with 140, and Terry Moor of Sausalito, tied for 22nd with 25.

'Heart' Tennis To Finish Up This Weekend

The annual "Tennis for Heart" tournament gets down to the heartless part today, as some of Marin County's top players will try to defeat each other in the final rounds of competition.

Quarter-finals and semi-finals in four classes will be held today at the courts of the San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow, Fairfax. Finals will be held tomorrow.

Proceeds benefit the Marin County Heart Association. So far, "much money" has been raised, according to tournament director Bill Thiercof, as 190 entries were received in men's singles and doubles, women's doubles and mixed doubles.

BENDING A LITTLE — Golfer Jim Keim of Erie, Pa. carried body English to precarious proportions yesterday in the U.S. Oen at Pebble Beach, while watching his third hole putt roll towards the cup during the second round. The nimble golfer retained his balance but missed the putt, settling for a bogey on the par four hole.

Federal Control For Pro Sports Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and an influential member of the Senate Commerce Committee agree that professional sports have changed in the past decade and should be put "kicking and screaming" under federal control.

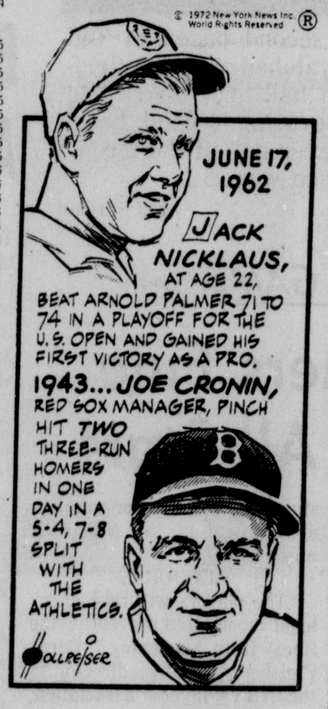

Philip B. Brown, a Washington attorney representing the NCAA, told the committee Friday that "the excessive power of the professional sports interests must be controlled in the interest of amateur athletics, or individual athletes and of the fans and the general public."

But Brown said the NCAA opposed the creation of a federal agency solely to regulate sports. He said existing agencies could handle any disputes involving telecasts, franchises and player contracts.

Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., who chaired the hearing, said he favored putting all the sports problems under the jurisdiction of one body rather than fragmenting them.

"Maybe it's time to admit that sports is different than it was 10 or 20 years ago and it's time to drag it kicking and screaming into the 20th Century," Cook said.

Fight Regulations Unification Sought

PARIS (UPI) —Directors of the European Boxing Union said Friday they will seek a unification of world titles and fight regulations at the next congress of the World Boxing Council to be held in Reno, Nev., in August.

Fernand Leclerc, president of the Union, and Piero Pini, secretary-general, said they would ask WBC delegates to consider creating a single world boxing commission, combining the WBC and the World Boxing Assgciation.

Rams' Woodlief To Packers For Pick

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers said Friday they have obtained linebacker Doug Woodlief from the Los Angeles Rams for an undisclosed, conditional draft choice in 1973.

The conditional part of the trade means the deal is off if Woodlife if unable to play for the Packers. Woodlief, 6-foot 3, 225 pounds, did not play last season and sat out most of the 1970 season with an injury. He was a starting linebacker for the Rams in 1969.

A.L. ROUNDUP

Orioles In 8th Straight Win

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There's nothing like an eight-game winning streak to get Earl Weaver beaming again.

Weaver hinted at the start of last year's World Series that he felt his Baltimore Orioles were the best team of all time and then he moaned "we're not this bad" when the club was upset by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Orioles, minus Frank Robinson, have been stumbling most of this season and Weaver hasn't been able to make any extravagant claims. But the club ran its current winning streak to eight Friday night with a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins and that was enough to get Weaver excited.

"The way we are playing right now, including pitching, hitting and defense, Baltimore has to be as good if not better than any team in baseball," Weaver said.

Actually, despite Weaver's boast, the Baltimore hitting hasn't been that sensational and the club still doesn't have a regular hitting over .276. But the Baltimore pitching has been superb and carrying the club.

During the eight-game winning streak, the four Baltimore 20-game winners from a year ago—Pat Dobson, Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally and Jim Palmer—have won two games each and they haven't allowed more than two runs in any game.

They had pitched seven straight complete games until Grant Jackson relieved Palmer with two out and the bases loaded and struck out Rick Renick to end the Minnesota game. Palmer seemed on the verge of Baltimore's eighth straight complete game when he had two out and none on but Jim Nettles singled and the next two batters walked.

Paul Blair was the hitting hero for the Orioles as he singled in the third to set up the first run on Don Baylor's sacrifice fly and then tripled in two more runs in the eighth before being thrown out in an attempt for an inside-the-park homer.

In the other American League action, Detroit blanked California 3-0, Oakland stopped Cleveland 5-0 and Kansas City edged Milwaukee 3-2. The Texas at New York and Chicago at Boston games were rained out.

Joe Coleman pitched a three-hitter to enable Detroit to remain deadlocked for first with Baltimore in the American League East by downing California. Detroit got only three hits, too, but the first was a homer by Mickey Stanley and the second was a two-run blast by Dick McAuliffe and that was the difference.

Pinch-hitter Steve Hovley singled in the deciding run with two out in the ninth as Kansas City edged Milwaukee. Richie Scheinblum singled, Tom Murphy ran for him and John Mayberry walked to set the stage for Hovley's hit. Dick Drago scattered 10 hits to get the victory.

Wynn Game-Ending Homer After Fine

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jim Wynn's wallet is lighter today but his batting average is fatter.

Wynn, fined $100 in the fourth inning by umpire Bruce Froemming for protesting a called third strike, wasn't retired the rest of the game.

Wynn singled in the seventh, walked in the ninth and slammed a home run to lead off the top of the 11th and provide Houston with a 1-0 victory over Philadelphia Friday night.

Wynn was very unhappy about the fourth inning call and he let the ump know it. He beefed, laid his bat down in the batter's box and flipped his helmet while walking to the dugout.

Froeming didn't appreciate the exhibition and said, "that's $100".

"That really made me mad," Wynn said. "I called him some choice words but I'm lucky. He could really have thrown me out of the game."

Wynn stayed in the game and his homer came on the fourth pitch by reliever Dick Selma after Steve Carlton pitched 10 scoreless innings. The game-winning homer took the sting out of the fine.

In other NL action, Chicago topped Los Angeles 4-0, Pittsburgh edged San Diego 2-1, New York beat Cincinnati 2-1 and San Francisco downed St. Louis 6-1. Montreal won the first game of a twi-night doubleheader 7-4 and Atlanta scored a 2-0 victory in the second.

SteveBlass hurled Pittsburgh to its third straight victory and 29th in its last 37 games.

Bud Harrelson tripled in the ninth inning and scored the winning run on Gary Nolan's wild pitch as the Mets' ended Cincinnati's seven-game winning streak. The wild pitch was on an 0-2 pitch to Willie Mays.

Jim Hickman hit his sixth homer and Billy Williams hit his fifth in four days to support Burt Hooton's six-hit pitching in Chicago's victory over Los Angeles.

Bob Bailey hit a two-run homer and started a four-run rally in the ninth inning with a lead-off single as Montreal downed Atlanta in the first game.

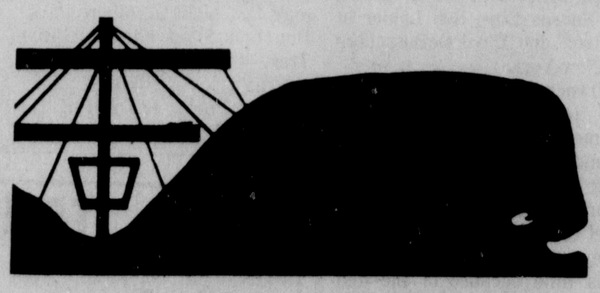

In the second game, Ron Reed pitched a five-hitter to give Atlanta the split. Earl Williams singled home the only two runs of the game in the fourth inning.

Nelson Earns Honors In Class, On Field

Jim Nelson of San Rafael, a student-athlete at Southern Colorado State College in Pueblo, made the school's dean's list with a grade-point average over 3.0 for the spring quarter, the school's athletic department reported.

The former Marin Catholic High School star was the Indians' No. 1 quarterback in spring drills. He transferred from the University of San Francisco after USF dropped football last fall.

Sometimes Generosity At The Right Time Is Good For Soul

In some bridge situations it doesn't pay to be stingy with your cards. Generosity at the right time may be good for your soul, but that's out of my district. I can assure you that it's good for your bridge score.

LOW FROM DUMMY

West opened the four of spades, and declarer played low from dummy. East naturally played the king of spades, and South just as naturally played the five of spades.

South's reasoning was simple: If he kept the queen of spades, it would win a trick, but the five of spades would never win a trick. Simple reasoning, but very wrong.

East returned a spade, and South's queen won a trick immediately. He could then take his trumps and the ace of diamonds, but there was nothing to do with the two low diamonds and the low club. South was down one.

DROP THE QUEEN

South's best play is to drop the queen of spades at the first trick. This is not aimless generosity; South must unblock the spades so that he has a chance to get two spade tricks instead of just one.

East will probably return a trump at the second trick, and South wins. After drawing trumps, South leads his five of spades and finesses with dummy's ten. The finesse succeeds, and declarer cashes the ace of spades to discard a loser.

DOWN TWO

What would happen if East had the jack of spades as well as the king? South would be down two instead of one. It would cost him an extra 100 points to have an even chance for game.

Remember this situation: Q-x opposite A-10-x. You may get the chance to unblock the queen the very next time you play bridge.

DAILY QUESTION

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

This is a weak hand despite your trump length. You must therefore make a weak response.

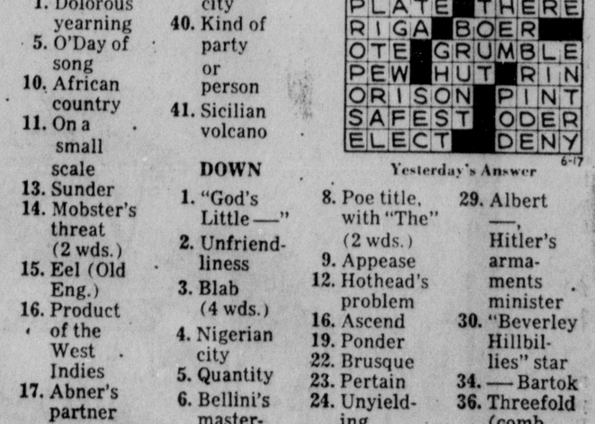

Inmate Misses Day In Court

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—An inmate scheduled to be sentenced on a bank robbery conviction Thursday climbed to the top of his cell block and refused to come down for 10 hours— missing his day in court.

Officials at Allegheny County Jail said Bernard Jerry, 25, Pittsburgh, spent the entire day on the top of the five tier cell block before he was talked into coming down. He climbed up the bars at 8 a.m., just before he was to be brought before a U. S. District Court judge for sentencing.

Housing Mix: County And City Problem

By JEFF GREER
(Last of three articles)

On May 6, 1971, the Marin County Board of Supervisors officially adopted a housing policy statement.

It was required to enable the county to remain eligible for certain types of housing aid through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, to meet state requirements for a "housing element" as part of the required revisions of the countywide general plan, and to guide planning for Marin county and city bodies.

The policy statement declared "there is a critical shortage in the housing supply, especially for low income (under $8,000 per year) and moderate income (under $14,000 or $15,000 a year, depending on which law you read). The policy declared the county did not want to discourage high-income housing, but said the low end of the housing scale "most needs attention."

The policy tried to reassure homeowners that "dwelling units required. . . will not be so great in numbers or so concentrated in one neighborhood as to impair its living quality."

The county policy called for mixing the low and moderate income housing with other housing wherever possible, instead of concentrating it in large groups. It also urged preserving good older housing in neighborhoods under pressure to become commercial, such as San Rafael's Lincoln Avenue and much of San Anselmo and Fairfax. The policy, in addition, called for the state to begin subsidizing housing on bases similar to federal programs.

The proposals for the housing "mix" ran headlong into a simultaneously rising movement to preserve as open space practically every bit of eastern Marin not already developed. It also aroused already-ensconced residents' objections to having poor families next door.

One typical reaction was an anonymous telephone call to the Independent-Journal from a North Marin housewife. "So-and-so lives in Belvedere, but he talks about putting poor people's houses next door to me," she said irately. "How'd he like to have them living next door to him?"

San Rafael is the only one of Marin's 11 cities that has formally adopted a housing policy for inclusion in its own general plan. Each of the other cities has told the City-County Planning Council that the city favors the county policy in general, but few of the cities are near to adopting their own policies. Target date for most is 1973.

Novato's Planning Commission voted 4-1 recently to recommend that the city adopt a policy providing a "mix" — limited to persons already living in or working in Novato.

Corte Madera's planning commission also has been reviewing a proposed housing policy. Larkspur has adopted a guideline based on the county's housing element for composing its own policy. Citizens committees are at work on housing statements in Fairfax, Mill Valley, San Anselmo and Tiburon, according to the Marin County Planning Department staff.

Belvedere, Larkspur and Sausalito are using planning consultants, and may in the future contract with them for drafting housing elements. "The Town of Ross sees no need to work on a housing element," reported Ruth Friedlander of the county planning staff.

Translating the housing mix policies into roofing over families' heads is another matter.

The Housing and Social Planning Committee of the City-County Planning Council and the Technical Housing Advisory Committee of the county planning commission, the Marin County Housing Authority, the Ecumenical Association for Housing in Marin, the Committee for Adequate Shelter for All (CASA) and other private and public groups are trying to woo private builders into providing low-cost housing in expensive Marin, through "turnkey" or private developments.

The ecumenical association and the housing authority also have obtained private and federal Housing and Urban Development funds for some 900 rental housing units for low and moderate-income families and elderly. The county authority has leases scattered throughout the county for 249 families who otherwise could not afford the homes they're renting. Most of the rest are in projects such as Pilgrim Park.

But there are 1,200 names on the authority's waiting list for rentals, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director. He said the federally imposed priorities need revising, to prevent homeless families from out of county from "bumping" Marin families to lower spots on the list.

The housing authority recently received federal approval to find another 150 units to lease — if willing landlords can be found.

One problem is that Marin's median rent for a three-bedroom unit is $300, while the housing authority can pay only $185, Shepherd explained. If landlords willing to rent for the authority maximums — $90 for an "efficiency unit" to $210 for a five-bedroom house, can be found, the authority can place in them tenants whose incomes vary depending on family size, up to $9,500 a year for a couple with eight children.

The maximum income a single person can have and be eligible for leased housing is $4,500 a year.

Shepherd also pointed out that there are HUD and Federal Housing Authority programs under which moderate-income families can buy their homes at reduced interest rates, if builders are willing to take advantage of the tax incentives offered.

Under the so-called "235" program which is more popular with Sonoma County than Marin builders, the federal agencies pay the difference between the 8 or 9 per cent current interest rate on home loans and the 1 or 2 per cent charged low-income buyers.

This holds the home payments to a manageable fraction of the homebuyer's income, Shepherd said. He stressed that many welfare families with only one parent thus can become self-sustaining, property owning residents within a few years.

The ecumenical association has plans for a $2.9 million project to provide 112 low-rent units to replace the old Hilarita Housing projects but neighbors have brought court suit to block the project on grounds it violated Tiburon density ordinances.

County planners estiamted two years ago — during the severe building slump when private financing costs skyrocketed — that about 1 per cent of all Marin County housing was subsidized by public funds. With private building increasing again, the subsidy ratio is believed to be shrinking, despite plans of the ecumenical housing and county housing agencies.

Some private builders would like to offer less expensive housing but find that planning and architectural requirements force up the price tags, according to data collected by the Technical Housing Advisory Committee.

The builder of a subdivision in the Novato Crossroads area reported, for instance, that requirements for street widths, underground utilities, and off-site improvements increased the cost by $3,000 per dwelling, making it impossible for the builder to meet a hoped-for goal of selling the units for $20,000.

The committee and city and county officials are debating how to balance environmental and living quality against higher building costs, chairman Margaret Azevedo reported.

The county planning department is looking at the advantages of clustering buildings, not only for additional open space but for savings on roads, off-street parking, community driveways and other factors, according to Sol Silver of the county planning department.

He said long-cherished concepts of wide subdivision streets actually may increase traffic speed and danger to youngsters, as well as costing more for the builder and the eventual home buyer.

Real estate prices are a major contributor to the high cost of housing. "Builders would put up more low-cost housing if they could get lots for $4,000 or so — but most lots in Marin now cost about $7,000 apiece," housing authority director Shepherd explained.

The legal complexities, hard finances, neighborhood emotionalism and desperation of families that are losing their homes add irony to the title of the county planning staff's lengthy report issued two years ago to spur creation of a countywide housing element: "Don't Leave it to Elswhere."

It looks as if there's little for many families to do — except leave for elsewhere.

Inflation And The Oldest Profession

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Inflation has hit the world's oldest profession and, as might be expected, customers are protesting.

Thursday night about 40 truckers, most from out of state, gathered with picket signs at a large truck stop south of here protesting high prices.

They claim the prostitutes were charging $25 compared with $10 three months ago.

The men occasionally shouted earthy sayings to the girls as they drove by in autos.

Only one man crossed the picket line during four hours and he was roundly jeered by the pickets.

One trucker said he was not against prostitution.

"I'm just against the prices they're charging," he said, asking not to be identified because "my old lady may find out what I've been doing."

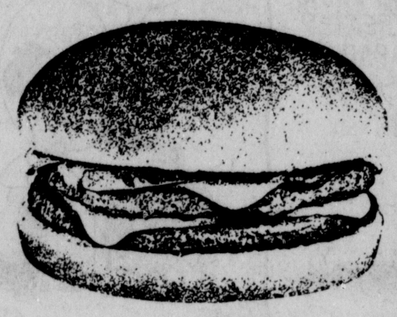

The girls also were unhappy.

"If they want it bad enough they know what they have to do," said one young blonde.

A spokesman for the Fresno County sheriff's office said officers were patroling the area at the time but added no law violations were observed.

Rowing — It's The Sport Of The Future

Coach Bob Cumming expects to see the day when every high school in Marin County will have a crew of oarsmen as part of the athletic program.

By DON KEOWN

Rowing is the sport of the future for high schools with access to water, Bob Cumming of Kentfield is convinced.

He points out that already in California this most purely amateur of amateur sports has gained a strong hold, one of its bastions being Redwood High School where he, under Marin Rowing Club auspices, coaches an eager young squad of 25 crewmen.

As far as Cumming is concerned, these boys couldn't have chosen a better sport to build their bodies, to strengthen their characters, to enjoy the zest of competition and to experience the particular pleasure and exhilaration that comes from a team effort well done.

Cumming can speak with authority on the sport.

BORN IN Paisley, Scotland, he moved to British Columbia as a boy and began his rowing there as a young man with the Kelowna Rowing Club while working for the local telephone company.

"A friend of mine who was on the crew invited me to try out, and I took him up on it," remembers Cumming. "I was 20 and had never done any rowing, but I got caught up in it, and rowing has been a part of me ever since."

Cumming explains: "In those days competitive rowing was all club stuff. It was too expensive for the schools."

WITH CUMMING in the bow of a four-oared shell, the smallest man in his crew, the Kelowna Rowing Club defeated the vaunted Vancouver Rowing Club for the coveted Okanagan championship. It marked the first time in seven years that a crew from the British Columbia interior had upset the representatives of the powerful Vancouver club.

After three years of rowing in Canada, Cumming moved to the United States and the San Francisco Bay Area.

He became an employee of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. and worked for that utility for more than 42 years as an engineer until retiring in 1970.

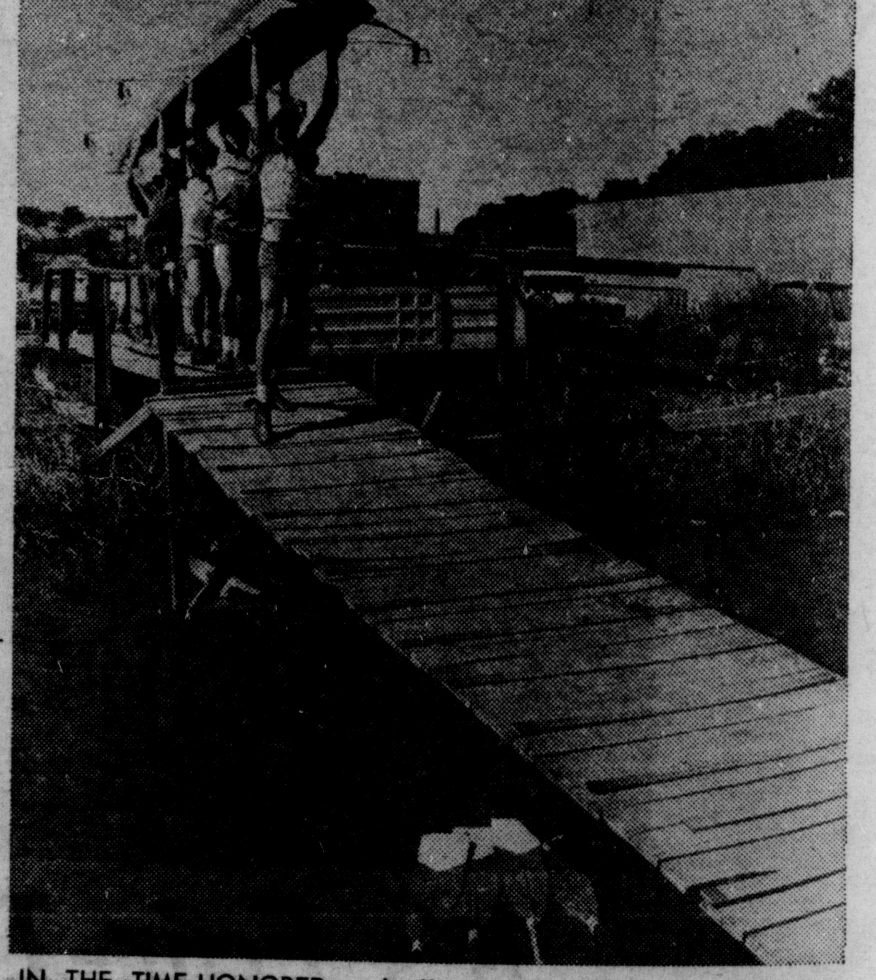

AND ONE OF the first things he did upon arriving in the Bay Area was to look up the representatives of the South End Rowing Club and to sign up as a member.

Says Cumming: "I had met a man from San Francisco while still in British Columbia, and he told me about the South End Club. So I looked them up and joined in 1927."

But Cumming's rowing took a new turn. He switched from the crew to the single sculls. "And I never rowed crew again," he says.

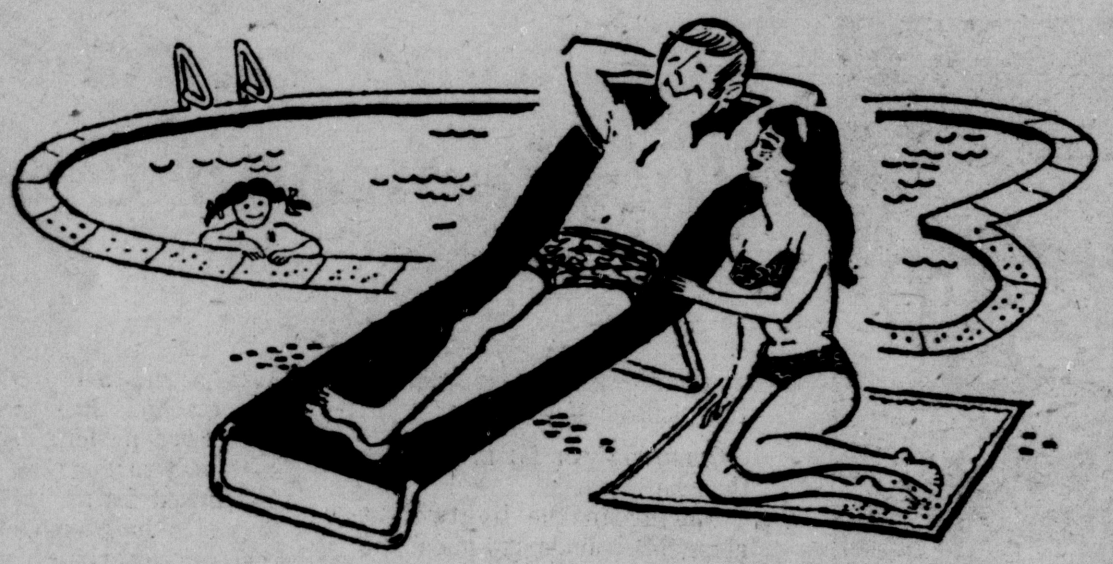

THE ONE-MAN scull won out for Cumming's affection over the four and eight-man shells because, he says, "I enjoyed being on my own. You can train as you please and you can work out your own strategy. And

IN THE TIME-HONORED and effective overhead method of Crew racing, these Redwood High School rowers, of the lightweight varsity, carry their four-oared shell from the boathouse to Corte Madera Creek for a practice session. The school year is now over, but the rowers will continue their workouts on a voluntary basis.

WITH THEIR SHELL in the water, the members of this Redwood High School lightweight unit put the four oars into place. There are four rowers. The coxswain will join them to make a fifth member of the crew.

PUSHING OFF WITH their right feet, the four Redwood High School athletes who will be handling the oars enter the delicately-balanced shell in the prescribed manner, to begin their afternoon practice.

ONCE IN THE SHELL, the members of the crew must insert their feet into wooden-soled shoes that are not worn onto the boat, but instead await them, fitted into crossboards or "foot stretchers" that are part of the boat frame. The feet are stationary while the oarsman is rowing, but the seat slides.

THE LIGHTWEIGHT VARISTY crew that was an unbeaten part of Redwood High School's most successful rowing season in 1972 is on the water and bending to their oars. They are, right to left, David Kimelman, coxswain; Eric Norstad, stroke; Bill Duff, No. 3; David Hanzel, No. 2, and Eric Gray, in the bow.

whether you win or fail depends entirely upon you. You do your own steering, your own pacing, and there is no teammate to fall back on if you falter."

Cumming won far more often than he lost.

Rowing in the lightweight class, 145 pounds and under, he held the Pacific Assn. of Amateur Oarsmen singles championship in that category for seven years.

THE HIGHLIGHT of Cumming's rowing career came in 1930 at Vancouver, B.C., when he won the Pacific Coast lightweight sculling championship.

In 1931 and in 1933 he competed in the national championships and won runner-up honors in lightweight senior sculling.

Finally, at age 30, he retired, still unbeaten in the Pacific Assn. of Amateur Oarsmen. "I had reached the age where I knew I was pushing my luck if I continued rowing," he says. "I had rowed for 11 seasons, and that is a long competitive career for a working person."

LOOKING BACK, Cumming praises rowing as a body-builder. It builds general fitness and good health, he says, not bulging muscles. And it gave Cumming a physique that enables him now at age 67 to row four miles without difficulty.

Today he weighs 158 pounds, not too much heavier than the 145 pounds he carried on his trim frame during his days of hard training and racing.

Equally important for Cumming with the physical benefits of rowing were the associations he made while in the sport.

"I MADE A lot of good friends in rowing, and they remain my friends," he says. "These fine people have been very big in my life."

And he adds: "Everywhere you go, if you are associated with rowing you are always a welcome guest at any of the clubs."

Rowing, too, since it demands rigorous training and clean living, is an instiller of self-discipline, Cumming notes.

His own training methods, he says, came from the famous Major Goodsell, world singles sculling professional champion and for two years his coach.

ALONG WITH hard work at the oars and other exercise for six months of the year, Goodsell prescribed a diet that was high in protein — "steak at breakfast and steak at night, and no pies or cakes" — and no stimulants.

"I guess weak tea was the strongest thing we would drink," says Cumming. "No coffee, no alcohol, no smoking."

Cumming adds that after he left rowing he took up smoking, but has since quit "for good."

CUMMING attempts to encourage the young men he now coaches to follow the same strict training regimen that Major Goodsell demanded of him. "And I think the boys comply very well, especially considering the fact they are living and rowing in a different day and age than I did."

Even after leaving competitive racing, Cumming remained in close touch with the sport, frequently attending major races and retaining his associations with others interested in crew and sculling.

In 1949 he and some others with backgrounds in the sport started the Marin Rowing Club in Sausalito. High school boys from Tamalpais were the rowers. And interest and activity was picking up when the Korean War came along and attentions were turned toward more serious matters.

THEN IN 1969 Cumming headed another group of former oarsmen in the formation of the Marin Rowing Assn.

Cumming is its president and Al Horstmeyer Jr. its vice president. Serving with them on the board of directors are secretary Tom Moore, treasurer Carlos Fowler and Dr. Howard Levenson.

Cumming and Horstmeyer are the two driving forces in the association. Phil Ruby is the Redwood High School faculty representative and carries the formal title of coach to comply with California Interscholastic Federation rules.

Ruby, Cumming says, began his assignment with no background in rowing "but has been learning fast. He knows considerable about rowing now."

THE MARIN Rowing Assn.-sponsored Redwood High School crews, four squads in all, with both varsity and junior varsity units in the lightweight and open classes, compete under CIF regulations.

Most of the competition comes from the East Bay. At Berkeley and Salesian of Richmond high schools, rowing is an older sport than it is at Redwood. St. Joseph's of Alameda and Concordia of Oakland also field crews.

Against such formidable competition, the Redwood High crews have just completed their most successful season, winning the Bay Area high school championship for eight-oared shells, with only a single loss all year, that a varsity defeat by Salesian at Richmond thatwas later avenged.

THE VARSITY concluded its season June 3 with a victory over Berkeley on the Oakland Estuary, rowing the 1,500 meter courses in five minutes, 28.1 seconds. The junior varsity was unbeaten.

Southern California is another hotbed of the sport, with a number of high schools there regarding crew as a major sport.

"I would like to see rowing at every high school in Marin County," says Cumming. And he expects to do so.

"CREW IS definitely gaining as a high school sport," he claims. "I think the time will come when rowing will be a part of the athletic program at every high school with access to a lake, a bay or a stream."

Meanwhile he concentrates upon building the sport at Redwood.

His charges work out in two four-oared shells, one of which was purchased from the University of California and the second of which is leased. But the East Bay crews use eight-oared shells. So when the Marin rowers travel across the bay to compete, they borrow an eight-oared shell from their hosts, put two four-oar crews together, and compete against rivals who are more accustomed to eight-oar boats.

THEN, WHEN an East Bay school comes to Marin for racing, the visitors make the adjustment to a four-oared shell and the races are conducted in those smaller craft.

"Surprisingly," says Cumming, "it doesn't seem to make a great amount of difference in the results, whether we race in four or eight-oared shells. The boys from all the schools seem to make the adjustment well."

Home rowing is conducted on Corte Madera Creek from San Quentin to the Bon Air Bridge. This gives the Redwood rowers a potential two-mile course. But high school races are limited to 1,500 meters, just under a mile, and the Marin races end opposite the Greenbrae Lanes, about 100 yards west of the highway.

THE TWO four-oared shells, each 45 feet long, are kept in a boathouse for which the Marin Rowing Assn. pays the rent, along with providing the shells as part of its sponsorship of the Redwood High School Crew.

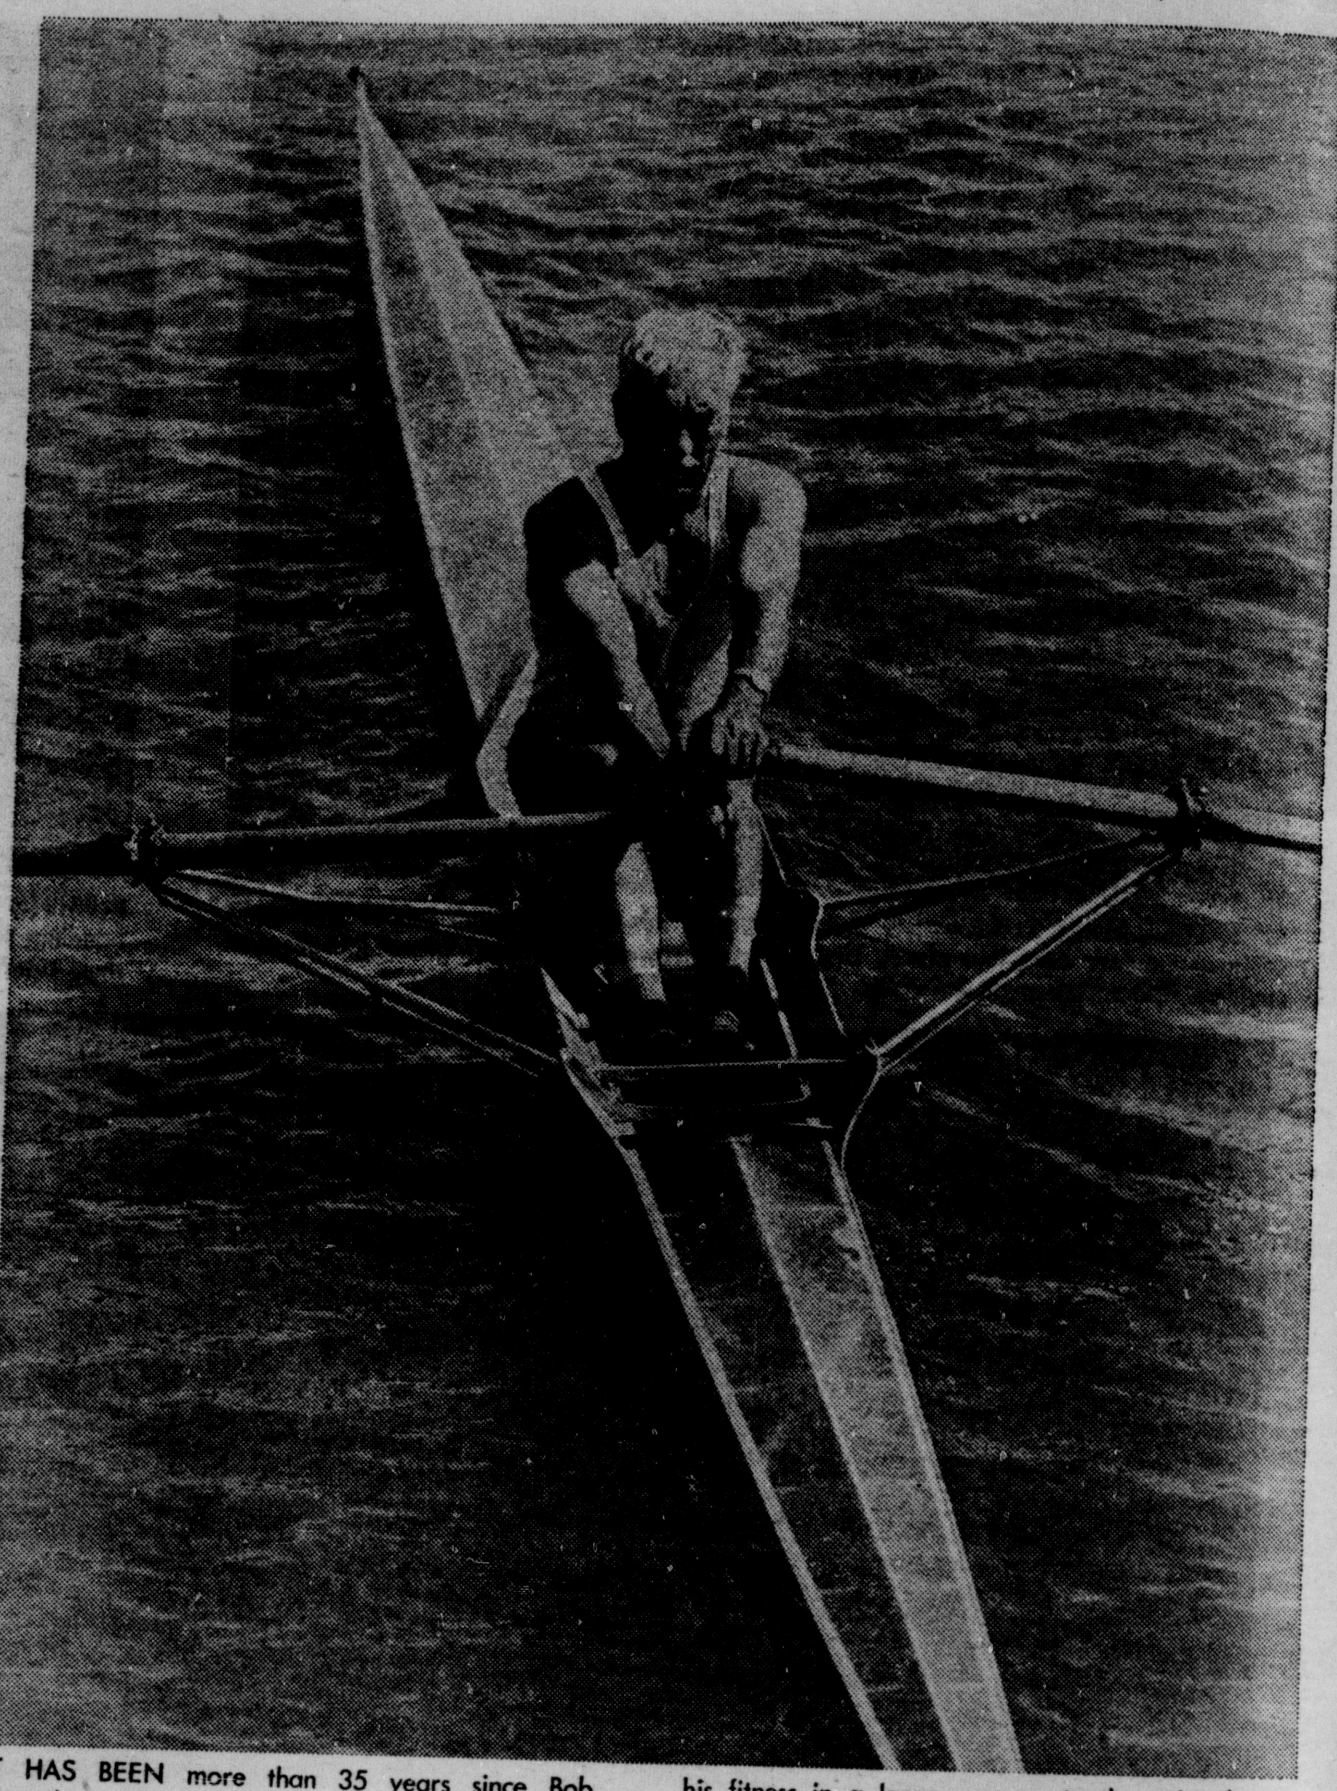

Some time back the Lake Merritt Rowing Club — "they have been very good to youth rowing in this area," says Cumming — gave the Marin association an eight-oared shell, and has promised the gift of a second such boat.

The difficulty is that the boathouse will not accommodate these craft, each of them 63 feet long. And so the eight-oared shell is stored, unused.

THUS THE Marin Rowing Assn. is in the process of raising funds to enlarge the boathouse at 12 East Sir Francis Drake Blvd. on Corte Madera Creek, to enable it to house eight-oared shells.

"Once we can put the eight-oared shell into the water, we can double the membership on our Redwood team," says Cum-

IT HAS BEEN more than 35 years since Bob Cummings retired undefeated in the Pacific Assn. of Amateur Oarsmen as its lightweight singles sculling champion. But at 67 he can still pull an oar with the best of them, and can skim through four miles of waterway without undue exertion. He attributes his fitness in a large measure to the strict dietary and rigorous training program set up for him by the famous sculler and coach, Major Goodsell, and which Cumming now tries to pass along to his young charges on the Redwood High School four and eight-oared crews.

ming. The interest, he adds, is there.

The former oarsmen who make up the Marin Rowing Assn.'s senior membership do not content themselves with sponsoring the high school boys, and with standing on the creek bank offering advice and encouragement to their young proteges. Frequently they take to the water themselves, usually in one of two sculls owned by members. Cumming is one of the first to hit the water, enjoying once again his favorite sport.

AND HIS chief love, sculling, plays a major role in his approach to coaching the Redwood crews. "All our boys must learn to scull before they crew," he says. "We have found it a good procedure."

The dividing line in high school crew between lightweights and the open or heavyweight class is 150 pounds. A year ago 12 of the Redwood rowers graduated, and at least six are now out for the sport at their colleges.

This year the Redwood shells lost only four seniors. They are Tom Turney, the stroke, always a key man; Eric Hayman and Mike Richcreek who row with him on the varsity; and Walter Kopp, stroke for the jayvees.

The 1972 lightweights will return intact next year.

ONE NEW development in Marin rowing is an undertaking by Cumming to coach a limited number of girls from Katharine Branson School at Ross in rowing.

"The school hopes to invest in some equipment of its own," Cumming says. "Then, after it turns co-educational, as planned, it will be able to including rowing as a sport for both its boys and girls."

Once young people are exposed to rowing, whether they be boys or girls, Cumming is confident that they will be caught up in the pleasures, satisfactions and challenges of the sport.

It is just a matter of getting more shells on the water, boathouses to shelter them, and knowledgeable men to coach the young aspirants.

As proof of the appeal of crew to today's young people, sometimes maligned as inactive and withdrawn, Cumming can point out that even though rowing has ceased to be a school sport with the end of the high school term, his young Redwood High School charges, who for months have worked just as hard as their schoolmates out for football, basketball or baseball, continue to report to Corte Madera Creek and the boathouse for summer workouts in the sculls and shells on a voluntary basis.

"It annoys a lot of men to see a woman managing a good-sized fair," admits the new manager of the Sonoma-Marin Fair. But Beverly Wilson, undaunted, tackles her new job with boundless energy.

AS WEDNESDAY'S opening date for the 1972 Sonoma-Marin Fair at the Petaluma fairgrounds draws nearer and nearer, Beverly Wilson, who was named fair manager in March, has become an increasingly busy woman, always on the go.

Woman's Touch For The Fair

By BONNIE BARD

A feminine touch came to the Sonoma-Marin Fair when Beverly Wilson stepped into what had been a man's world to become fair manager.

When Mrs. Wilson officially took over the top job in March, she became the first woman to manage a large-scale livestock fair. Only two other livestock fairs, much smaller in scope, have woman as managers.

"It annoys a lot of men to see a woman managing a good-sized fair, but times have changed," she said. "They think we're not thick-skinned enough."

WHEN MRS. Wilson travels to meetings of fair managers, the anomosity or skepticism, especially among the older men, is obvious. "At the last meeting they named me a committee of one to investigate the manure problem," she said. "I thought they made their point clear."

But she plans to take her assignment seriously and to reserach fully the problem and prepare a complete report by the end of the summer. "What to do with manure is a big problem for a livestock fair, so I'm going to take the job seriously," she said.

Mrs. Wilson, 44, had worked for eight years as secretary to Arthur R. Canavan and was a natural to succeed him when he resigned in February to become manager of the fair in Lancaster County.

THE JOB OF planning and managing the five-day Petaluma fair that draws 60,000 people annually, as well as supervising year 'round operations of the sprawling 65-acre fairgrounds, fell to her in time for her to begin planning the 1972 activities scheduled for June 21-25.

The pressure begins to mount in March when contracts must be negotiated with carnival operators and commercial exhibitors.

During the three-month period that follows, 18-hour days become the not-extraordinary routine for Mrs. Wilson. "When we really get pushed, I'm here at 6 a.m. and don't drag myself home until midnight," she said.

"There are a million things that can go wrong," she mused. "I try to keep cool. It's really much like a wedding. Things always go wrong, but I figure and hope the guests will never know."

THE MAIN adversary of the fair is weather. "The weather will kill you if the skies open up," she said. Fair attendance and receipts were very low in 1970 when high winds toppled tents and kept families at home.

With an annual operating budget of $150,000 to work with, Mrs. Wilson will spend a great part of the non-fair time months managing other functions at the fairgrounds. Auto races, rodeos and circuses are often booked for the grandstand and Herzog Hall has become a favorite for dances, private parties and wedding receptions.

San Antonio Continuation High School is tenant of the fairgrounds during the school year. A golf driving range and a roller skating rink in the main exhibit building are other tenants.

ON TOP OF her fair duties, Mrs. Wilson manages the business end of the Hideaway bar-restaurant that she and her husband, Raymond, own. They have three children, Suzanne, 16; Bill, 14; and Greg, 12.

"I've lived in Petaluma all my life," Mrs. Wilson said. "I've always been meaning to leave — ever since high school really — but I hever have."

Mrs. Wilson has been attending the fair since childhood and has seen little change in it over the years.

"We get new buildings and make improvements to the fairgrounds, but the fair is really about the same it's always been," she said. The people, she feels, want no drastic changes.

BUT WITH THE enthusiasm of a newcomer to the job, Mrs. Wilson has plans for more buildings. "I'm going to start by closing in Herzog Hall," she said. (The kitchen and restrooms are now separate from the main building). "I'd also like to extend the animal barns and improve the garden area and corporation yard."

Her pet project, however, is plans for a vocational-industrial building. "I envision it being built in three phases and costing about $200,000," she said.

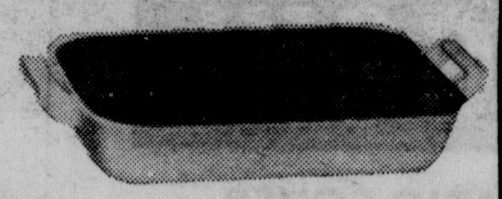

In cooperation with local schools, students could use the facility for special classes. An auditorium seating 3,000 people could accomodate entertainment shows as well as boat and trade expositions.

"THE WAY I have it planned, there would be a large stage and folding doors to permit double rentals," she said. "We could even have the annual wristwrestling championship there, since it would be bigger than the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. Petaluma really needs a good-sized auditorium."

Years of practical experience dampen her enthusiasm slightly since she believes that state funding will probably become even more limited and more difficult to obtain in years to come.

"Sacramento will probably turn thumbs down on it," she said. But those who know her will expect Beverly Wilson to keep right on trying.

something old, something new...

For centuries great cooks have used sturdy cast iron for low temperature, even heat cooking. It's great! To this idea add gleaming porcelain exteriors, exclusive rust-free bottoms and inside, the toughest Teflon II* available for easy rinse-clean care and you have WATERFORD COLORCAST COOKWARE. It's fantastic!

Now you can turn out omelets, crepes, casseroles and sauces so easily that the chore of cooking becomes the art of Waterford. These handsome designs in white, pimento or curry yellow serve from range to buffet beautifully. So what if the bride doesn't have a sterling silver saucepan?

Without The Carnival Rides, It's Not A Fair

THE MIDWAY is a tradition of the American fair. No fair would be complete without one. This will hold true for the 1972 Sonoma-Marin Fair when it opens Wednesday in Petaluma for a five-day stand with ferris wheel very much in evidence. Independent-Journal photographers took the cover photo reproduced at left and the other pictures on this page of merriment among the carnival rides at the 1971 Sonoma-Marin Fair. But there is a more serious side to the fair — the competition by exhibitors. Where that activity centers is shown on the pages that follow.

PETALUMA'S Sonoma-Marin Fair is basically a livestock fair. And therefore the fairgrounds' exhibit buildings are key points of interest during the show, the 1972 edition of which will open Wednesday for a five-day run. The photographs on the right show, top to bottom, the Poultry Building, built in 1950; the Main Exhibit Building, erected in 1955, which houses commercial displays, and which serves as a roller skating rink when the fair is not in progress; and the sheep and swine barn. But along with the display of sleek, prize-winning livestock and other exhibits, the Sonoma-Marin fair also offers a lively, diversified program of entertainment. And the scene of much of that is the outdoor stage pictured below, built two years ago for the professional shows, home town talent and fair ceremonies.

A Million-Dollar Plant

Sonoma-Marin Fair Complex Has Grown With The Years

THE GRANDSTAND at the Petaluma fairgrounds was constructed in 1962 to replace stands that had been destroyed by fire the previous year. It seats 2,000 and in addition to its important role during the annual Sonoma-Marin Fair, it is the site of rodeos, circuses, automobile races and similar events during the off-season.

The Sonoma-Marin Fair — which sprang up 34 years ago in a barren field on Fair Street — has matured into a 15-building complex on 65 carefully-tended acres on East Washington Street.

Since the early 1950s, building projects have combined to put fairgrounds fiargrounds in the million-dollar plant category.

The most unusual building on the grounds is Herzog Hall. The domed building completed in 1965 at a cost of $85,000 has become popular for non-fair functions such as wedding receptions, banquets and private parties. It was originally known as the Home Arts Building, but was renamed three years ago in honor of Max Herzog Sr., one of the founding fathers of the fair.

THE POULTRY Building, one of several large exhibit halls, was built in 1950 and was used for a multitude of exhibits. The Main Exhibit Building, which now houses commercial exhibitors, was built in 1955 and is used as a roller skating rink when the fair is not under way.

The Fair Administration Building was completed in 1952 and was nearly doubled in size by an addition finished in time for use at last year's fair.

The Fairgrounds Restaurant Building followed in 1963 and is also used year 'round. It is operated as part of a golf course driving range which rents a portion of the grounds.

IN THE BUSY construction period of the 1950s, dormitory accommodations for 4-H and Kuture Farmers of America members were built in 1954. The dormitory sleeps 160 youngsters who want to stay on the grounds during the fair to be near their animals. Before its construction, the youngsters bedded down in the stalls beside their animals.

The complex also includes

It was completed in 1952, and its size nearly doubled by an addition completed in time for the 1971 fair. From there Manager Beverly Wilson and her staff will be directing the activities of the 1972 fair that will open on Wednesday and continue through Sunday, June 25, with a varied and crowded program.

ONE OF THE SMALLER but more picturesque structures on the Petaluma fairgrounds is the Cowbells' (women's organization) Building, looking like a miniature version of the traditional farm barn. Mark Rupert, 11, and Jimmy Berry, 10, are the 4-H Club members transporting their rabbits.

THE ARTS AND CRAFTS Building was a 1958 addition to the Petaluma fairgrounds facilities, and for a number of years it doubled as a continuation high school classroom. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean) three cattle barns, sheep, swine and horse barns, and three judging rings.

The Arts and Crafts Building was added in 1958 and saw use for several years as classrooms for San Antonio Continuation High School.

A FIRE destroyed the old grandstand in 1961 as well as antiques stored below meant for display in a future museum for Petaluma. The building was replaced the following year with the current 2,000-seat grandstand.

During the off-season it is used for rodeos, circuses, auto races and the annual Fourth of July fireworks celebration.

An outdoor stage was built two years ago to provide better conditions for professional entertainers and fair contests.

MAINTENANCE on the buildings and grounds requires a large part of the annual $150,000 operating budget. Three full-time maintenance men, who double as plumbers and electricians, also maintain 11 acres of lawn and countless numbers of shrubs and flowers in garden areas.

"Maintenance men is really an unfair title," said Fair Manager Beverly Wilson. "They should really be called a Jack-of-all-trades."

Some of the work, however, has diminished as portions of the fairgrounds have been turned over to the city of Petaluma for use for a fire station, park and swimming pool. The city actually owns the entire fairgrounds, but rents it to the state for $1 per year.

"When the city asks for land we really can't turn them down," Mrs. Wilson said.

There remains, however, ample space and buildings to house the myriad of exhibits and activities that will entertain and educate the thousands of visitors who will attend the 1972 Sonoma-Marin Fair, opening Wednesday and continuing through the following Sunday.

THE CATTLE BARNS are inevitably a prime attraction at any livestock show. And this one, an airy structure, will be a busy place with 4-H Club and Future Farmer members grooming their charges for competition when the 1972 Sonoma-Marin Fair opens in Petlauma on Wednesday.

MISSION DORMITORY provides young Sonoma-Marin Fair exhibitors with a sleeping place where they can remain near their valuable animals for the duration of the fair. Until dormitory adcommodations were provided, many youths slept in the stalls beside their animals through the fair.

Horsing Around Canada — It's A Popular Vacation

By JOSEPH FINNAMORE

Across Canada, but particularly in Alberta, there are many "dude" ranches which cater to the horse-minded traveler.

Ruggedness and simplicity, with convenience, are the keynotes of a typical Canadian dude ranch. The furniture may be plain and durable, but the ranches are served by diesel-generated electricity and the bathrooms are modern.

The rest is as uncitified as possible — from the rambling porch to the meandering woodland paths marked only by the high heels of riding boots.

IN MOST CASES, accommodation is in log cabins, many large enough for family groups. Meals are included in the overall price as well as a nightly snack. Food is usually served in a main dining room and is generous, plain and appetizing.

On many guest ranches, trail rides on an organized basis are available. On others, guests are free to roam by themselves, to enjoy the intangible qualities of ranch life — freedom not easy to obtain elsewhere and fresh air in abundance.

Trail rides, however, are the real highlights of a dude ranch holiday. More than one holiday-maker who has never been closer to a horse than a magazine photograph has developed into a really good rider after a short stay.

IN ALBERTA, many of the guest ranches are also operating "spreads," whose chief occupation is cattle or horse raising. Here, guests are often invited to join in cattle round-ups and other ranch activities.

Ranch operators always make sure that docile horses are allotted to inexperienced riders.

Frighten a holiday-maker a first time with a nervous horse, and he'll never ride again. On the other hand, introduce them gently to the joys of riding, and a happy holiday is the usual result . . . as well as many happy ranch holidays in the future.

EVENINGS ARE romantic on Canadian dude ranches. Guitars strum through the warm summer nights. The moon lays a silver path across the landscape. A lone wolf howls in the distance. Couples stroll at dusk or gather around the campfire.

The PB Guest Ranch at Brule, Alberta, is fairly typical. It consists of a main lodge, two duplex cabins and one single cabin unit, all made of log and offering accommodation for about 20 people.

Hearty Canadian meals are served in the lodge. Activities include horseback riding, fishing, hiking, guided trail rides, outdoor barbecues and appetite-satisfying cookouts.

SILVER CREEK Ranch, 55 miles northwest of Calgary, Alberta, caters to children 7-14 years old. It offers experienced supervision and instruction to the young saddle-busters. Horses, ponies and pet animals are provided, and activities cover hayrides, hiking, swimming and trail rides.

The Circle M Guest Ranch, Box 2056, Hinton, Alberta, was planned for people who enjoy quiet, trees, flowers, and mountain scenery, where you are hosted by the owners in real old-fashioned western style.

Riding is the main feature, and prices include instruction and guide. Short scenic rides are $2.25 per hour. Longer, half-day trips are $8 per rider. Overnight or longer pack horse trips to Mystery Lakecamp are $25 per day per person.

CABINS RANGE from $30 to $84 per week, according to the degree of luxury required. Tours of rugged Jasper National Park are organized. Hiking and mountain climbing start from the ranch.

Just outside of Riding Mountain National Park, at Wasagaming, Manitoba, lies Elk Horn Ranch — a true family resort with a very relaxed and friendly atmosphere. Possibly a little more luxurious than some of the other ranches, the Elk Horn has a heated indoor swimming pool and sauna baths . . . great revivers of stiff muscles and bodies tired from riding the trails all day. Large helpings of hearty food are served at mealtimes. Rates here are: adults — $16 per day; each child over 10 — $8 per day.

Guests can take advantage of the swimming, boating, golf and tennis offered nearby in Riding Mountain National Park.

MORE EXTENDED trail rides are provided by the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, an association that holds six day trail rides out of Banff, Alberta.

There will be seven trail rides during July and August, costing $148 per person for each ride. Scenic highlights of the rides in the Shadow Lake area between Banff and Lake Louise are the Mount Ball Glacier and ice cave, and the flower meadows along Pharaoh Creek. Each day the group sets out on new trails and covers an average of 12 miles a day through the spectacular mountain scenery of the Rockies.

At sunset, the riders generally gather in what they call the "Donut" tent for a sing-song, boisterous conversation and volunteer entertainment.

A PHYSICIAN goes along on every ride to provide medical service as required. Horses, supplied in Banff, Alberta, are well-broken, sure-footed, mountain-bred, and carefully chosen to suit the riding experience of the individual trail rider.

Complete details on this year's Trail Riders' program can be obtained from Post Office Box 6742, Station D, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

For further information on ranch holidays and riding trips in Canada, contact your nearest Canadian Government Travel Bureau headquarters at 150 Kent St., Ottawa, K1A 0H6, Canada.

RIDERS PREPARE for an all-day trail ride that will be one of the highlights of their vacations on one of the many dude ranches of Alberta, Canada. Sometimes guests are even invited to join in on cattle round-ups and other working ranch acitvities.

A PREVIEW OF A WORLD'S FAIR PAVILION

AMERICA'S FIRST world exposition on the environment will open May 1, 1974, for a six-month run, on a 100-acre site encompassing banks and islands of the Spokane River near the center of the eastern Washington metropolis of Spokane. Above is an artist's concept of the seven-and-a-half-million dollar Washington State Pavilion which will serve as a combined concert and exhibit hall. Railroad track removal to make way for the pavilion is under way. The 60-million-dollar Expo '74 has been conceived as a massive riverfront redevlopment and rehabilitation project that, after the fair, will serve Spokane as an urban park and civic center area.

Lake County Beckons

It's A Little Bit Of Switzerland Only Two Hours Drive From Marin

The Travel Pages

For the Marinite who finds a trip to more distant climes an impossibility this summer, a vacation of a week or so in California's nearby Lake County looms as a pleasant alternative.

In Clear Lake, less than a two-hour drive from Marin, with its sparkling waters surrounded by pine ridges, they will discover Little Switzerland. And they can enjoy bass fishing, water skiing, boating, swimming and just relaxing in or around what is the largest lake lying entirely in California (Tahoe is situated partly in Nevada).

Just take Highway 101 north to Santa Rosa, then turn east on Mark West Springs Road, three and a half miles north of town. Follow this winding route to the Petrified Forest and Calistoga. Take Highway 29 northeast over the shoulder of Mount St. Helena (where Robert Louis Stevenson wrote "Silverado Squatters") to the frontier community of Middletown.

AT THIS southmost Lake County village a turn north brings motorists up onto Cobb Mountain with its famous pine-woods resorts before dropping down again to Clear Lake near Kelseyville. "Straight ahead" at Middletown takes one to the shore near Lower Lake or Clear Lake Highlands, resort towns on the placid southern arm of the 20-mile long inland lagoon.

Clear Lake offers the traveler more than 350 resorts, ranging in size and price from large and reasonably expensive to small and budget-minded. Normally in the summer season (Memorial Day through Labor Day) it's advisable to get reservations, so popular is this "bass and boating capital of the West."

Restaurants and snackbars are numerous; and most of the larger communities have dances nightly during the season. Boat and tackle rentals are available virtually everywhere.

Elevation of Clear Lake is over 1,300 feet, but it is relatively shallow — nowhere over 50 feet deep. This makes for excellent fishing year-round. Each weekend in summer there will be boat races at one or more of the resorts.

TOWERING OVER the placid surface is symmetrical Mount Konocti, 4,200 feet high, the subject of many Indian legends. At its base on the south shore a golf course at Buckingham Park. There are two nine-hole links in the pines near Hoberg's.

Resorts on the North Shore start along Highway 20, at Clearlake Oaks. Then come a series of resort towns, ending in Nice and Lucerne, named by their old-world founders. Farther around Clear Lake, on the west edge, is the county seat, Lakeport. It has more resorts, an Indian museum, and the county fair over Labor Day.

On the south shore east of Kelseyville is Clear Lake State Park, with 80 campsites ($3 per night, but get there early,), 28 picnic grounds, and shore fishing among the reeds.

Twin trout-filled miniatures of the giant lake are a few miles west on Highway 20, at Blue Lakes. And 30 miles north is Lake Pillsbury where there is trout fishing, camping (including about 100 U.S. Forest Service sites) and shoreside resorts.

FROM LAKEPORT and North Shore communities, allow nearly three hours for the drive back to Marin. Meet 101 north of Ukiah by taking State Route 20 west past Lake Mendocino, another aquatic-sports mecca.

For this 250-mile circle, bring your most informal sports clothes, since nobody "dresses" in Lake County. The stress in on fishing, boating, hiking and riding. The weather will be warm through summer and fall.

For Lake County literature, write Redwood Empire Assn., 476 Post St., San Francisco, 94102.

THE PLACID SHORELINE of Clear Lake is one of California's most pleasant recreation areas, offering boating, swimming, fishing, water skiing and hiking opportunities for vacationers and weekenders. Some 300 resorts plus golf courses and trails on Cobb Mountain serve visitors to the area.

TOURING GREAT BRITAIN FROM PUB TO PUB

A big part of any American tourist's vacation in Great Britain has to be the island's pubs and inns.

Miss these, and you have missed half the flavor and fun of the United Kingdom.

The best guide to these spots that we have seen is "Pubs and Tourist Sights in Britain: 1972," a thick $5.50 paperback that is a joint venture of the Egon Ronay Organization and of the British Tourist Authority, and which is available in this country from GHS Import Co., Box 515, Alwood Station, Clifton, N.J., 07012.

It suggests sights and tours from London to northern-most Scotland, and links these with the most picturesque lodging and eating places along the routes. You learn not only the services and facilities of these places, and their prices, but also the history and special features that so often contribute to their interest.

Find yourself on London's Fleet Street? Drop in at the tiny Seven Stars near Lincoln's Inn Fields, buitl in 1694, selling tasty sandwiches and dispensing Harp and Courage. Or Printer's Devil, with steaks and Guinness and the pictorial history of printing on its walls. Or Ye Olde Cocke Tavern with its Dickensian mementoes.

Something unusual? Try the Goat Tavern with its collection of clocks showing the time around the globe. Or Dirty Dick's, cobwebs and all. Or the haunted Grenadier. Or the Black Friar in Victorian baroque motif.

History? The Jamaica Wine House was London's first coffee house. The Dove has been licensed for more than 400 years. Sam Johnson knew the Ye Olde Chesire Cheese well. Oliver Cromwell used the Bull's Head. The George Inn is loaded with history.

Outside of London there's the Woolpack Hotel that has stood in Warwick's market place since 1510, the Royal Oak near Woburn Abbey with its fine fireplace, Ye Olde King's Head in Chester where Charles I once slept, the Rising Sun at Castle Hedingham made up of two 15th century cottages "knocked together," the Sun Hotel on Ulverston's cobbled market square that was saved from demolition by the fierce loyalty of its customers, and the Liverpool Arms patronized by Conway's colorful Welsh fishermen.

The book is literally loaded with gems from which the traveler can pick and choose. The information provided is genuinely helpful as well as intriguing. There are maps to assist in planning tours and in locating pubs and inns. And there is a great deal of pub lore to enhance one's enjoyment of these uniquely British institutions.

This well-organized, exhaustively informative, accurately factual and well illustrated book would seem a must for the England-bound tourist. The traveler who has already been there will find in its pages refreshment for his memories of a lovely land and a charming way of life. D.K.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

For travelers considering bringing back foreign-made automobiles from an overseas trip, copies of a leaflet entitled "Importing a Car," prepared by the Bureau of Customs, are available at 10 cents each from Customs offices or from the U.S. Bureau of Customs, Post Office Box 7118, Washington, D.C., 20044 ... A new 22-page color booklet obtainable from travel agents or from American President Lines, 601 California St., San Francisco, 94108, gives details on the world cruise of the SS President Wilson leaving San Francisco Jan. 4.

Pan American World Airways will begin using 747 Clippers on its New York to Munich route June 25, with one stop enroute to the Olympic site city — at Amsterdam ... And the German Federal Railroad is offering an Olympia Rail Pass good for unlimited use on 7,500 miles of train routes in the south of Germany between Aug. 12 and Oct. 15, and also good for a 50 per cent fare reduction on West German train tickets beyond the Munich-South Germany area.

National Airlines and Motor Home Rentals of Jacksonville, Fla., offer a family vacation plan by which an air conditioned motor home sleeping four awaits arrivals at the Jacksonville airport and is available for seven days of travel at $300 with 500 free miles.

Reviews Of New Reading

LEADING FIGURES on both sides of the long struggle between Egyptian aspirations and British domination are included in the cast of characters in Peter Mansfield's book, "The British in Egypt." The leaders on the Egyptian nationalist side included the likes of, left to right, Arabi Pasha and Saad Zaghlul Pasha, while representing British imperialism were such men as Lord Cromer and Lord Kitchener.

Poetry For The Thinking

DELUSIONS, ETC. by John Berryman; Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 70 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Phillip Holtzman.

John Berryman's posthumous book of 43 poems in five sections is not a volume of fast-reading people's poetry, nor are the poems necessarily surface clear in meaning.

It is a tightly structured book of short poems, mostly of one or two pages, which suggest reading more than once, though a few of the poems do read right off with an "ahh" of affirmation. There is little narrative; the poems are mostly introspective and religious, intensely honest and personal. They are rich in subtle sound patterns. The language is often common and casual, interwoven with enterprising religious vocabulary and some complex syntax.

The subjects of the poem, or moods, change by sections.

The first section, "Opus Dei", is a sequence of eight poems or prayers to God and reader. "Lauds" ends gently, "Thank you, Your Benevelence!/permissive, smiling on our silliness You forged." There is a section in which the subjects are personalities, including a six-page poem for Beethoven (" . . . You made throats swallow/ and shivered the backs of necks.") A poem for Dylan Thomas is personal and includes a section relating Berryman's presence at Thomas' death.

The poems of firm faith begin in joy with the first poem, "Lauds," and end in joy with "King David Dances". Yet Berryman himself is humble, uncertain, and questioning before God and God's judgment, asking: How will God in fact help and direct him? In "A Usual Prayer" he requests: "Lord of happenings, and little things,/ muster me westward fitter to my end . . ./ and toughen me effective to the tribes en route." He speaks severely of himself at times: "At 55 half-famous and effective, I still feel rotten about myself." In another poem he is "olding and ignorant."

There are a few poems with intense sense imagery ("No"). He deals with traditional themes outside of himself: death in "He Resigns," birth in "Hello", a holiday gathering beautifully in "Minnesota Thanksgiving."

This is a unified, well organized, tastefully designed volume of indeed rich poetry.

The Nationalists Versus The Imperialists

THE BRITISH IN EGYPT by Peter Mansfield; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 351 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

"Horses for courses" as the the old race track saying goes, and books for audiences. For a British reading public familiar with England's history, many of whom have worked, vacationed or soldiered in Egypt, "The British in Egypt" is full of familiar places and people.

For an American audience Lord Cromer, Wilfrid Blunt, Mustafa Arabi Kamel and Zaghlul Pasha are unfamiliar personalities. Except for a few specialists, American readers have inadequate background into which to fit the specilaized content of this book.

In a larger historical context "The British in Egypt" takes on more meaning for the American reader when he compares it with our situation in Vietnam.

Egypt never became a part of the British Empire. It sat astride Britian's line of communications with India and it contained the Suez Canal, so Britain sought to protect these vital interests by control without conquest. It established a "veiled protectorate" under the pretext of helping Egypt toward self-government while protecting foreign investments.

In India, where the British controlled the country openly, for all their abuses, they laid the foundations for a modern state. In Egypt, where they maintained the fiction of Egyptian independence, it was impossible for the British to control agricultural reform or modernization of the court system to the extent necessary to bring about constructive change.

Wherever the requirements of British imperial policy came into conflict with Egyptian nationalism the latter had to give way. Despite England's professed desire to lead the Egyptians to self-government each attempt by Egyptian Nationalists to control their own destiny was rebuffed or sidetracked. The process reminds one of St. Augustine's request to Heaven early in his life, "Lord, make me chaste, but not yet."

It is useful to compare the British experience in Egypt with the United States' travail in Vietnam. The U.S. does not control all domestic decision-making, because to do so would destroy the illusion that we are helping a sovereign power. Without such control we cannot make the basic changes in land reform and political reorganization that are prerequisites for strengthening the South Vietnamese national will. As a result the domestic welfare of South Vietnam becomes for the United States, as Egypt's growth toward self-government became for England, a neglected by-product of international power politics.

Britian fought to control Egypt long after such control could be justified except by the emotional commitment to imperialism, prompting one observer to remark, "I began for the first time to appreciate that imperialism could touch a man's soul as deeply as religion." For the U.S. in Vietnam it would be unfortunate if anti-communism has replaced imperialism as the article of faith.

Photogenic Cubs Steal The Show

THE LIONS OF LIVING FREE by Jack Couffer; Dutton, 94 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The most rewarding feature of this small book is its photographs, which goes to prove that director-cinematographer Jack Couffer is better with a camera than he is with a typewriter. The pictures of the lions and other African wildlife are outstanding. The text is a rather rambling narration of the filming of Couffer's motion picture "Living Free," sequel to "Born Free." It jumps about a good deal, and is not as interesting as it might have been. Excerpts from the diary of Marchesa Sieuwke Bisleti, "foster mother" to the five winsome lion cubs, indicates that the project would have fared better if she had written the book and Couffer had stuck to his picture-taking.

Potak's Newest Novel — It's Brilliant

MY NAME IS ASHER LEV by Chaim Potak; Knopf, 369 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Dee Dinsmore.

This is a beautifully told story of a young boy's desire to realize his ambition and talent in the face of overwhelming opposition from his father and his orthodox religious background.

The Lev family were Hasidic Jews, a people devoted to their religion and to a life dedicated to their people. Asher Lev's father was one of the most dedicated and was revered for his work in rescuing Soviet Jews from tyranny and oppression. It was only natural that the father hoped that his son would follow him in this work; but from his earliest memory, Asher wanted only to become an artist.

The story, told in Asher's words, is one of determination and defiance. Refusing at all costs to obey his father, forcing his mother to choose between husband and son, it is soon apparent the boy will follow no other course. Recognizing the needs of the boy, the Rebbe, who rules his people, makes the decision to turn the boy over to an accomplished artist to be trained properly - a decision the father cannot fight.

Jacob Kahn opens new horizons for Asher by being both teacher of art and teacher of life. He learns a new form of painting and in doing so only succeeds in widening the gap between himself and his father. When Asher progresses to the point of a one-man show, his father refuses to attend. It is at Asher's second show, which he prevails upon his parents to attend, that his greatest painting, "The Brooklyn Crucifixion," is unveiled. Seeing their own faces portrayed in a Christian background, his parents leave the showing and report this humiliation to the Rebbe. Told his painting is an unpardonable sin against his people and that he can no longer live among them, Asher leaves America for Europe.

Dr. Potak ends his novel here and one can only hope that he will write another covering Asher's adult life.

This is a brilliant novel of a father living as his ancestors did and a son moving out into the modern world. The words and thoughts of his characters are beautifully expressed and, as in "The Promise" and "The Chosen" Potak's descriptions and characterizations are superb.

More Space, Please, On The Proper Care Of Wilderness

100 SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA HIKING TRAILS by Don and Roberta Lowe; Touchstone Press, 222 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Walt Weyman.

The accuracy of the trail descriptions is beyond question. The black and white photographs are illustrative of the areas described. The sections of topographical maps pinpoint the trail routes.

There is very little left for the neophyte hiker to do nowadays. He shops at any one of many stores catering to the go-light back packer, is outfitted from hat with Austrian ornament to Italian waffle stomper boots, and with this book or one of many similar books drives to the roadhead of his choice.

At the roadhead he parks his car in an overcrowded parking area, grunts into his bright new pack, and book in hand, heads up the trail, along with scores of others, all contributing to the deterioration of the wilderness. They keep to the main trails, eroding them ever deeper. They camp where all camp but they make new fire scars.

These neophyte hikers may mean well but they are totally unfamiliar with the devastating impact of people in wild areas and this book, whose authors are obviously not neophytes, should have given much more space to the care of the wilderness than the one trite sentence. "And please remember - do not litter and do not pick wildflowers or disturb other plant and animal life."

A Critic Looks At The Tube

Book Pages

ABOUT TELEVISION by Martin Mayer; Harper and Row, 433 pages, $10.

By DON KEOWN

"Fretting about the average level of television is like complaining about old age, an activity satisfying only to the speaker at the moment of speaking," writes Martin Mayer in his book "About Television."

Mayer, then, advises against taking television too seriously and analyzing it too critically. "There is simply no question that television has answered the most desperate of human needs, the need for escape from boredom, escape from self," he says. "Over a time, a society cannot rely on life, on moon landings and assassinations, to provide triumphs and tragedies."

But then he adds that given this limited, unpretentious purpose, television is still not functioning as well as it might.

"The important criticism of television is that its leaders have not sought for tragedy or triumph in invention and artifice," he writes. "They don't do the best they can."

These conclusions come at the end of a long series of essay chapters in which Mayer examines in varying depths and degrees of scholarship the performance of television —and the sometimes unrealistic goals that were set before it.

Mayer is the reporter-author who in the past has done such studies as "The Schools," "Madison Avenue, U.S.A.," "Wall Street: Men and Money" and "New Breed on Wall Street," as well as a couple of novels.

As with so many books of its kind nowadays, portions of "About Television" have appeared previously in magazines — TV Guide, Harper's, Fortune, Esquire, Audience, Commentary. We confess a growing impatience with this kind of regurgitated material. Does no one write non-fiction for book publication and for book publication only these days?

Still, Mayer's essays are lively, entertaining and sometimes persuasive. They range widely in content and tone. There are "pop" pieces taking us behind the scenes for such shows as the Flip Wilson series, "Sesame Street," network news and public affairs, sports coverage, and the daytime games and serials. And there are deeper, more serious studies of TV's political impact, of local television programming, of commercials — their origins and impact — of non-commercial television and of cable TV.

The Mayer commentary discloses considerable expertise and an impressive amount of research. Its most marked attribute is the centrist position that Mayer manages to stake out between the two extremist factions among television critics — those (largely within the industry) who embrace and praise everything done with the medium, and those who condemn and scorn it in its entirety. The partiality of the first group is obvious. The second category, Mayer makes clear, is often motivated by a sort of snobbery that automatically rejects all which they do not personally enjoy and which would then deny that material to others as well even though they might be receptive to it.

"Those who would deny that it (TV) has been a boon to individuals can be brushed aside," Mayer writes. "Traditionally heaven has always been seen as a place of pretty continuous entertainment. For those multitudes who cannot escape through their work or their reading or the experience of art, television has been about as close as they could hope to come to a heaven on earth."

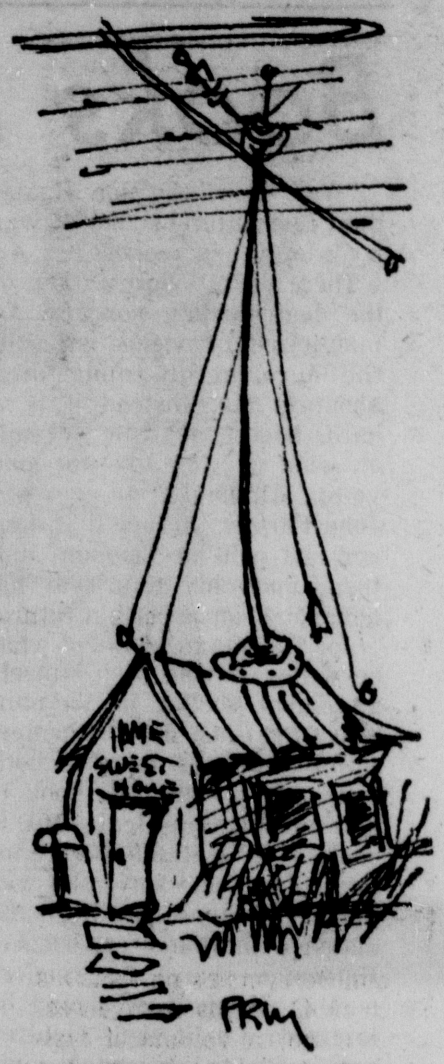

Still, Mayer admits, the audience for the unusual and the extraordinary is being shortchanged by television. "The forces felt by broadcasting do not push toward more varied and ambitious programming for less-than-largest audiences," he says. "Only law can compel the networks to accept a duty to be adventurous." And law, he properly notes, is more effective at preventing actions and trends than it is at promoting them. Furthermore, he adds, Congress has written hopelessly bad laws for broadcasting, and has created a weak and ineffectual instrument in the Federal Communications Commission to oversee it.

Mayer, it is apparent, is a man of considerable ego, opinionated and given to expressing those opinions as fact. But this is part and parcel of the makeup of the critic and lends a certain force and verve to his writing.

One enjoys Mayer's exploration of the effect upon television of the shift in advertising sales patterns from program sponsorship to minute (actually now half-minute) commercials. His discussion of some rare channels, large and small, that in the face of network domination have persisted in some creative local programming strikes a hopeful note. He offers an unbiased, two-sided study of "The Selling of the Pentagon" controversy. He makes it clear that we are, indeed, confronted today with a national administration bent on controlling and using the media. He spotlights the "overselling" that has hurt cable and pay television so badly. He correctly puts his finger on the real problem with the San Francisco's KQED-TV "Newsroom" project —an almost total preoccupation with some aspects of the news such as race and student relations and war protests, and an almost total neglect of other phases of the news, such as the business community and its problems. "Without professional program judgment," Mayer holds, "a simple-minded search for relevance and community participation will lead to irrelevance and community neglect."

Mayer charges both broadcasting and press journalism with an unwillingness to accept accountability. Libel laws, he holds, and this will be news to reporters, have become ineffective. And the situation "will become catastrophic if the courts or the legislators grant a 'newsman's privilege' by which reporters alone in the world would become entitled to conceal the evidence (if any) that supports their attacks on others."

One need not agree with Martin Mayer in all respects to find his observations and conclusions interesting and provocative. Certainly one can agree with him that "television will not go away; it is embedded in the culture now, like frozen lasagna, golf carts and sociology departments." And that while it should not be regarded too seriously as either monster or oracle, it should be constantly considered and judged within the limited realm society has decided to assign it — as an entertainment medium — in which category it could be better than it is.

TWO BOOKS of instruction in that currently very hot sport of tennis:

"Getting Started in Tennis" by Paul Metzler, former Royal Air Force group captain and tournament player. It is aimed at the young novice who knows the rules and how to keep score — but little else about the game. Illustrations are a bit less numerous than one might expect, but Metzler's instructions are clear, concise and authoritative. Sterling is the publisher of the $3.95 book.

"Play Better Tennis" is a $1.65 paperback from Arco Publishing Co., with text by the British coach Tony Mottram and photographs of such stars as John Newcombe, Roger Taylor and Evonne Goolagong arranged to provide "motion picture" demonstrations of basic strokes and footwork by flipping the pages. It is an unusual instructional approach, and surprisingly effective. This one is best for young athletes who have mastered at least some of the basics of the sport and are now ready to refine their play.

THE VISUAL Geography Series of Sterling Publishing Co. is one of those unostentatious projects whose true value is generally overlooked. But these $1.25 paperbacks examining some of the lesser known countries and peoples of the world are deserving of attention and praise.

Two recent entries, "Afghanistan in Pictures" by Camille Mirepoix and "Surinam in Pictures" by Martha Murray Sumwalt, are typical of the series, offering a well-illustrated and interestingly-told introduction to a couple of exotic and little known countries. Youngsters will find both pictures and text a far cry from their dry textbooks. And adults, too, will enjoy them as a quick and enlightening means of filling a void in their own geographic knowledge.

The series has covered virtually the entire globe, and the books are invariably well worth their bargain price tag — and more.

THE FIRST novel of the late Albert Camus, "A Happy Death," has now, 35 years after it was written, been given its first English translation, by Richard Howard, and has been published by Alfred A. Knopf. At that, it follows its initial appearance in French by less than a year, the work having gone unpublished until 1971. Other unpublished Camus work is scheduled for future printing. There is no claim that these books represent major Camus. But they are expected to give us a fuller, more complete picture of one of this century's most fascinating literary artists and social thinkers.

CAROL G. EISEN'S good-humored and yet more than semi-serious guide to "guilt-free housekeeping," "Nobody Said You Had to Eat Off the Floor," has been published by Ballantine Books as a $1.25 paperback. David McKay published the original hardcover edition of the work by the wife of the prominent psychiatrist.

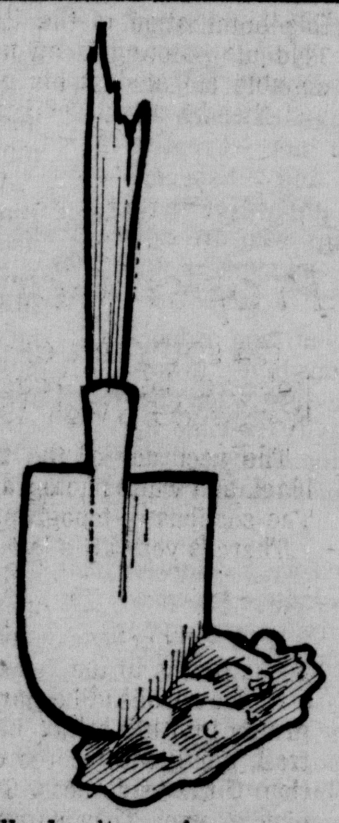

Sleuths & Suspense

MRS. STARR LIVES ALONE by Jon Godden; Knopf, 242 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

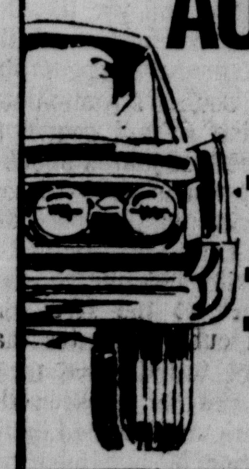

The story of the woman living alone who is held prisoner and terrorized by invaders of her home is far from new to fiction. But Jon Godden, older sister of the more famous Rumer Godden, carries it off very well in her "Mrs. Starr Lives Alone."

Here the widow Starr takes into her cottage in the English countryside a strange runaway teen-age girl, and, being lonely, lavishes her affection upon her. She is rewarded with a particularly brutal backlash in which her protege humiliates, menaces and assaults her, and threatens to take her life.

Anyone who reads the newspapers knows that there are, indeed, such dangerously evil people — of all ages. The weak spot in Jon Godden's characterizations is not young Chris, but her victim Mrs. Starr, who is so naive as to appear almost simpleminded, and who at the story's end seems to have learned nothing from her horrifying experiences.

Still, despite one's exasperation with Mrs. Starr and the fact that the suspense drags on a bit too long, one finds oneself caught up in the story. Jon Godden writes nicely. And the rural English setting is sensitively done.

Books For Juniors —

"War Year" by Joe Haldeman is a different kind of war book for young readers.

There is no glorification of the death-dealing nor any romanticized preoccupation with the heroism of young men about to die. Instead it is a hard, honest, realistic account of what it was like for one young American, 19-year-old John Farmer, to face first danger and pain in Vietnam, and then, upon his return to his homeland, an uncertain future.

Joe Haldeman knows of what he writes, having been himself a combat soldier in Vietnam who, like his John Farmer, suffered wounds there to both body and psyche. His book is not autobiographical. But it contains a truthful picture of the ugliness and horrors of war that could come only from the author's firsthand experience. Haldeman spares his readers nothing, so mothers should be forewarned that their children are going to encounter some rough language in "War Year." But they might also be advised that after completing "War Year," it is less likely that their small sons will ever be taken in, as have generations before them, by the phoney aura of glamor that some who run small risk themselves like to weave around warfare.

One final note: While "War Year" is intended for young readers, it can also provide adults with a more vivid picture of what it is like to kill and to be killed in combat than many such books intended for an older audience. Perhaps father and/or mother might want to read this tough and honest book first, before passing it on to Junior.

The book, published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, sells for $4.50.

SOME OTHER new books for young readers:

The husband and wife team of Mina C. and H. Arthur Klein has been responsible for books dealing with subjects ranging from surfing to Solomon's Temple. Their newest is "Israel: Land of the Jews" (Bobbs-Merrill, $5.95), a sweeping history and survey covering 43 centuries in a tiny land that has played an immense role in the affairs of mankind. The Kleins have a certain poetic lilt to their writing that lifts it well above the usual dry prose of the historian. Aiming at the 13-year-old and up, they make their narration colorful and exciting. Youngsters of the Jewish faith will find the book especially interesting and inspiring as they retrace the long, long path that led ultimately to today's state of Israel.

"Deathwatch" (Doubleday, $4.95) by Robb White, the adventurous and prolific writer of books for young readers, is a thriller that spices its suspense with nature. Young Ben is in the desert in the company of an older man hunting bighorn sheep when his companion shoots and kills an old prospector. When Ben refuses to be bribed to remain silent about the "accident," he finds that he has become the quarry in a deadly stalking game. Robb white is not any great shakes as a writer. But he keeps his story clean and simple. And certainly there is suspense enough in "Deathwatch" to hold the interest of readers of all ages, especially males who will enjoy the masculinity of the story.

J. Allan Bosworth, former San Francisco Chronicle reporter, uses one of California's favorite legends, Bigfoot or Sasquatch, the shaggy and huge creature who allegedly roams our northern mountains, as the central idea for his "A Darkness of Giants" (Doubleday, $4.50). Eighteen-year-old Greg Anders hopes to land a job as photographer for the Six Rivers Sentinel. And to prove himself to a skeptical editor, he and two young companions plan an expedition into the redwood country to photograph Bigfoot. An armed, half-crazed old trapper, a colony of rattlesnakes and a lack of provisions are only some of their problems. It's rousing adventure. Do they get their pictures of Bigfoot? Borrow Junior's copy of the book and read for yourself.

"THE ENDURING Beast" (Doubleday, $4.95) is a selection of poems paying tribute to the other animals with which we share this earth, chosen by artist Miriam Beerman who has then illustrated the work with her own striking and distinctive full page and sometimes two-page depictions of the wildlife. Represented among the poets are Marianne Moore, Emily Dickinson, William Blake, Dniel Berrigan, Walt Whitman, Theodore Roethke, Carl Sandburg and William Butler Yeats. The range is from Robert Frost to Gregory Corso. And the subjects of their tributes include the weasel, the titmouse, the squirrel, the elephant, the toad, the lizard and the fly. It is an eloquent celebration of life and a convincing presentation for the cause of conservation.

"Died on a Rainy Sunday" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $4.95) is the work of Joan Aiken, daughter of the poet Conrad Aiken, and a prolific and versatile writer herself. This is a tale of fear and suspense for young readers. A young mother is terrorized by the sinister couple employed as house and yard keepers. and puzzled by the odd behavior of her husband who refuses to discharge them. Her anxiety mounts, and so does that of the reader, reaching a violent climax. The setting is English. And the novel is really well-done, though probably too strong in its chilling aspects for the 12-year-olds the publisher suggests as its beginning reading level. One quibble: the novel has been printed in a typeseek sanctuary from a rain delextremely difficult to read.

"Adventures into Unknowns" (Tuttle, $3.95) by David MacLagan is a series of five stories of fantasy and adventure featuring two daring young heroes, Kent and Brad, patterned after the author's sons. The pair venture into an abandoned (or is it?) castle in the Rockies, track down what they take to be three falling stars to encounter a witch and banshee, seek sanctuary froma rain deluge and find themselves in the strange and terrifying land of Enog, find a flying saucer with crew, and have an adventure with a ghost boat. MacLagan, a Canadian, has written his first book, but he is an established musician and artist, and uses those last talents to illustrate his book — sometimes vividly, sometimes starkly, in keeping with his stories. Rich, imaginative stuff of the kind that kids have always enjoyed, but which is more and more rarely available to them these days except in the older classics.

Monica Dickens, great granddaughter of the immortal Charles Dickens, has written a sequel to her "The House at World's End," this one eititled "Summer at World's End" (Doubleday, $3.95). It brings back the Fielding family and the independent-minded children, Tom, Carrie, Em and Michael. Animals are very much involved, with the kids in the roles of their protectors against evil men. Lots of scheming, and lots of action, all of it good fun in the light Fielding pattern.

A pigeon as a detective is strange enough. But a baseball fan pigeon as a sleuth? That is what Seymour Leichman has created in his title character for his "Freddie the Pigeon" (Doubleday, $3.95). It's a humorous, farcical romp, perhaps too wild for some. There's a Fairy Godmother School, a disguise that melts, Harvey the Squirrel, a retired taxidermist, and the CIA. And a series of escapades and misadventures on the part of the redoubtable Freddie. Leichman has pulled out all the stops. Young readers will have to do the same if they are to go along with him.

THE ILLUSTRATION above is by Floyd Sowell and is from "Dogs of Fear" by Musa Nagenda, a stgry of the generation gap and conflict set in modern Africa. A 13-year-old Uganda boy finds his accomplishments in school do not make his father happy. Instead, to win parental approval, he must resort to the traditional means of the young boys of his people — a show of courage. The opportunity arises when wild dogs attack the goat herd, and Kabana follows them into the darkness, spear in hand, headed for his great adventure. The author is a Ugandan teacher and writer, and the novel was originally written for use in African schools. The artist is an American who has visited Africa.

WORKING WITH THE ELDERLY

CREATIVE PROGRAMMING FOR OLDER ADULTS by Florence E. Vickery; Association Press, 320 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The past 30 years have brought more change than the preceding 30 decades, leaving modern man with an uneasy feeling of inablility to cope with life or control his destiny, Florence E. Vickery notes at the outset of her "Creative Programming for Older Adults." And: "Especially vulnerable to the emotional impact of these changes are 20 million Americans who are now older adults and in the retired segment of the population."

Somewhat belatedly, government and science has come to recognize a responsibility toward those who have witnessed, since 1940 when they were at the peak of their productivity, bewildering changes that have ranged from the computer and moon exploration to racial turmoil and the rise of the hip generation.

Miss Vickery's book is intended as a guide for the professional leaders, their volunteer co-workers and students training for careers with agencies and programs involved with elderly Americans.

Miss Vickery is a Mill Valley resident with a wealth of experience in gerontological work. She holds a Master's Degree from Chicago University in behavioral sciences and human development, and from 1947 through 1967 was executive director of the San Francisco Senior Center. She has taught with the University of California's extension division and with San Francisco State's graduate division, holds memberships in a number of professional organizations, and has presented papers at International Gerontological Society conferences and represented California at the White House Conference on Aging in 1961.

She sees her highly professional book as not only a guide for career gerontologists and as a text for students and volunteers in training, but also as a helpful book for older adults themselves seeking greater enrichment in their later years, and for the adult children of aging parents anxious to understand and assist their fathers and mothers.

Aging, the author acknowledges, is inevitable. But inevitable illness, loneliness, a feeling of uselessness and deterioration need not be equated with that process. There are alternatives, and Miss Vickery points these out. Her approach, she says, is a dynamic one, with practical and specific suggestions for coaxing the aged from the shadows and involving them once again in the mainstream of life.

"Those now in the older years cannot take to the sidelines in resignation and despair, believing there is nothing more to expect from life," she concludes. "Life still expects something from them, and they are free of the pressures for personal achievement, aggression, competition, and the need to control." These special attributes, she claims, put the elderly in a special advantageous position to contribute to and reap from life.

No padded, breezy, once-over-lightly treatment, this. It is a deeply-thought-out, thoroughly professional analysis of the problems and concerns of the aged, a group most of us sooner or later will join if we don't already belong, and of advice on how senior centers, retirement residences, social organizations, government, and individuals can help to make certain that this tried and proven element in society is not permitted to rust and waste. More than ever, we need its leavening, calming influence.

More Pep For Plants

Garden Page

By FRANK J. TAYLOR

In Hawaii the manager of a pineapple plantation was showing me his "farm" — almost endless rows of lush plants loaded with ripening fruit, thriving in the rich red soil.

"That red color is iron, just what the pines need," he explained. "But it's locked up and the roots can't get it. So we spray with liquid iron and the leaves soak it up. Without the pep feeding the crop wouldn't be worth harvesting."

That started me cogitating.

"I bet our garden could stand some pap feeding." I said.

"Sure it could. Do a little leaf feeding with your spray gun and see what happens."

BACK HOME again, I lost no time trying out the idea. First on some small citrus trees whose leaves had yellow streaks, even though I had fed their roots well. Our climate was borderline for citrus and I was about to give up. Instead, I loaded the spray-gun with liquid iron and doused the trees until they dripped.

The effect was miraculous. Within a fortnight the leaves were a healthy deep green again and tiny new shoots were bursting from the branches.

"If pep feeding is so good for orange trees, it ought to work on other plants, too," I reasoned.

A SMALL dwarf peach that I had grafted over to a rare variety no longer on the market was looking anemic. Figuring I couldn't make it any more sickly, I sprayed the leaves with a combination of liquid iron and liquid plant food. The hungry leaves lapped it up. In about two weeks I had a thriving young tree which has since taken off and borne a good crop.

That was the start of a pep feeding spree around our place. Some fuschias which were pot-bound after several years in planters soaked up supplemental leaf feeding like sponges. So did camellias. And tuberous begonias, which have small root systems for such lush plants.

Along about the end of summer the zinnia patch was looking tired and ready to fold. The same was true of the marigolds nearby.

"WONDER WHAT a pep feeding shot in the leaves would do for them," I speculated.

So I gave them the works, liquid plant food, liquid iron, with a side shot of fungicide to ward off late summer mildew. The tired old zinnias and marigolds promptly burst into new leaves and buds and gave us an extra month of bloom.

Leaf feeding has paid off handsomely in the roses, the orchard, the flower garden and even with vegetables in early stages of growth. I don't let up on the root feeding, though. Leaf feeding is a bonus for the plants.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Water your hanging baskets of fuchsias daily now to keep them from drying out. Syringing the foliage with water is beneficial, too.
- Apply a thick layer of mulch around azaleas, camellias and rhododendrons. Nurseries have organic-type mulches that help retain moisture, check weeds, preserve the acid condition preferred by these shrubs, and make for a neater appearance.
- Zinnias and marigolds are old reliables for providing quick color in bare spots in the summer garden.
- Now is a good time to plant hydrangeas in partially-shaded areas in your garden. They are beautiful in bloom.
- A vigorous, well-fed lawn requires less water. Use the type of lawn food recommended by the nurseryman for your particular turf.
- Corn, squash and beans can all be planted for your late summer enjoyment.
- When you mow the lawn, edge as well. It makes a world of difference in appearance.

To Continue Your Color Parade

Nurseries are filled these days with containers and flats brimming with ready-made color for the garden.

As the vivid hues of June blooms are about to fade, it's time to plan ahead — so that the garden will continue to be a colorful treat into fall.

Few sights are more refreshing in summertime than a tree in bloom.

Silk Tree is one of the most exotic-looking; pink fluffy flowers all but smother the tree. Its umbrella-like growth serves as a natural canopy over terrace or patio. The lacy foliage adds to the charm of this dependable deciduous tree.

NURSERIES WILL have other summer-flowering trees and also offer an assortment of shrubs that bloom during the warm summer months.

Oleanders, in shades of pink, rose, red, white and yellow, are invaluable in hot, dry areas as they bloom generously and make no demands on the gardener. Worth shopping for are the newer dwarf forms of Crape Myrtle, which make excellent landscape shrubs in sunny locations. In addition to the popular pink and red Crape Myrtle colors, the petite forms are also available in orchid and white. These heat lovers provide an abundance of color from midsummer late into the fall.

GIVE LANTANA full sun and it will provide masses of bright color wherever needed. There are dwarf, tall and trailing forms in favorite shades of color — orange, red, pinks, lavender and golden yellow.

Princess Flower is an evergreen shrub which bears huge royal purple blossoms all spring and summer; its bronzy-green leaves have a handsome texture.

Nurseries will have annuals and perennials in larger-sized containers — already in flower. These are easily transplanted into the garden for instant beauty.

New Impatiens Are Released

Twenty-three impatiens collections have been released this year to commercial nurserymen and plant breeders by the U.S. Department of Agriculture: These newcomers are related to the familiar shade-loving impatiens plants that have been used in gardens for many years.

The introductions — collected by plant explorers Harold F. Winters and J. J. Higgins of USDA's Agricultural Research Service in the highlands of New Guinea and Java — resulted from an expedition in 1970 that was sponsored jointly by research service and Longwood Gardens, Kennett Square, Pa. The plants represent a wealth of previously undetected genetic characters not seen in commercial varieties now grown in the United States.

Flowers in some of these plants exceed two inches in diameter, and colors range from pure white through pastel shades of lavender and pink and from pale orange to dark vermillion or scarlet. Leaf and stem colors vary from green to intense dark red. In some introductions, the leaves are beautifully variegated with white, yellow or pink.

All are easily propagated by cuttings and some by seed. Some already are being offered for sale by nurserymen.

The Gardener Needs Place For His Tools

A garden toolhouse which takes the clutter out of the garage or off the porch keeps items handy when they're needed.

The home handyman can build an eight-foot square unit with arbor, workbench, and space for lawn mower, wheelbarrow, edger and garden supplies.

For plans and a materials list for the garden toolhouse, send 15 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Association, Department P-6P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

Make Your House A Calmer Place

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

How's the auditory environment in your home?

If you have the usual number of automatic household "conveniences," a full complement of power tools in the workshop, some more in the garden shack, and some youngsters to boot, the chances are your auditory environment could stand improvement.

That is, in all likelihood your home is noisier than it should be.

John C. Koss, president of the Koss Corp., Milwaukee, says: "Noise in the home is reaching dangerous levels, and increasing at the rate of 5 per cent a year. Whines, whirrs and roars of devices which we install in our homes in the name of 'convenience' are invading and eroding our private lives. These noises are taking psychological, sociological, and physiological toll of us."

KOSS, WHOSE firm, as a manufacturer of stereo headphones, is involved with acoustics and hearing, sponsored a research project, "The Auditory Environment in the Home," at the University of Wisconsin. In a booklet based on the findings he points out some of the hazards of noise in the home and suggests ways to reduce its impact.

Noise — unwanted and disturbing sound — was measured for the purposes of the study on a decibel (DB-A), scale widely used in describing sound levels weighted to the response of the human ear. Starting with 0 for the faintest audible sound detectable, the scale ranges well above 130 DB-A.

At a level of 30-45 DB-A there is auditory and visual attention, at 50, annoyance begins; at 70, the autonomous nervous system is activated, arteries narrow, blood pressure rises, supply of blood to the heart lessens. By 80 decibels the annoyance threshold is reached; at 90 work efficiency decreases, error increases. At 115 there is perceptible ear discomfort threshold of human pain; at 130 a strong tingling sensation in the ear and at 140 there are very painful sensations.

FROM A DECIBEL "counter" in the booklet comes the noise potential of the following common household noise-makers:

Doorbell 100, telephone ring 78, television 68, radio 78, air conditioner 55, furnace blower 100, 12-inch portable fan 70, vacuum cleaner 84.

In the kitchen, dishwasher 69, wall exhaust fan 90, garbage disposer 78, electric mixer 82, pots and pans 73, range vent fan and dishwasher 86, range vent fan and disposer 91, refrigerator 45, water faucet 68, and sink drain 86. In the laundry, the washing machine 64, and automatic dryer 64.

In the bath, a toilet-flush is 67, shower 78, electric shaver 85, hair dryer 77.

Workshop noise runs to 100 for a six-inch saw, 80 for a wood lathe, 93 for a disc sander, 70 for a quarter-inch portable drill.

To reduce home noise levels, Koss suggests the following:

Try to use only one appliance at a time because the noise level is accumulative.

Serve family meals in a quiet place, away from kitchen clatter. If possible, have a door separating the dining area from the rest of the house.

When shopping for a new appliance, choose the one that makes the least noise and let manufacturers know this is an important factor in your purchase.

Because healthy children are normally active while adults need more quiet, set aside a retreat for yourself and your husband within the home.

Fiberglass padding for plumbing, and cork or rubber pads under major appliances can lower the noise levels.

Acoustical tiling, padded carpeting and lots of upholstered furniture will absorb noise.

Weather stripping of regular windows will make them noise tight. If you are building or remodeling, consider using double glass for any picture windows.

Weather strip an exterior door facing onto a noisy street. If you are building or remodeling, insist on solid inside doors and soft weather stripping at the tops and sides plus a threshold closer.

Consider installing thick, perforated, sound-absorbing wall panels in noisy areas such as the laundry room.

Ask for glass-fiber lined heating and air ducts, which eliminate the racket of heat coming through the pipes.

If you are building or remodeling, make certain the architect and designer know that you want a design for quiet privacy.

Use headphones for listening to hi-fi and other home electronic entertainment. They bring the sound only to the listener's ears.

Outdoor Ideas

Planning for outdoor living? A 14-page illustrated booklet of ideas for gazebo, storage fence, trellis and other projects is available for 15 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Department 537-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Window shades have been pretty mundane — even drab. But lately shade manufacturers have caught on to the big color message reflected in the rest of the modern home.

So now we see some striking new pull-downers that inspire imaginative and bold decorative window treatments.

IF YOU CAN find a bold-colored window shade, you're on the road to a creative solution to window dressing. A bright blue shade just makes you want to add a dash of yellow, red or green and white around the frame. There's something nautical and military about blue, a favored hue these days, and most of us tend to use it with bright plaid fabrics or traditional red, white and blue prints.

A yellow shade conjures up flowers and fruit. Mint green suggests a room with lots of plants and treillage.

Old vinyl shades can be sprayed with adhesive and then striped fabric planted on them. There's still some light translucency during the day and the effect is great with artificial lighting.

LAMBREQUINS are things interior designers know something about. They are simply plywood frames, cut straight or into gently curving silhouettes. Designers have them covered with fabrics to match upholstery. It looks professional, yet anyone can make them.

The window setting illustrated on this page got its inspiration from a brand-new ribbed cotton shade cloth that comes in bright, sunlit colors. It's called Ribcord and the palette is truly vivid: goldenrod, Pompeiian red, space blue, green, crisp white. It's constructed of translucent cotton, has its own vinyl coating and is fade-and-flame resistant — important considerations.

A COLOR-CODED fabric pasted to plywood strips makes a handsome frame for a window shade, catching the eyes with its ribbed and colorful cloth. "Space blue" is the dominating hue in this decorative scheme that uses a new cotton shade by Breneman of Ohio that is called Ribcord. It is typical of the bold new shades that have come onto the market in recent years to brighten window decor.

The space blue shade was needed primarily on the upper portion of the window. So the home owner created a low cafe trickery by covering an old pole with plaid fabric, then made cafe curtains of the same print.

FINAL STEP was the plywood frame to which the striped fabric has been mounted with spray adhesive. A good staple machine would probably work as well.

Colored shades also make great coverups (to hide a storage area that doesn't have a door, or to conceal the laundry equipment). The washable types are really practical. And not at all expensive.

SOFT BUT STURDY SEATING

WHETHER you call it patio, terrace, deck or porch, or simply the backyard, the area where you do your outdoor living on warm summer and autumn days requires furniture that is both comfortable and sturdy. Such a piece is the one shown here by Helen Funai of the "Days of Our Lives" television series. The outdoor settee was built with the aid of a full-size Steve Ellingson pattern. It is a simple project that the small boy as well as the man of the house can handle with ease. Simply trace the pattern parts onto wood, saw them out, and then assemble. There are lots of pictures to illustrate the easy-to-understand directions. One dollar sent to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, witha request for Settee Pattern 396, gets you started on your project. There are wheels that make it possible to follow the sun, or shade. And the pads are standard size. Some other Ellingson patterns to enhance your backyard: No. 276, lawn glider swing, $1; No. 371, wishing well, $1; No. 352, tree seat, $1, and No. 239, barbecue table and benches $1.

THIS TWO-CAR CARPORT does far more than just provide a shelter for the family automobile. It also solves the problem of storage for outdoor equipment, tools, sports equipment, etc., when not in use. Tall closets line the wall in front of the cars. The door leads to a large room with access to a lot that extends over the autos. Fence and carport are sided with one-by-six-inch cedar that matches the house.

When You Build That Carport, Include A Bonus Of Storage

The decision to remodel an existing home or to sell and move is always a painful one for a growing family. Costs must be weighed carefully to determine the better value of two alternatives.

If remodeling wins the toss, often a practical approach is to insulate and finish the interior of an attached garage, especially if there is a connecting enclosed hallway, wiring for electricity and some proximity to the primary heat source for new ducting outlets.

With the family room or additional bedrooms on the drawing board, next step is replacement shelter for family cars and new storage for gardening, shop, and sports equipment.

PURE ECONOMICS loads the argument in favor of a carport at this time, possibly a do-it-yourself project, which, with certain planned custom features, can be a quite livable replacement.

Basic elements of carport construction are foundation, support posts, and roof. To blend into the existing structure, appropriate siding and roof styles vary with the house.

Butting the carport against a house wall on one side and screening the other gives wind and weather protection for minimal investment. Third wall, however, is the important "custom" option.

OBVIOUSLY, IT can be left open. But a storage wall nearly 20 feet long is nothing but magic for packing away sacks of fertilizer, mower, golf cart, skis or out-of-season lawn furniture.

Options were combined in one carport seen recently, and both looks and storage were equal to those of a standard garage. A four-and-a-half foot screen stood out the same distance from the storage side door, and its posts supported a narrow roof over the door.

Carport and screen are matched in beveled one-by-six inch western cedar siding.

Enclosed storage includes tall closets that open onto parking area, roomy shop, plus a deep loft extending over cars under the pitched roof, accessible by ladder in the shop.

Basic Tool Kit For Handymen

A basic tool kit for small home maintenance projects isn't expensive — usually about $20.

It should contain a light and heavy screwdriver, a putty knife, claw hammer, a saw, try square, steel measuring tape, a four-inch C clamp, a brace and assorted bits, combination whetstone, a jack plane and sandpaper.

Your local lumber dealer usually stocks this equipment.

KEEP IT CLEAN

A COVER-UP for the garbage can fights visual and odor pollution and outwits the neighborhood dogs at the same time. You can build your bin into an existing fence or as a separate unit. The hinged lid lifts up to give you access, and the back is open so the sanitation crew can slide the can in and out. Use either smooth sanded plywood or textured plywood. And for the pattern, send 25 cents to American Plywood Assn., 1119 A St., Tacoma, Wash., 98401, and specify the Trash Can Bin Plan.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

A new regular on NBC's Dean Martin hour for the new season is Jud Strunk, a comedian and singer.

The syndicated series, Johnny Mann's "Stand Up and Cheer" musical half-hour, is in production for the new season with the same sponsor.

NBC's premiere week for the 1972-73 season in the fall begins on Monday, Sept. 11. Five new series make their bows.

CBS says it will increase its public affairs programming by between 15 and 20 per cent in 1972-73.

The 39th annual College All-Star Football Game, pitting the Dallas pro champions against college seniors of the 1971 season, will be telecast by ABC from Chicago on July 28.

Olive View Hospital, in Sylmar, Calif., extensively damaged by last year's earthquake, will serve as a disaster site for one of the "Mission: Impossible" episodes next fall.

That monumental Russian motion picture version of Tolstoy's "War and Peace" novel will be seen on ABC spread over seven and a half hours of prime time on four consecutive nights, Aug. 12 through Aug. 15.

Singer Bobby Darin gets his first television series on NBC beginning July 20. At 10 p.m. Thursdays, it is the summer replacement for Dean Martin's series.

Juliet Prowse will star in a variety television special titled "The Song and Dance Gal," reflecting the past 50 years of clothes, dance and music styles.

DIGNITY AND DEDICATION

By VERNON SCOTT

Lloyd Haynes, the black, dedicated school teacher of "Room 222," is equally dedicated offscreen to acting.

He spent four years at the Actors Workshop, another three at the Film Industry Workshop and additional time with a Shakespearean group.

Haynes portrays high school teacher Pete Dixon on the weekly ABC television series and is the only member of his race to hold down top billing of a regular dramatic show.

Just as Pete Dixon retains a high degree of dignity and personal privacy, so does Haynes away from the camera.

A native of South Bend, Ind., Haynes played football and wrestled at Central High School there but has no intention of returning to the Midwest.

Haynes was married in June, 1971 to his present wife, Sandra. She is a Caucasian and the mother of Tammy, 13, and Michael, 10.

Both children of Mrs. Haynes' previous marriage call their 37-year-old stepfather "Lloyd."

The family lives in West Los Angeles where racial matters are seldom discussed. Haynes is not fond of the term "interracial marriage" and refuses to discuss his feelings on the matter.

Haynes is a licensed pilot and owns his own single engine aircraft, a Bellanca, which he keeps at Santa Monica Field, not far from his home.

Three or four times a week — more often when possible — Haynes pilots his craft around the Southern California skies. Often young Michael accompanies him and sometimes takes the controls.

Currently, Haynes is taking tests for multiple engine aircraft and seeking instrument and commercial licenses.

Flying is more than a hobby with the actor. He also flies to Aspen, Colo., for his favorite sport, skiing. At other times the family will pack up for a flight to Mexico and a long weekend of relaxation.

"My wife and I travel a lot," Haynes says, "and we enjoy taking the kids with us. We have a good many friends in Hollywood, but we don't entertain a great deal or go out to parties very often."

Curiously, Haynes and his family seldom watch "Room 222." They are too busy with other projects.

Haynes plays his television role with an almost mystical air of creativity. He doesn't examine too closely the motivations of Pete Dixon or his attitudes toward his television students.

Once he is in a scene Haynes finds himself in Dixon's character. He avoids tampering with the characterization for fear of changing it too drastically.

The actor feels as strongly about eliminating racial messages from the show as he does about discussing the matter personally.

"The first requirement of a television series is that it is entertaining," he says. "And I'll be darned if I want Pete Dixon to carry the burden of some writer's message. That's not what it's about."

Haynes must be on the set each day at 7:30 a.m. ready to go to work. Often he doesn't get home until after dark.

He was nominated for an Emmy in the show's first year and was pleased with the enthusiasm expressed by other members of the cast.

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, whose name keeps cropping up as a Democratic Presidential possibility though he has not been a contender in state primaries, will be a guest on "The Dick Cavett Show" Monday at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

THE STEREO SCENE: After Rock, What?

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

When the music we now call "rock" slips into oblivion, what terms will be used to describe the succeeding rhythm?

It probably will still be called "rock," for want of a better name. Rock as a term evolved from the old rock and roll popularized by Elvis Presley and others of the 1950s but the two forms of music are far apart in their concepts.

The first label probably was ragtime. And then came jazz and modern jazz. Bop was a good word because the music it described — played by Gillespie, Charlie Parker, Lester Young and their contemporaries — bore no resemblance to the original jazz.

Pinning labels on musical forms is unavoidable but it tends to date them eventually. Today's rock partisans snicker at rock and roll, consider it bubble-gum music, even though the beat still appeals to those in their 30s.

Modern jazz is not much different from what it was 25 years ago but its artists are mindful of the needs of the times. Take Ahmad Jamal, for example.

JAMAL IS ONE of the great pianists. Had he chosen to play the classic concertos, Jamal undoubtedly would have been a giant. But he preferred to play what was labeled "jazz", because it gave him more room to improvise.

On "Free Flight" (Impulse AS-9217), Jamal gives himself room to go where he chooses and the result is an intellectual feast. In this session with Jamil Sulieman on bass and Frank Gant on drums, Jamal also uses the Fender Rhodes electric piano even though he doesn't need any electronic embellishments.

This recording includes four selections — "Effendi," "Dolphin Dance," "Manhattan Reflections" and the familiar "Poinciana." But "Poinciana" is hardly recognized since Jamal employs an imaginative configuration to embroider his themes.

LES McCANN — who uses electric piano and Moog synthesizer — also is doing a good job in revitalizing modern jazz. "Invitation to Openess" (Atlantic SD 1603) is a brilliant performance by McCann and his combo. The noted Yusef Lateef backs up McCann's piano on tenor sax, oboe, flute, pneumatic flute, plum blossom and temple bells. Lateef's most recent recording is "The Gentle Giant" (Atlantic SD 1602), which includes a fine arrangement of "Hey Jude."

"Just Walkin' " by Wes Montgomery (Verve V6-8804) offers some unreleased recordings by the late great jazz guitarist.

YONG UCK KIM, gifted 25-year-old Korean violinist, opens the Marin Music Chest 1972 Summer Concert Series Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at the Civic Center in San Rafael. This is Kim's second appearance on a Music Chest series. He made his Marin debut in the summer of 1969, following his acclaimed appearance as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under baton of Leonard Bernstein, who introduced him as a "young genius." Since then, Kim has been soloist with leading symphony orchestras throughout this country and abroad. His current busy season will repeat the long list of engagements all over Europe for recitals and orchestral appearances. Programmed for tomorrow's recital in the Veterans Building is "Sonata in D Major, K. 306," Mozart; "Duo Concertante," Stravinsky, and Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata, No. 9 in A Major, Opus 47." Ellen Mack will be at the piano. Doors open at 1:30 p.m., with tickets available at box office.

Maybe we have a haughty exterior, but test our interior for prices and ideas, on draperies, carpets, etc.

ON ROSES

Me? —
I am dying
Slowly . . .
Surely . . .

So much to give,
and all I meet
Are thorns and flower-arrangers;
Blind to the real,
They selfishly grab and slice the green stem of creativity.
And they are dishonest and "assign" beauty and function in arranging lives.
And offer but indifference in return for giving.
And are shallow and give no human compassion or trust for true trust.

And so, like the rose
The bloom of my Love for all creation and man Gives such beauty!
but is unseen,
and offers so much,
But withers from neglect.

And I am dying.
And so many have died before.

Perhaps my one reason to be alive
Is to tend one undeveloped bloom and help it find the wonder and beauty of the blooming of self-realization and help it see the creation of love manifest in the least-ostentatious of the others.

The young may yet know Truth and Honesty and Love.
